Ugly 'Tin Shed' Marring Harbor

By MARK HUME
Times Staff

The federal government seems determined to mar Victoria's plans to beautify the entrance to the harbor by erecting a large "tin shed" warehouse on the former Victoria Machinery Depot property on Dallas Road.

The warehouse would be part of the new $12 million Canadian Coast Guard base.

The city is unhappy with the Coast Guard's plans for a warehouse with a capacity of 30,000 square feet, according to planning director Geoff Greenhalgh.

Plans for the building have been repeatedly rejected by the city, Greenhalgh told the Times, but the government is planning to proceed without Victoria's blessing.

Ald. Bob Wright, chairman of city council's planning committee, said he is shocked by the federal government's attitude.

"The government, through the Coast Guard, is totally unresponsive to the city's design policies and our objective of making the harbor entrance to Victoria second to none," said Wright.

"The building they propose will be totally unacceptable from an esthetic viewpoint . . . it's just not good enough."

The federal government does not have to meet local design requirements, although it usually does so as a matter of courtesy.

"In a legal sense the federal government can do anything it wants down there," said Greenhalgh.

"We're not asking them to put up a lavish building," he added. "But the warehouse they've described will be the most basic tin shed available."

He said the city can do nothing to stop construction of the warehouse, which is the second building in a four-phase project on the property. Other structures at the marine base will include a hangar, an office building and a stores complex. The hangar has been approved, but plans for the other two buildings have not yet been submitted to the city.

Wright said the city has tried to get the government to meet Victoria's design requirements but so far has run up against a brick wall.

"It seems there's a total communications gap between Ottawa and the City of Victoria at any other time except immediately prior to an election," said Wright.

"We don't want a Taj Mahal down there but if the timing of the federal election had been a little bit different that's probably what we'd be getting."

"We're not asking anymore of the federal government than we'd expect from any developer in the city," said Wright.

Private Wine, Beer Sale Eyed

Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair said Tuesday he expects the sale of beer and wine will no longer be in government hands in four to five years.

The minister said in an interview there is a trend across North America for governments to get out of the liquor business, but he would not predict what type of outlets would be used in B.C.

"I would not be surprised to see public pressure for wine stores in general and we'll have to look at the economic viability," he said. "It would probably involve the sale of beer as well."

"If we had to start from scratch, I'd say let's go to private distribution. But we're so entrenched in this government business now with so much money involved, public servants included, that the disentanglement process boggles the mind."

The minister said he doubted that privately-owned stores would mean lower prices.

SUBSIDY ALSO EYED

Bus Fare Boost Needed: Bonner

B.C. Hydro's transit operations might require both a fare increase and a taxpayer subsidy, according to chairman Robert Bonner.

He was commenting on a report prepared by the legislature's Crown corporations committee on Hydro transit services.

Bonner today also questioned the advisability of splitting transit from the rest of Hydro's operations.

Such a move could lead to higher overhead and be counter-productive.

Bonner pointed out that transit has the backing of Hydro's computer system and financial and administrative personnel.

Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis had said he had no quarrel with the committee recommendation that transit be taken away from Hydro.

But Elwood Veitch, (SC — Burnaby-Willingdon), who chaired the committee, said it was not necessarily advocating the transit operation be completely divorced from the rest of the Crown corporation.

"All we want is to more clearly identify the working unit of transit — either within or outside Hydro."

Such a segregation would be an important step in coming to grips with the problem of accountability in providing urban transportation, Veitch said.

The report indicates a need for transit fare increases, but doesn't actually recommend one. It says public transit users in B.C. get the best deal in the country, and as a result, the Crown corporation loses more per capita on public transport than any other utility in Canada.

Bonner said the Montreal and Toronto systems charge considerably higher fares than Hydro, and serve smaller geographic areas. More people use the Toronto and Montreal systems and labor costs are lower.

Bonner said some transit fare increase appears inevitable but it is unlikley an increase alone could solve the financial problems of transit in the Greater Victoria and Vancouver areas.

Future planning of the transit system must be tied to financial support at the municipal and provincial levels, he said.

The committee report tabled in the legislature said Hydro's per passenger deficit is the largest of five large urban transit systems it studied.

The committee pinpoints Hydro's main losses as the bus systems in Victoria and Vancouver.

Hydro's other operations — the railway, gas and electric utilities — operate on a profitable basis but they end up subsidizing losses in the passenger transport operations.

The committee calls for a plan to make the transit deficits of Victoria and Vancouver more equitable "and con-

NURSERY IN CLASS FOR TEEN MOMS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver school board plans to establish a nursery in one of the city's high schools to help teen-age mothers stay in school, board member Dr. Katharine Mirhady, said Tuesday.

Dr. Mirhady, who is also chairman of the Metropolitan Board of Health, said the school board is working on the project with the provincial ministry of human resources.

Funding has not been completed Dr. Mirhady said, but she anticipated the nursery could be operating by September.

"We definitely feel that these girls should have the opportunity to finish their Grade 12," she said.

She also said the human resources ministry would provide support for the girls and their infants until their education is complete.

"We have the space and plan to start with just one nursery in a central location that can be easily reached by bus," she said.

"If this proves successful and if the need is indicated we might consider setting up more."

Canada Hanging Back?

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — A number of Western countries are reported ready to give intensive study to Soviet influence in Africa and to prepare for an organized Western reaction but Canada appears reluctant to get involved.

Richard O'Hagan, communications adviser to Prime Minister Trudeau, said today that Canada has not been invited and does not plan to attend a meeting in Paris next Monday to consider African security.

His statement conflicted with that of Pierre Hunt, spokesman for French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing, who announced after a cabinet meeting in Paris today that six countries would attend, including Canada.

O'Hagan said that Trudeau knew nothing about this announcement and had not been consulted.

During the two-day NATO summit here, Trudeau emphasized the need for new disarmament proposals while President Carter and other leaders raised fears about the Soviet and Cuban involvement in Africa. See also other NATO stories on Page 62.

THIRD LAWYER TICKED FOR ADS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lawyer Jack D. James of North Vancouver has been ordered by the Law Society of British Columbia to modify his advertising of do-it-yourself divorces and other legal services or face professional misconduct charges, Ray Herbert, chairman of the society's standards committee, said Tuesday.

Herbert said James was called before the committee last week following complaints from other lawyers about his advertising. He is the third B.C. lawyer in two months to run afoul of the society's rules against advertising.

James, 33, president of International Self Counsel Press Ltd., was given until June 19 to respond to the order. He was unavailable for comment Tuesday.

Diana Douglas, James's wife and business partner, said he hasn't decided how to respond to the ultimatum.

Herbert said complaints centred on the phrase, "supervised by lawyers", in brochures and newspaper ads for his divorce and incorporation services.

One brochure offers uncontested divorces for $100, plus about $50 in filing and sheriff fees. Standard lawyers' fees for divorces in which there are no child custody or property settlement disputes are about $500.

Air Canada Strike Threat

MONTREAL (CP) — The union representing 1,500 Air Canada pilots is asking for a strike mandate following rejection of a conciliator's report in contract negotiations with the publicly owned airline.

The Canadian Air Line Pilots Association plans to mail strike ballots to members on Thursday. Results are expected in about three weeks.

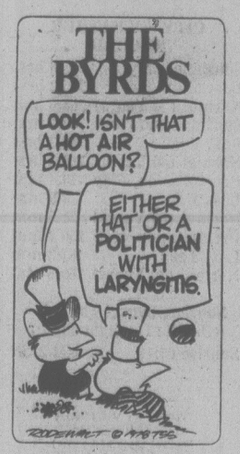

The pilots have been without a contract since Jan. 31.

The airline said Tuesday it "remains hopeful as the peak summer travel season approaches that negotiations with the Canadian Air Line Pilots Association will be resumed without any inconvenience or uncertainty for the travelling public."

Both sides are awaiting word on what further action, if any, Labor Minister John Munro has in mind to get the parties talking again.

The conciliation commissioner, Tom O'Connor, recommended arbitration to resolve the key item — a dispute over first-class travel rights for flight crews — which has stalled the talks.

Air Canada disclosed Tuesday it accepts O'Connor's recommendations.

Heroin Plan Fight Vowed

The NDP intends to oppose the Heroin Treatment Act in the legislature every step of the way, health critic Chris D'Arcy (Rossland-Trail) said Tuesday.

And in Manitoba, informed sources in the provincial-health field fear the B.C. plan will result in large numbers of addicts moving to Prairie cities.

In a prepared statement nearly 24 hours after Bill 18 was tabled in the legislature, D'Arcy said the heroin control program outlined in the act is a "$14 to $20 million dream scheme."

D'Arcy said if the government has an extra $15 million it should spend it keeping drugs off the street.

It's a known fact that a co-ordinated effort can dry up the supply — a better approach to drug control, he said.

D'Arcy said the NDP caucus will oppose the bill rather than suggest amendments because basically it is a bad bill that is "anti-democratic and wasteful."

"I also denounce the infringement of civil liberties that this program will entail. Individuals may be interned and incarcerated without the benefit of legal or medical counsel," D'Arcy said.

He said such a dismissal of individual rights is unacceptable in a democracy.

He agreed addiction is a serious problem, but added addicts can only be helped when they want to help themselves.

In a story today, the Winnipeg Free Press says its sources expressed the following concerns:

—They say B.C. is using compulsory treatment more as a political tool to get rid of heroin addicts than as a means of helping addicts.

Armed Guards Next in Corner Grocery?

By LORRAINE LOCHERTY
Times Staff

The friendly neighborhood grocery store might not be such a nice place to visit in the near future.

The time may be coming when a customer who walks in to buy a loaf of bread will be confronted by armed guards and closed circuit television cameras watching every move.

In Victoria, the trend to tight security is already taking place in the corner store and it's all because of shoplifting.

The problem is so bad the smaller, independent grocery and drug stores are hiring professional store detectives to catch shoplifters.

One agency, which believes in using deterrents, plasters warning stickers all over the stores it protects and is thinking about using uniformed guards.

Although the situation isn't as bad in Victoria as the U.S., where supermarkets routinely employ armed guards and use television cameras, Larry Scott thinks its getting that way.

Scott, of Can-Am Investigations, says his new store detective service is catching about 20 shoplifters a week for the owners of independent grocery and drug stores.

Can-Am has discovered most shoplifters are pensioners and respectable-looking people store owners say they never would suspect.

Some of the worst offenders are familiar faces and store owners are shocked to find out some of their best customers have been ripping them off, probably for years.

Can-Am started working for one store and quickly built its clientele up to 10 independent operations.

The company began 10 years ago as an external security patrol agency and branched out into store detective work several months ago.

Business has been so brisk the company increased its staff from one store detective to five and Scott expects to employ about 12 by the end of the summer.

The service started when the owner of Wellburn's Low-Cost Market came to Scott and asked for some kind of protection against the growing ranks of shoplifters.

The owner of Wellburn's, Jim Hall, said the problem more than doubled in the past year and he could no longer handle it by himself.

Hall thought most of his problems were caused by hippies — the transient, long-haired scruffy young people who came into the store on occasion.

But he had an unpleasant surprise when the Can-Am detectives started catching the real culprits.

"I just couldn't believe it; they were all older people." Hall said. "Some were in their 70s."

Hall has increased the store detectives' hours from eight to 16 hours a week. At $250 a month the service costs more than the stolen merchandise.

But he figures that at the rate the detectives are catching shoplifters, the expense will be worth it in the long run.

Miniature Spy Plane Unveiled

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israel has unveiled a miniature remote-controlled spy plane that looks like a large model aircraft but can fly reconnaissance missions up to 320 kilometres.

The 112-kilometre-an-hour Mastiff, built by the Tadiran electronics firm, will be offered for sale abroad. Company officials say its price—$500,000 for six planes and monitoring equipment—is about one-fourth the cost of similar planes elsewhere.

The fibreglass plane is eight feet long with a wingspan of 14 feet and weighs 150 pounds. It can fly to 10,000 feet.

It can carry a 33-pound load, Tadiran officials said, and can remain in the air up to six hours with a smaller load.

The officials said that because of its size the Mastiff is difficult to detect either by radar or the naked eye. The plane can carry a television camera to transmit pictures back to its base.

Diver Rose Too Fast

A 23-year-old American diver whose body was found in Finlayson Arm Sunday died of a combination of an air embolism and drowning, Victoria pathologist Dr. Garth Walther told a coroner's jury Tuesday night.

Walther said there were indications Donald Wayne Waid of Carnation, Wash., rose too quickly after diving to 100 feet and the change in pressure resulted in the fatal embolism, or air bubble, in his blood stream.

Vancouver Crime Up 15%

VANCOUVER (CP) — Over-all crime in Vancouver climbed 15 per cent during the first four months of this year, compared with the same period in 1977, Tom Dixon, deputy police chief, said Tuesday — and the indications are that the increase continued in May.

Attorney-General Garde Gardom said Monday a study by criminologist Dr. Ezzat Fattah of Simon Fraser University showing Vancouver as the crime capital of Canada was based on 1975 data. Gardom said the crime rate had levelled off recently.

Police Commissioner Geoffrey Mortimer said Tuesday he did not believe Gardom had been briefed on the latest figures when he spoke to the House.

Dixon said all types of crime decreased in Vancouver in late 1975. In 1976, indictable offences were down by seven per cent, and 1977, down a further 5.9 per cent.

However, he said, the decline slowed towards the end of 1977 and crime started to climb again in 1978.

The 15 per cent upswing has police officials concerned but so far they are not asking for more manpower. Dixon said the department had obtained a researcher from the British Columbia Police Commission to recommend more effective manpower deployment.

Break-and-enters are up 35.8 per cent to 3,990 as of April 30. Robberies are up 27.4 per cent over-all, with armed robbery up 38 per cent to 98.

In the downtown-west end area, commercial and residential break-and-enters are up 97.1 per cent this year; holdups are up 41 per cent; strongarmings up 29 per cent and purse-snatching up 68 per cent.

There were nine murders in Vancouver by April 30, the same number as a year ago. Attempted murder decreased to four compared to nine in 1977.

Assaults were up 7.1 per cent, sexual offences up 17.5 per cent and auto theft up one percent. One of the largest decreases this year was charges of assaulting a police officer — only 21 so far this year compared to 45.

B.C. Police Commission figures for the province show a decline in homicides and attempted murders during the first three months of the year, but an increase in most other violent crimes and crimes against property.

Sexual offences are up 20.2 per cent to 433 through March; assaults increased 8.3 per cent to 4,103 and robberies rose 5.5 per cent to 632.

There have been 18 homicides so far this year compared with 25 in 1977 for a decrease of 28 per cent.

Heroin Plan Fight Vowed

—Addicts leaving the province will take an entire drug subculture and heroin distribution system with them.

—Major cities on the Prairies such as Edmonton and Winnipeg are most likely to attract the addicts that leave B.C.

—The movement of addicts and dealers will increase the number of new addicts among young people on the Prairies and result in more crimes committed by addicts such as robbery.

"It's an expensive way of not dealing with the problem," one official said. "It means you're passing the buck to the other provinces and hope to let them deal with the situation you found you can't get a handle on."

The newspaper said all of its sources refused to be identified in print because of the controversy surrounding the subject.

Meanwhile, Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm said the heroin treatment plan could cut welfare rolls but is not likely to save money..

He said many addicts in larger communities are financing their habits with welfare cheques, and possibly handicap allowances.

The cheques will stop when the addicts are admitted to the treatment centres, but Vander Zalm said any savings from unpaid benefits would be used up in treatment costs.

The minister said he sympathized with those who criticize the plan for infringing on human rights, but said it is sometimes unavoidable when confronting serious problems.

Bus Fare Boost Needed

sideration should be given to increased sharing of total transit costs by the users of the service."

Veitch said this is not a recommendation to raise bus fares, but simply identifies where the loss occurs.

The bus deficit will reach $62 million by the end of the 1977-78 fiscal year next March, Hydro officials say.

This compares with a loss of $4 million in 1973.

Bus fares are 35 cents per passenger. The cost of operating the transit authority is about 80 cents per passenger, the report says.

Wide-ranging legislation expected to create a separate transit authority and remove the transportation system from B.C. Hydro is expected in the next week or two.

The committee also said the Hydro chairman should split his duties to set transit policies.

None of the members of Hydro's board of directors has specific expertise in urban transportation, the committee notes.

And the office of the chairman combines the special responsibilities of chairman with over-all management responsibilities.

The committee questions the appropriateness of combining these two functions in one position. The interest of the public might be better served if the two positions were filled by different people, the report recommends.

On the committee's recommendation that his duties be split, Bonner said the committee misunderstood his functions within the corporate structure of Hydro.

"What the committee recommends is exactly what I set up when I came to Hydro," he said.

PASSING LANE CUT

Passing on the Malahat has been restricted as result of a coroner's inquest into the Feb. 19 deaths of a mainland couple.

A spokesman for the highways ministry says changes have been made prohibiting travellers in single lanes from passing in three-lane sections of the trouble-plagued highway.

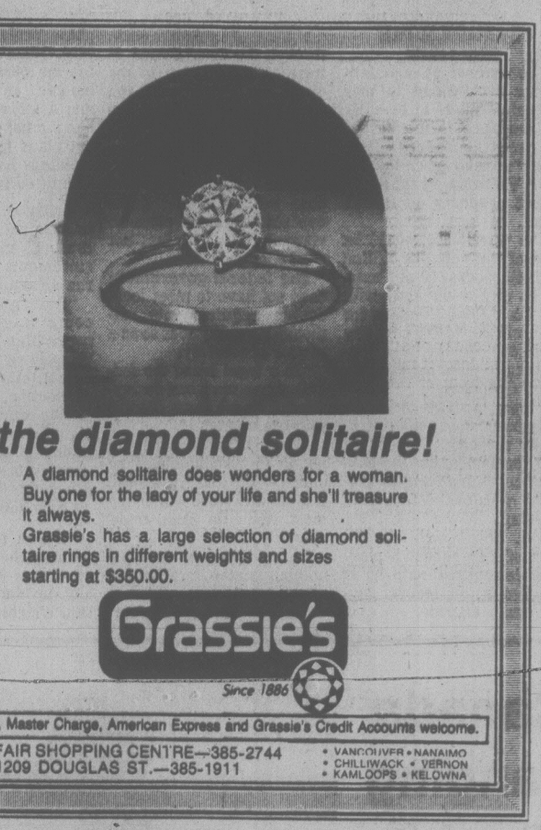

The action was taken after a coroner's jury recommended that three-lane highways should be abolished in the province.

The recommendation came at the conclusion of an inquest into the deaths of James Lawrence Sauer, 23, of Vancouver, and Susan Jennifer Hamilton, 25, of North Vancouver who died in a four-car pileup at the top of Tunnel Hill.

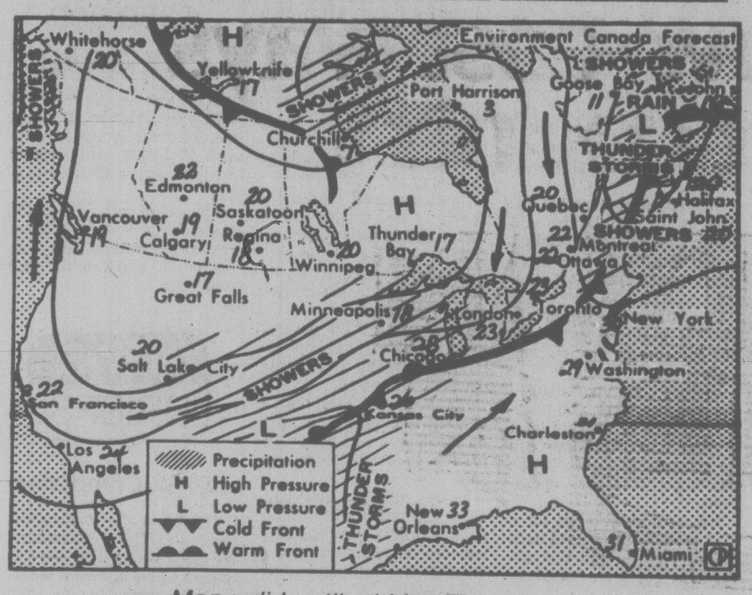

The jury found two Vancouver Island motorists were to blame for passing in a stretch where there were two northbound lanes and only one southbound lane. The two were heading south at the time.

Jack Lisman, highways safety engineer, says the practical application of the jury's recommendation would be difficult. There is nothing inherently wrong with three-lane highways, he said.

Map valid until midday Thursday.

A sunny and warm day is in store for British Columbia as a large area of of high pressure over the province holds a disturbance offshore. A few patches of clouds from the disturbance will periodically drift through the north coast. A few clouds will also appear over the southeastern Interior from a system over the southern prairies. Not much change is expected Thursday with another sunny day extending across the province.

Victims Warned On Seatbelt Use

VANCOUVER (CP) — It is up to the courts to prove whether persons involved in damage suits over motor vehicle accidents were wearing seatbelts, Dr. Duncan McPherson, an orthopedic surgeon, says.

"If they are injured in an accident and decide to sue for damages, the dishonest ones will say they were wearing a seatbelt whether they were or not," he said.

This is because since seatbelt use was made compulsory in B.C. last November, an accident victim's failure to wear a seatbelt may be held in court to have contributed to his own injuries, he said.

"This places an additional burden on the courts to prove that the parties involved are lying about wearing seatbelts," McPherson said. "And sometimes that proof is difficult or impossible to come by."

McPherson represents the co-ordinating council of the B.C. Medical Association, which seeks to act as liaison between the various agencies concerned with traffic injuries.

A Motor Vehicle Branch survey showed that more than 70 per cent of B.C. drivers use seatbelts, with passenger use running at about 58 per cent.

Justice E. Davie Fulton of the B.C. Supreme Court said in an interview that where the courts find the non-wearing of seatbelts has contributed to negligence, a rule of thumb often followed is to aportion 75 per cent of damages to the defendant — because without him there would have been no accident — and 25 per cent to the plaintiff who contributed to his own injuries by not wearing seatbelt.

"As a judge I would like to see every effort made to convince the public on the desirability of wearing seatbelts," Justice Fulton said.

Justice Fulton said the lower courts accepted gladly a recent Supreme Court of Canada ruling that has set guidelines of $100,000 as a maximum award in personal injury cases, except in very exceptional circumstances.

Frederick Godwin, an Insurance Corporation of B.C. counsel, said he has seen accident claims reduced by substantial amounts because the victim was not wearing a seatbelt.

Godwin said if the investigation reveals that a seatbelt would have prevented or lessened injuries, it allows the parties concerned to argue in court that if the plaintiff had worn a seatbelt he or she would have not been so severely injured.

Opposition MPs Claim Intimidation by Judge

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition MPs accused a Quebec judge Tuesday of attempting to intimidate them into refraining from criticizing the secret trial of Alexander Peter Treu.

The accusations came as Gerald Baldwin (PC—Peace River) said he may propose that acting Chief Sessions Judge Yves Mayrand be summoned to appear before parliamentarians to account for his statements Monday that he cannot tolerate criticism of the trial Baldwin made last week.

Baldwin raised the issue as a question of privilege, reserving the right to make a final motion later to either refer the matter to a Commons committee or have Mayrand appear before the Commons itself to explain his statements.

He said he first wanted to read the complete text of remarks Mayrand made to the press.

Treu was sentenced to two years in jail for violations of the Official Secrets Act.

The only government participant in the debate was Justice Minister Ron Basford, who prompted further criticism from the opposition when he cautioned MPs not to make reflections on members of the judiciary in the Commons. He specifically took exception to Baldwin's statement that the secret trial put Canada "back in the days of the Star Chamber and King Charles I."

Basford said the Star Chamber was an administrative government court run by Henry VIII which provided no right of the accused to appear before the court, no written arguments and no appeals.

"That is not the situation in this country," Basford said.

Treu was found guilty of violating the Official Secrets Act by mishandling highly-secret documents concerning NATO defence systems. He is appealing his conviction.

Baldwin, who has called for a Commons inquiry into Treu's trial, said he would propose Mayrand be summoned to Parliament if, after reading the exact statement, it still "appears to constitute a direct threat or intimidation" of MPs to refrain from criticizing the secret trial.

If Baldwin's proposal were accepted by the Commons Mayrand would have to appear at the bar of the Commons, the brass bar at the entrance to the chamber past which nobody but MPs and selected individuals may move.

Stanley Knowles, veteran MP and New Democratic Party House leader, said he believes Baldwin's claim is a classic case of privilege and "I suggest, an intimidation of a respected and distinguished member of this House."

John Diefenbaker, MP for Prince Albert and former Conservative prime minister, said Mayrand owes an apology to Parliament, the highest court in the land, for statements he termed unacceptable.

Diefenbaker said Basford's cautionary warning to MPs "was the antithesis of jurisprudence."

Elmer MacKay (PC-Central Nova) said Mayrand, instead of attacking Baldwin, should use his distinguished position to speak out about inequities of the Official Secrets Act and "adopt a position in defence of civil liberties."

BENNETT WANTS U.S. TO PAY

ANCHORAGE (CP) — Premier Bill Bennett of British Columbia said Tuesday that the United States would be expected to pay for a railway link between B.C. and Alaska.

Bennett made the statement after meeting with Alaska Governor Jay Hammond and Yukon Commissioner Arthur Pierce to discuss the possibility of a rail link in the North.

Hammond said his state can not afford such a project itself and without aid from the U.S. federal government, a rail link to Alaska is not likely in the near future.

Methanol Fuel Eyed By Gov't

OTTAWA (CP) — Production of methanol as a fuel is economically feasible and could provide a major new industry in the 1980s, says a consultant's report prepared for the federal government.

Environment Minister Len Marchand, who released the report Tuesday, said the idea looks promising and should be studied closely by government and industry.

"The methanol study does not constitute federal government policy, but I feel this report contains an idea that should be given the widest possible debate as we plan for future energy needs."

With imported oil prices of between $15 and $20 a barrel, it is technically possible to consider use of natural gas and renewable resources such as waste wood to consider production of three billion gallons of methanol by the mid-1980s, the report says. Imported oil currently costs $15.50 a barrel.

Full-scale development of a methanol industry would require investments of $10 billion to $20 billion. It would provide up to 60,000 permanent jobs and up to 165,000 man-years in construction employment.

Money Down A Rathole

The Social Credit government has undoubtedly gained some political mileage from the leaks that dripped out during the past few weeks about the secret white paper on which the government was based its compulsory heroin treatment legislation. The leaks showed the white paper to be such an incredible document that people are breathing a few sighs of relief now that the actual legislation has been introduced in the House. At least it isn't as bad as the white paper.

For instance, the white paper proposed that while addicts would have the right to appeal their committal to the courts, they would still be forced to undergo treatment until the appeal was heard. The legislation specifies that the treatment will be "stayed" until the judge has ruled on the appeal.

Another example: the white paper emphasized that medical personnel would not make the final decision on who should be committed for treatment, which seemed a bizarre twist for a program that was being heavily promoted as health-oriented. The legislation, in contrast, requires that at least two doctors sit on each evaluation panel that makes the committal decisions, and that the decisions of the panel be unanimously in favor of committal before it can take place. This gives the doctors an effective veto on the question, which is much more in keeping with the spirit of the act.

In detail then, the act is better than it might have been. It makes at least a token effort towards protecting the civil rights of persons affected, at least as much as those rights can be protected in a program in which the entire basis is forced committal to a hospital-cum-jail for persons who have not been caught breaking any law.

But the improvement in detail does not affect the basic weakness of the program — that the chances of its working are miniscule, to say the least. NDP health critic Dennis Cocke describes the program as "pouring $14 million (the estimated cost of the plan for the first year) down a rathole." Regrettably, he is probably not far wrong.

Even most voluntary treatment programs for heroin addiction have a depressingly low success rate. The experience of compulsory treatment programs in North America has been that they do even worse. Matsqui penitentiary in the Fraser Valley was originally set up as a compulsory treatment program for addicts who were sentenced to the penitentiary system for drug-related crimes; the program was abandoned because it didn't work. The massive U.S. federal treatment centre in Kentucky was closed down for the same reason. There just isn't any reason to think the B.C. program will do any better.

Health Minister Bob McClelland has been extremely vague about the sorts of treatment that will be tried in the program, specifying only that methadone — the heroin substitute that is at least as addictive as heroin itself — will not be used except for addicts who are already on a successful treatment program with it. But it is virtually impossible to think of any treatment program that will have much effect on 150 of the province's worst addicts, crammed together on the Brannan Lake site that was formerly a jail for juvenile delinquents.

There is only one way in which the compulsory program may actually effect any improvement in the B.C. heroin problem. It may send quite a number of addicts scurrying down the highways towards Alberta, Washington state, the Yukon and points further afield where no such program exists. Since the act requires police officers to give suspected addicts between 24 and 48 hours to turn themselves in to be tested to see if they should be committed, it is quite possible to imagine dozens of addicts getting their notices from the police and spending the next 24 hours packing their bags and hitting the road.

But if this is the government's hidden aim behind the program, it surely could not be taking a more irresponsible attitude.

It's time the government stopped, stepped back and took a look at what Hydro hath, unwillingly, wrought. Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis has been in labor an unconscionably long time to bring forth a promised comprehensive urban transportation authority.

"... what's the point in buying new arms? ... the old cork is still perfectly OK ..."

RICHARD GWYN

Bringing Moloch to Heel

NEW YORK — Heard the first time around, Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's proposal to wind down the international arms race by a "strategy of suffocation" sounds a little better — a speechwriter's vanity — than the windy rhetoric of "the mad Moloch of armaments" hurled at the United Nations on the same day by Soviet Foreign Minister Andre Gromyko.

Listened to more closely, Trudeau may just have offered the UN what this sadly ineffectual organization most needs — a measured diagnosis of the causes of the arms race and a tactical prescription for a cure about which, if the international will to do so actually existed, something might be done.

Nice But Naive

It would be nice but it would be naive to expect much to happen, no matter the soundness of Trudeau's or of anyone else's ideas. In the past seven years, world defence spending has doubled to $400 billion. During the same period, exports of armaments to poor, underdeveloped countries, have tripled to $8 billion. The nuclear stockpiles of the U.S. and U.S.S.R. alone are sufficient to destroy every city in the world seven times over.

Neither the precedents of the past nor the reality of the present offer much prospect of success for the UN's month-long special session on disarmament. The last comparable conclave, called by the old League of Nations in Geneva, was held in 1932, the year before Adolf Hitler came to power in Nazy Germany.

This week, the high-minded UN meeting will be overshadowed by the hard-headed assembly in Washington of NATO heads of government, Trudeau included, when they gather to plan an arms response to the Soviet military buildup.

Nevertheless, in this his first appearance here after 10 years in power in the UN's nearest member state, Trudeau may at least have shown the UN how it could take a useful half-step along the long, rocky and steep road to international disarmament.

In contrast to the platitudes of Gromyko, or to the cautious generalities of U.S. Vice-President Walter Mondale when he spoke here earlier in the week, Trudeau offered an analysis and an action plan that were at one and the same time pragmatic and specific. For a start, Trudeau dismissed as "visionary ... (but) unrealistic" proposals like those for "general and complete disarmament," which were advanced in the 1920s and again in the 1960s, or for the "declaratory approach," by which countries sign high-sounding treaties, as happened in 1923.

Instead, said Trudeau, the race in the most lethal in armaments — nuclear weapons — should be "suffocated" at its start, "in the labaratory." To do this, the nuclear powers should curb their own "technological impulse" by a four-point program.

The essentials of Trudeau's program were: A comprehensive test plan "to impede the further development of nuclear explosive devices," an end to the "slight-testing" of all new strategic delivery vehicles, a prohibition on all production of fissionable material for weapons purposes and lastly, "an agreement to limit, and then progressively to reduce, military spending on new strategic nuclear weapons."

This program, Trudeau admitted, recognized that "total nuclear disarmament is probably unattainable in practice." Nevertheless, it would, "deprive the nuclear arms race of the oxygen on which it feeds."

The conventional arms race, Trudeau continued, was serious. Since the Second World War, conventional arms had killed 25 million people in 80 countries. Calls for a ban on conventional arms sales, though, were impractical. For one thing, since most arms buyers were underdeveloped countries, such action would be regarded, "rightly or wrongly, as another instance where the rich are trying to substitute their judgment for the poor." For another thing, if any single country, like Canada, abstained from arms sales, other sellers would pick up the slack.

Realizable Ideals

The solution, said Trudeau, had to be to "change the incentive for acquiring them (armaments)." Today's incentive for countries to acquire arms was "apprehension of insecurity." To end this insecurity, "collective regional arrangements" should be negotiated to limit the ability of all signatory countries to acquire arms.

Regional agreements to limit arms purchases (try to imagine one in the Middle East) and an end to further nuclear weapons research (earlier in the week, French president Valery Giscard d'Estaing told the UN that France would continue her nuclear development) are ideals as much as "complete and general disarmament" or universal peace treaties. Yet they are realizable ideals, if the will to do so existed.

Probably, that world does not exist. Trudeau at least defined for the UN the limits of the possible, and sketched out some of the ways by which those limits might be achieved.

Losing Proposition

The report of the legislature's Crown corporations committee on B.C. Hydro's transit division should provide a catalyst for the provincial government to do something finally about rationalizing its transit policies.

Hydro operates a fine — but expensive — bus system. Its 35 cent fare covers less than half of the actual cost of carrying a passenger, 76 cents. Of five major Canadian transit systems the committee studied, that was the highest operating loss.

Montreal charges 50 cents a ride, and still loses 29 cents. Toronto has the same fare and only a 10 cent-per-passenger loss. Edmonton and Calgary charge the same as B.C. Hydro but their losses are 30 cents and 20 cents, respectively.

The committee report stops short of actually recommending a fare increase, but the implication is clear. The committee does state definitely that transit should become a separate entity within Hydro, and that electricity profits should not be used to pay transit losses, as the government instructed Hydro to do this spring.

Perhaps its most sensible recommendation is a rational five-year plan for transit development; Hydro's bus system has "just growed." The previous government initiated a bad precedent by simply ignoring B.C. Hydro. The transit division had to take orders from a small new bureau in the municipal affairs department. It was told to build up the bus system but had no responsibility for finding the money to pay for transit expansion. As a result, expenditures on new equipment and operating costs mushroomed.

Today, it is past time to stop, step back and take a look at what Hydro hath, unwillingly, wrought. Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis has been in labor an unconscionably long time to bring forth a promised comprehensive urban transportation authority.

It is a birth to which every bus rider should look forward eagerly.

Bawlf Replies

On May 23 the Times reprinted an editorial that had appeared in The Vancouver Sun concerning management of the fish and wildlife branch (The Wrong Way to Look After Wildlife). I would like to reply to that editorial.

The total of all funds administered by the conservation department last year was $10.2 million. This year it is $15.9 million, an increase of more than 50 per cent.

A long list of vital conservation projects will be enabled by new funding. To name just some:

- Enhancement programs for sea-run trout in the Vedder, Coquihalla, S. Alouette, Serpentine, Nicomekl and Stave rivers.
- Steelhead projects on the Thompson, Chilcotin, Nechako, Bella Coola, Dean and Skeena rivers.
- Stepped-up rehabilitation of lake fisheries in the Kamloops, Cariboo and Kootenay areas.
- Crews for clearing trout and salmon streams in areas ranging from the interior to Colquitz Creek.
- Increased hatchery capacity for steelhead and cutthroat.
- Improved steelhead hatchery techniques at Quinsam, Qualicum and Robertson Creek.
- Vital habitat projects related to mitigation of impacts (lost habitat) on wildlife by B.C. Hydro dams at Revelstoke and Pend d'Oreille.

The conclusion of the salmonid enhancement agreement is crucial. It will be concluded between our governments this year and must include the contribution of our sport fishermen as to both cost and planning.

This is the government which launched a review of the Fish and Wildlife Branch by W. W. Mair. It disclosed deep, long-standing inadequacies in the organization and administration of the branch.

Following an opportunity for comment on the Mair report, we have taken the necessary steps to resolve these serious deficiencies along the lines recommended including:

- Elevation of fish and wildlife management from branch status to that of a full department.
- Establishment within that department of a full-fledged fisheries branch for the first time, to be coupled with a new wildlife branch.
- Streamlining of communications between the department's field people and top management in the ministry, to ensure a better response to conservation needs as they occur 'on the ground.'
- Appointment of a chief conservation officer for the province to overhaul our enforcement and laws.

Recreation Minister Bawlf says his department does care about wildlife.

- Added management skills at the top of the conservation department.
- A major overhaul of the Wildlife Act for introduction at the next session of the legislature.
- Preparation of comprehensive plans for management of each of our wildlife species, for the first time as public policy documents.

Can anyone seriously believe that actions such as these and the funding increased indicate a lack of concern for or attention to the needs of the conservation department? Surely not.

There is much to be done but these commitments represent major strides for the conservation department under a government and a minister who does, I assure you, care. — Sam Bawlf, Minister of Recreation and Conservation.

Poor and Poverty

Richard Gwyn's article More on the Poverty War (Times, May 6) was interesting more for what it assumed and neglected to discuss rather than for what it actually said. Nowhere was stated a basic philosophy or rationale for attempting to reduce the inequalities of income. Surely this is fundamental when discussing such a large and controversial social issue. The closest he came was saying that poverty, as defined by the federal authorities of the day, must be reduced and that income redistribution programs should play a major role in this effort.

Is it surprising to find that relative shares of national income have remained basically unchanged since 1951? Do not most people of all income classes adjust to, or at least attempt to, government income policies (i.e. direct and indirect taxes, surcharges, levies, tariffs, etc.) so as to keep their situation relatively the same?

Is not the occurrence of unequal incomes based in the main on the varying qualities of peoples' character? By this I mean each person's interests, dislikes, initiative, honesty, natural and developed abilities, education, etc. and how they employ them in opportunities throughout their life? What real effect would an income redistribution program have in the long run when the incomes being redistributed arise from a basis such as this?

Gwyn suggests that by increasing a lower income class's percentage share you would in a significant way reduce the wide discrepancy in living standards. One only has to look at our nation's native Indian problem to realize the fallacy of this argument and the fact that money has not the same purpose and value for all people, let alone classes, and is therefore not in many ways attributable to large differences in living standards. The culprit is to be found in the differences of ideas and behavior rather than simply one's level of income.

To attempt to equalize incomes and therefore also standards of living — above the poverty line — would be to subsidize the inadequate personal and financial management of all those people whose incomes you are trying to raise to some acceptable level.

Differing backgrounds provide differing levels and kinds of opportunities and personal, practical and professional abilities. In the main, redistributing incomes will do little if anything towards raising real standards of living other than merely material changes which are only short-run illusory benefits.

Is it not obvious that the real long-term solution lies in practical education for people of "inadequate incomes" so they can create and employ opportunities to raise their standard of living in a real way that will last for their future and hopefully also their children's? — Terrence G. Gordon, Sooke.

Rude Women

As one of the thousands of "silent majority" members present at the Right-to-Life Rally held last Sunday, I feel congratulations are in order for the Pro-Life speakers who politely and graciously handled the dozen or so unbelievably rude pro-abortion women present. A special bouquet to announcer John Power for his patience with the woman who kept trying to snatch the microphone from his hand. Such gentle behavior is seldom displayed in this day and age.

The whole rally and march was excellent and so typical of the whole abortion issue; i.e., a very small noisy but militantly aggressive group of women trying to drown out the truth with their "freedom of choice" slogan. Many citizens mistakenly feel that this issue will never affect anyone except those who choose abortion. However, the philosophy of a nation killing its unwanted, unborn children in an attempt to solve its social and economic problems will in a very short time affect us all.

It's also high time the silent majority who respect and value unborn human life, started demanding the withdrawal of the outrageous federal and provincial funding of such groups as the Status of Women, Planned Parenthood and the Vancouver Women's Health Collective, which use millions of our tax dollars to work directly and indirectly for abortion on demand. The fact that I have to participate in payment of medical people to kill off innocent unborn babies is bad enough, but having our tax dollars fund these very left-wing, political pressure groups to propagate moral doctrine which denies all I hold sacred, is, I believe, a violation of my human rights.

Even when the Vancouver Pro-Life conducted a well-attended conference on child abuse, the provincial government could not spare a mere $5,000. However, there was $90,000 available for the Women's Health Collective (the "know your body people"), $20,000 available for Planned Parenthood (which the Badgely Report describes as Canada's leading abortion referral agency) and almost $200,000 for the Status of Women, whose membership is less than one per cent of the 1,250,000 women in B.C.

A vocal and visible rising of the silent majority is long, long overdue. The fashionable government funded left-wing network is counting on our apathy and indifference. Let's show them that they're wrong! — Larry Gill, 587 Nora Place.

U.S. Patronizes a Prospering Southeast Asia

THE ECONOMIST

The U.S. vice-president, Walter Mondale, recently completed his journey throughout southeast Asia, where he made an understandable ass of himself. The sort of American who likes to call himself decent and progressive finds it almost impossible to accept the huge and good and surprising news out of the area. This is that, in one important sense (if not in more obvious ways), the United States won the Vietnam war after all.

The original purpose of that long, inefficient war was to keep Indochina as the "cork in the bottle". If the Communists won quickly, it was feared in John F. Kennedy's day that the stuff which traditionally hits the fan would pour out over all the rest of southeast Asia.

When the Communists instead won slowly, rationalizers said in Lyndon Johnson's and Richard Nixon's day that a breathing space was being created during which the people of southeast Asia could capture the political will to build governments that would give them a more secure and attractive non-Communist way of life. Against most people's logic, they have been proved right.

In 1972-78 the 240 million people of the five ASEAN (Association of Southeast Asian Nations) countries (Thailand, Malaysia, Singapore, Indonesia and the Philippines), plus the 60 million people of three neighbors (Taiwan, Hong Kong, South Korea), have achieved between 6 per cent and 11 per cent average annual growth in real gross national product; this is now the only group of countries in the world in which real GNP is doubling every 7-12 years.

It is nonsense to say that the benefits are going only to the rich. In all these eight countries life expectation is lengthening dramatically, in most of them mugging rates and drug-trafficking have been cut, in each the sense of national and regional self-confidence is growing. "In our ASEAN countries," said one elderly Filipino minister during Mondale's visit, "we have the great human right that our old people live with their families instead of in old people's homes, and the average ASEAN worker is giving to his mother a living standard several times higher than she was able to give him. We wish that this human right could be extended to America."

MONDALE . . . dropped bricks all over

In the genuinely free elections which none of these eight peoples is allowed to have, the proportion who would freely vote Communist is now probably not much more than it is in Glasgow, certainly much less than it is in Milan.

The general pattern of workable undemocratic government is for a strong man, sometimes with a commercially-too-acute wife and other relatives, but with a low percentage of GNP going to government spending (average 15 per cent for the ASEAN countries), with increasing intelligent debate about policies but no right of violent demos (including strikes) against the changeable policies temporarily chosen, and with departmental ministers under the strong men picked from the ablest people in the country (but with an understanding that they do not lose financially through being excluded from entrepreneurship in their countries' boom years, when men of their capacity with their education could in private business grow very rich).

This southeast Asian government system is hurtful to a minority of saints who are agonized by the sight of any corruption, to powerful opponents of government who tend to be locked up, and to the minority among the swollen age-bulge of teen-agers who would enjoy the excitement of communal political demos (and who find these sometimes brutally banned).

But the purely economic burden on the ordinary man from corruption in these governments is less than the burden on him from bureaucracy in countries which take much more than 15 per cent of national income in taxes, and then do not get the economic growth.

It would be better if individual rascals or brutes could be quietly rooted out of these governments by some democratic or consensus process. This was once happening, but an advance to voting democracy has not been made smoother by the fates of Zulfikar Ali Bhutto in Pakistan and Mrs. Indira Gandhi in India (both of whom were elected democratically, but then took the ruthless habits of south Asian politics so far that they and their families have suffered for it). Says one able ASEAN minister:

"I would welcome a democratic vote which expelled me into the private sector where I could make more money than I do now. But I am not keen on the new democracy which says that if I have a swing against me about half is large as the one that your (Britain's) Mr. (James) Callaghan is going to suffer, then all my family and I should be shot."

In the Philippines, Ferdinand Marcos genuinely won his recent elections, against an opposition which, once in power, would have been more authoritarian and violent (and less efficient though perhaps also less successfully corrupt) than he and his wife, but he faked the results in Metro Manila because he felt that the opposition party, once given political standing there, might organize street riots every Sunday.

Into this atmosphere Mr. Mondale flew to make speeches in Manila and Jakarta that sounded as if they were meant to bring the mobs out, while offering to invest some piddling millions — out of many billions of current U.S. deficit? — in schemes for non-conventional energy, rural roads, water projects, co-operative marketing experiments (which are exactly the sorts of scheme that cannot sensibly be decided at vice-presidential level from the top down).

These were hilariously insulting prods from the world's largest deficit country to the world's fastest-developing area, because each advertised aid project was plainly picked to tickle the trendy ignorant voter back home in Minnesota. It is a sign of the essential small-town niceness of the Carter administration that Mr. Mondale still does not realize he dropped bricks all over Asia.

The southeast Asians should be more patient with the United States, which destroyed its own cohesion in the Vietnam war in order to give you the least bad governments you have ever had, but asks no thanks because it still does not realize this has happened.

The United States is now on the mend from post-Vietnam and post-Nixon and then post-evangelism traumas. It was only on Jan. 20 of last year that Southern Baptist morality came marching down Pennsylvania Avenue into Washington, hand in hand not only with Amy but with a matching ingenuousness in economic and energy policy which was destined to send the United States in 1977 into the largest marchandise trading deficit ever recorded by any country in the history of the world.

Many people had feared that the deficit would make the United States protectionist, and that the Baptist would decree that any businessman who had ever expedited licences into Indonesia in the usual way might be sent retroactively to prison. Neither seemed likely to stimulate trade with ASEAN. To do justice to Jimmy Carter, neither has occurred.

There is a French-Canada Outside of Quebec

By WILLIAM JOHNSON

QUEBEC — Take that, you Quebecois nationalists. The two most praised novels in French published in Canada in the past year were written by non-Quebecers. So much for the "Quebec nation."

Gabrielle Roy, born in St. Boniface, Manitoba, won the Governor-General's Award for literature for her fictional ized memoirs of a Manitoba school teacher, Ces Enfants de ma Vie.

Antonine Maillet, born in Buctouche, N.B., has sold more than 50,000 copies in France of her book Les Cordes-de-Bois. She came within a whisper of winning this year's prestigious Prix Goncourt for literature: she was tied for first choice but the jury chairman voted a second time to break the tie — against her.

I remember still the awe with which our teachers spoke of Gabrielle Roy when her novel, Bonheur d'Occasion (The Tin Flute) won France's Prix Femina in 1945. Everyone was astonished that one of our very own could receive critical acclaim in France. And for what a book! No longer a rural setting, no lumberjacks, no farming. The day didn't start with the Angelus tolled by the parish church.

It was set in Montreal, in the slums of Saint Henri, though the main characters did occasionally walk past the railroad tracks to the slopes of Westmount. It was contemporary. It even spoke of the war. People worked in department stores. They spoke naturally. What a miracle!

Now, at 69, Gabrielle Roy is still writing. She settled in Quebec. But Ces Enfants de ma Vie (These Children of My Life) has the texture of the Prairies, not of Quebec.

MAILLET . . . New Brunswick

The novel is a series of six stories told in the first person by a young school teacher. Each story is centred on a different child. There is a first-day-of-school story, a story of Christmas and the child who couldn't afford a present for the teacher and a story of a child who could sing like an angel.

The descriptions are simple. The narrative sometimes verges on sentimentality. And yet there is a poetry to the book. Though a young teacher is telling the tales, the reader is aware of the almost-old novelist recalling both the teacher and her young charges. (Gabrielle Roy taught in the Prairies for eight years before living in England and France for two years until the outbreak of the Second World War.)

Take this description of an old people's home where the boy went to sing: In addition to the sick and palsied, there were those who were only old. "And of course there were those who were whole, if it can be called good fortune to be only irremediably lined, wrinkled, shrunken, eroded by some process of unimagined ferocity."

Antonine Maillet, who achieved fame through her dramatic monologue La Sagouine, brings back her mythical Acadian world in Les Cordes-de-Bois. Though Maillet is 30 years younger than Roy, it is an archaic world that she creates, one in which she runs up and down the generations, in which people live a folkloric life in a small village where travelling means going to one of the neighboring villages that dot the coast.

The characters, with their outlandish names and exotic speech, become prototypes. Ma-Tante-la-Veuve, tight-lipped and reproving, plots with the parish priest to preserve the virginity of all the village's girls, while le Bessoune, an anarchistic spirit of unbridled sensuality, outwits the forces of decency.

Antonine Maillet also moved to Quebec. She did graduate work in literature at the University of Montreal and at Laval, and taught at Laval until her success recently freed her to put all her time into writing.

Earlier in May, she was guest speaker at an Acadian cultural event. She marvelled at the recent cultural flowering of Acadia. Perhaps we are doomed to be extinguished, she said, but if so, we our dying on our feet.

Quebecois nationalists try to equate French-Canada with Quebec.

"Quebecers don't care what happens in the rest of Canada," Jean Pare, editor of the Magazine L'Actualite, told me in a recent conversation. "In any case, the French minorities outside Quebec are doomed to disappear." (He then reconsidered: some French life might continue along the boundaries with Quebec.)

The nationalist view is convenient. The world is so much simpler if Quebec, all Quebec, and only Quebec, is "a nation." But, apart from the reality of about one million non-francophone Quebecers, there is the reality of French culture in New Brunswick, Ontario and, perhaps, Manitoba.

There is a chance that French life there, proclaimed dying by the Quebec nationalists, has its most brilliant expression still to come. If so, it will strengthen the quality of French culture in Quebec while giving meaning to Canada.

More Than Words Can Say

russell baker

Soon we shall send Egypt, Israel and Saudi Arabia some dangerous war planes.

The purpose is to show them we like them all.

Don't ask why we couldn't have got the message across by sending them flowers and candy. Maybe, in Middle East culture, sending flowers and candy is a gesture of contempt.

Maybe the president and Congress thought it would make them look silly if they argued for weeks about whether to send flowers and candy. I don't know.

What I do know from studying the newspapers is that Egypt, Israel and Saudi Arabia all got the impression, more or less simultaneously, that we didn't like them any more.

You know what that means. It always means the same thing when somebody you like a lot says, "You don't like me any more."

It means the next thing you will hear is, "Well, if you really liked me, you'd find some way to show it."

Since we really like Egypt, Israel and Saudi Arabia, naturally we wanted to find some way to show it. And instead of dispatching chocolates and roses, we did what people in our position too often do, and said, "Let's go shopping."

The Saudis and Egyptians looked around and thought they'd rather like some warplanes. If we really respected them, the Saudis and Egyptians said, we'd order them some warplanes, too.

Well, what can you do? You don't want Egypt and Saudi Arabia thinking you don't like them any more. Warplanes it was.

And even more warplanes for Israel after it hinted that we didn't seem to like Israel any more as much as we liked Egypt and Saudi Arabia.

Is this all too simplified? I have it from a close reading of almost every statesman's explanation of why the warplanes are being sent. They are symbols, if the statesmen can be believed. Merely symbols. With these planes we testify to our respect for Saudi Arabia, our faith in President Sadat and our determination to preserve Israel from harm. No, it is not too simplified.

Well, of course we are not simpletons. After all, we know warplanes can be used for disagreeable ends, especially when recipients are nervous about their proximity to one another.

But how is one to offer symbols of affection without risking war? The solution proposed by my friend Hess is to create a weapons bank for people we like.

When a country like Egypt, Israel or Saudi Arabia comes to us for tokens of affection and esteem, Hess proposes we send them flowers, candy or theatre tickets for immediate use or, as an alternative, offer to put some weapons in the weapons bank for them.

The weapons bank would be located in the United States. Hess believes Fort Knox would be an appropriate location, now that so much of its gold hoard has been disbursed.

If, for example, we wanted to give Saudi Arabia 50 warplanes as a token of our affection, the planes would be sent to Fort Knox and guarded by the American military so that nobody could take them out of the vaults, including us or the Saudis.

The Saudis would receive a voucher stating that they held 50 warplanes worth of American affection. Similar vouchers would be issued to Egypt, Israel and anybody else on whom we wanted to shower affection. When our friends became quarrelsome they would no longer be tempted to damage each other by belligerent exercise of our gifts, but would only have to match vouchers to determine which one of them we like most.

Any country could exchange its voucher in Washington for candy, flowers, theatre tickets, baskets of fruit, Valentines and similar harmless expressions of esteem, in quantities up to the full value of warplanes held for it in the weapons bank.

Several persons wise in diplomacy assure me that this propsal is absurd.

Oh, not because countries like Egypt, Israel and Saudi Arabia don't really want tokens of our respect, affection and esteem, these people say, for they all do. They all want tangible evidence that we like them.

If it isn't tangible enough to help them inflict grave damage on each other, however, they will conclude that we don't really like them at all. In short, the only tenable policy for assuring people we like them is to help them shoot each other more efficiently.

'Manhandled' Pair Get Nothing

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Surrey couple who claimed they were manhandled last July 12 by police in an alleged mistaken drug arrest were denied damages Tuesday in British Columbia Supreme Court.

The jury deliberated more than 5½ hours before finding that the couple had been given sufficient notice by police of the reason for the arrest, and that excessive force had not been used.

Gerald and Sharon Shuck were suing RCMP constables Hugh Stewart, David Moll and Gary Kirkpatrick, Vancouver police detective John Edwards and the City of Vancouver.

Earlier Tuesday, Justice George Murray found in a separate judgment that by law, the officers had reasonable and probable grounds for making the arrest, and therefore were justified in doing so.

Justice Murray left it to the jury to decide if the officers had used more force than necessary, and had adequately and quickly enough identified themselves.

The Shucks sued after they were beset in their car by four men in street clothes in the parking lot of a Kingsway Avenue drive-in restaurant.

Court was told that a hidden policeman had described a woman suspect to the street squad, who thought that Mrs. Shuck was the woman. Police said they followed the couple to their car where they were arrested.

Police said Mr. Shuck was grabbed by the throat—a procedure intended to prevent an addict from swallowing drugs. They said addicts usually carry drugs in the mouth so the evidence can be destroyed if stopped by police.

Court also was told that they feel it sometimes is necessary to punch a suspect in the stomach to stop drugs from being swallowed.

School Tax Revolt

SPALLUMCHEEN (CP) — This municipality of 3,378 people, faced with a school tax levy increase of 41 per cent, has refused to pay its new assessment.

The community, 20 kilometres east of Vernon, owes the District 21 school board about $125,000.

The municipality is making payments to the district based on last year's rate of $61,000. Under the new levy, Spallumcheen is supposed to pay $86,000 a month, back-dated to Jan. 1.

"We won't be paying any more than last year's payments until we arrive at some plan of action," Mayor Floyd Parkinson said Tuesday.

He said the municipality will try to get support from other Okanagan area communities at the next meeting of the Okanagan Mainline Municipal Labor Relations Association.

TEST SITE FOR 2-4-D

VERNON (CP) — The pesticides control branch of the ministry of environment has made large reductions to 2-4-D treatment areas in three locations of Okanagan Lake by cutting back the size of the areas through permit restrictions.

The permits allow use of the controversal herbicide to control Eurasian milfoil weed growth in the Okanagan Lake system.

Peter Scales, environment ministry spokesman, said Tuesday application of the chemical is restricted to areas of four or less hectares until the chemical's effects are determined on a large scale.

A test site south of Kelowna on Okanagan Lake involving 20 to 40 acres is being used as a monitoring area. Scales said, "complicated tests will be carried out and the size of the other areas will not be increased until this is done."

Despite the restrictions on the latest permits, Jim Foord, Vernon, president of the Canadian Scientific Pollution and Environmental Controls Society (SPEC) said his organization will be registering an appeal against them, probably in conjunction with Kelowna SPEC and the southern Okanagan Environmental Coalition.

ALBERNI MAN GETS 4 YEARS

PORT ALBERNI (CP) — David Ian Seitcher, 24, of Port Alberni, was sentenced to four years in jail Tuesday after being convicted in county court of break, enter and theft.

He was charged after he held police at bay in a city sporting goods store for several hours last March.

Seitcher was acquitted on a second charge of use of a firearm after committing an offence.

He told the court Tuesday that he had been drinking heavily prior to the incident and had finally decided that evening that he wanted to commit suicide.

In testimony Monday, RCMP Cpl. Dave Wright said Seitcher was asked to drop his weapons, but instead turned towards the policemen and slowly moved the guns into a shooting position.

Wright said another RCMP officer fired a shot that missed Seitcher, who dropped both his weapons and fell to the ground.

"I wanted the cops to think I was going to shoot," Seitcher said Tuesday. "I wanted them to kill me, because I couldn't find no bullets for the gun."

Muckamuck Employees Vote for Strike Action

VANCOUVER (CP) — Native Indian employees at the Muckamuck restaurant here have voted to take strike action.

The 20 employees, members of the Local 1 of the Service, Office and Retail Workers Union of Canada, and the restaurant's three owners have accused each other of failing to negotiate in good faith.

The union is demanding a contract, job security, staff meals, better wages, regular scheduling and an end to deductions from salaries to cover staff uniforms.

Teresa Bjornson, co-owner of the restaurant, said Monday that management will not negotiate with the union as long as an information picket set up during the weekend is maintained.

She estimated business had dropped about 25 per cent because of the picket.

The owners have asked the British Columbia Labor Relations Board to order an end to picketing. The board was to consider the request today.

The union withdrew several complaints to the LRB of unfair labor practices by management. It had earlier accused the restaurant of firing three union organizers.

Christina Prince, an employee and union spokesman, said Monday the union decided to withdraw the complaints because it thought it could get better results through direct negotiation rather than through the labor board.

Bjornson said the withdrawal was a "definite confirmation that there has been no discrimination and that the charges were totally unfounded."

The racial issue, said Prince, had emerged out of the labor dispute when employees realized that the owners were getting rich from native culture.

HYDRO SUIT SETS RECORD

VANCOUVER (CP) — The longest civil suit in Canadian legal history—between British Columbia Hydro and the builders of the W. A. C. Bennett dam on the Peace River—is on its way to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Three B.C. Court of Appeal judges Tuesday agreed the case, which dates back 11 years, has gone on for too long and should be heard by the highest court. The court has not said it will hear the case but that is considered a formality.

The latest round in the dispute started in 1975 when B.C Supreme Court ordered Hydro to pay $36 million to Morrison Knudsen, chief contractor for the dam, for fundamental breach of contract.

'UBC's FAULT'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Education Minister Pat McGeer said Monday it is the fault of the University of British Columbia and not his ministry that medical students are not being trained at the university's extended care hospital.

McGeer said he has made available a "global budget" for the medical school, which it can spend as it sees fit.

The university must decide itself at which of the city's hospitals it will spend its teaching dollars, he said.

He said he will not increase funding just because there is a new hospital available, but will do so as the medical school enrolment expands.

The first increase in the medical class comes next year and by 1980 the incoming class will have doubled.

There should be enough money by then so the extended care hospital and a 250-bed acute care hospital now under construction can be used for teaching, McGeer said.

Charles Connaghan, UBC vice-president for administrative affairs, said Saturday a government committee was working to find a way to fund a teaching program at the extended care hospital.

Sex Talk Cited

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Raymond Rogers, 42, of Chilliwack, charged with having intercourse with a 13-year-old girl, often talked about sexual matters, a county court trial was told Monday.

Viola Kiess of Abbotsford, an aquaintance of Rogers, testified that in the summer of 1975, he told her about a trip he'd taken to California with a 13-year-old girl and her younger brother.

"He talked about the things they did, how they had gone to a nudist colony in California," Kiess said.

In earlier testimony, Paulette Stewart, 30, a former girlfriend of Rodgers, said the accused told her he had intercourse with a number of young girls, but the police were pursuing him on only one charge as a "political frame-up."

Stewart said Rodgers told her he had sexual relations with the girl in question for therapeutic reasons.

Rodgers, a planning consultant and former mayoral candidate in Abbotsford, is author of the book Sex and the Law in Canada.

The trial continues.

Ferry Accident Unsolved

NANAIMO (CP) — An inquiry by the British Columbia Ferry Corp. into a docking accident at the Departure Bay terminal here May 2 has attached no blame, corporation director Graeme Roberts said Tuesday.

About $250,000 damage was caused to a terminal berth and another $25,000 to the ferry Queen of Coquitlam when it smashed into the terminal.

Roberts said that attempts to duplicate the apparent mechanical or electrical fault that caused the accident were unsuccessful.

New Dividend Appeal

Canadian Press

Investors are often slow to recognize the importance of dividends and their yields when choosing equities, says Marpep Investment Reports Ltd. in a recent Canadian Business Service publication.

"Dividends, as of this year, are treated far more leniently for tax purposes than ever before," the newsletter says.

And dividend yields, "though historically quite high, will get another boost late this year and next by the flood of pent-up dividend increases that the end of the anti-inflation board is going to let loose."

A number of investment advisers have found that many investors "who used to swing back and forth from penny stocks and other high-risk speculation on the one hand, to savings accounts and Canada Savings Bonds on the other" have recently come to realize that dividends are worthwhile.

Home Oil Co. Ltd. and Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd. are just two examples of companies whose dividends make them sound and growing investments.

"Home Oil said in its latest communication that the company's dividend policy will be reviewed when the restrictions imposed by the anti-inflation board are over with," the newsletter says.

"Home's dividend was unchanged at 50 cents for more than a decade until 1976 when it raised the rate to 62½ cents. This year it will pay 50 cents.

"Home's earnings have risen with the price of the oil it produces and it could no doubt raise the payout substantially without running short of funds for development.

"We still see the shares as a buy," Marpep advises.

In the case of Abitibi Paper, the company "plans on paying out 30-to-40 per cent of earnings in dividends and we estimate it will have a 50-per-cent-or-more improvement this year."

Gas Export Action Urged

MONTREAL (CP) — A prominent banker warned Tuesday there are serious consequences to be faced if the surplus natural gas of Western Canada is not exported as quickly as possible.

Robert A. Utting of Montreal, chief operating officer of the Royal Bank of Canada, also challenged the assumption that Canada's oil and gas reserves won't be enough to meet demands at home, or for short-term exports, beyond the year 2000.

"In our post-1973 response to the OPEC price increases and threats of withdrawal of supplies, it now appears that we may have placed too much emphasis on the conservation of what we knew we had, and not enough emphasis on the development of new reserves."

Utting spoke to the annual convention of the Canadian Gas Association which concluded two days of business sessions by electing E. W. King of Edmonton as chairman for a one-year term. King, president of Northwestern Utilities Ltd. and Canadian Western Natural Gas Co. Ltd., succeeds L. M. Dudley of Toronto, president of Raypak Thermonics (Canada) Ltd.

Elected as vice-presidents were J. M. Cameron, executive vice-president of Trans Canada PipeLines, Toronto, and R. E. Kadlec, president of Inland Natural Gas Co. Ltd., Vancouver.

In his first act as chairman, King released figures on Canada's so-called gas bubble—or surplus—which has become evident in recent months following more drilling and increased conservation measures.

Although 91,000 new customers were acquired last year, mainly homes in Ontario, Alberta and British Columbia, residential consumption rose only marginally to 314 billion cubic feet from 313 billion cubic feet. King said the reason is that many home owners installed insulation and turned down thermostats.

Largest increase in natural gas consumption came from industry, where use rose to 820 billion cubic feet.

Exports to the United States increased to one trillion cubic feet from 954 billion cubic feet in 1976.

Utting told the 300 delegates that despite the fast-paced exploration and development taking place in Western Canada, "we are not so confident of the future, unless new markets are established."

Conserving energy is still necessary, he said, adding that "simply because our actual and probable conventional oil and gas reserves are proving to be greater than we earlier thought possible is no reason to be wasteful of them.

"But my point is that so long as fear of premature depletion is a dominant concern, the economic contribution the industry is capable of making will continue to be restricted."

SHOE QUOTAS PINCH, B.C. TELLS OTTAWA

A report being prepared by the provincial government's ministry of economic development is expected to recommend that all import quotas and tariffs on shoes and textiles be lifted by the federal government, a ministry spokesman said Tuesdcy.

The spokesman, who asked not to be identified, said in an interview the report will show the tariffs and quotas are costing British Columbians millions of dollars a year.

He said the report, expected to be completed by August, shows that residents of the province spend an extra $12 million a year on footwear and clothes because of the federal barriers.

In textiles and clothing, costs are between 50 per cent and 100 per cent higher that they need be, the spokesman said.

The effect on local industry, he said, has been devastating, with several bankruptcies being recorded.

The spokesman said the reason the quotas and tariffs exist is to protect manufacturers in Eastern Canada, especially Quebec.

He said the report will argue that if antiquated factories in Quebec are allowed to go out of business by the lifting of the trade restrictions, the rest of that province's shoe and clothing industry will be able to survive.

He said the report is likely to recommend that to help in the changeover period, the federal government should provide temporary financial aid to workers laid off by Quebec industries forced to close down by foreign competition.

Plea for Temperance

Liberal leader Gordon Gibson called on the provincial government Tuesday to broaden and toughen its efforts to discourage abuse of alcohol.

Gibson, speaking in the legislature during debate on Health Minister Bob McClelland's estimates, said the amount of money being spent by the government on lottery promotion is disgraceful, in view of the amount spent combatting alcoholism.

Rafe Mair, consumer and corporate affairs minister, said recently the government plans to launch a $2 million, youth-oriented, anti-drinking campaign to be financed by a five-cent surcharge on each bottle of liquor sold.

"I would like to see excruciatingly realisitic scenarios in those advertising programs," Gibson said, "having to do with the impact on an individual's health, on family life, on mental injury, on society in terms of injury to others, (and) on work and productivity, because alcohol abuse has a tremendous effect in all these fields."

Disposal Law Urged

A Social Credit backbencher called on the government Tuesday to legislate an industrial liquid waste disposal system.

"Government either has to legislate the need for this type of disposal facility or they have to finance it," Gerry Strongman (SC—Vancouver South) told the legislature during debate on the estimates of Environment Minister Jim Nielsen.

He said that since the government is not prepared to finance it, it should legislate it — to allow a business to set up a viable disposal system for this type of waste.

"Right now most people get rid of liquid industrial waste by dumping it on to a landfill," Strongman said. "It is environmentally the very worst thing we can possibly do."

CRITICS CALL FORESTRY MEETING

The Coalition for Responsible Forests Legislation will hold a public hearing in the Princess Room at The Empress on Tuesday, June 13, at 8 p.m.

Spokesman Paul George said any person or group that wants to submit a brief or make a statement on the new Forests Act can attend.

Anyone wishing to contact the coalition can write to 1260 Wallace St., in Victoria, or phone 384-5112.

George said opposition to Forests Minister Tom Waterland's newest piece of legislation is growing daily but is still a long way from being strong enough to force changes in the bill.

"The phone is ringing constantly with people making inquiries and expressing support," said George who is a Victoria-based biologist.

"But it will take a tremendous amount of work to make any changes. There's just so much lethargy (in the government) to contend with."

"I'M NOT DEAF"

DREE Misplaced Its Chips: B.C.

Overcapacity in the production of frozen French fries, which led to the closure of Spetifore Frozen Foods Ltd. of Delta earlier this year, has been blamed on the funding policies of the federal Department of Regional Economic Expansion (DREE).

A report tabled in the legislature Tuesday says the potato processing capacity of 60 per cent in excess of current domestic and export demand has been "generated in almost every recent plant addition or expansion with some DREE funding."

"In the opinion of the research staff, DREE activity has been the major factor contributing to overcapacity in Western Canada."

The report, prepared by the legislature's standing committee on agriculture, called on the provincial government to begin negotiations with the federal government for compensation "for the economic dislocation which results from negligence by DREE."

"It is our opinion that while economic dislocation is an inevitable result of regional incentive programs, dislocations which lead to the demise of new, modern and efficient facilities is not."

The report also says there is an overcapacity in the meat packing industry which can "to a significant degree, be linked to DREE's Regional Development Incentives Act (RDIA) activities in Alberta."

"It has been a major contributing factor in the closure of five (meat packing) plants in Alberta and B.C."

The reports says that DREE officials should have been aware of a serious overcapacity problems before authorizing a $2.4 million grant to McCain's Ltd. of New Brunswick for a new potato processing plant at Portage La Prairie, Man., in 1976 after Spetifore and Swan Valley Foods of B.C. had already announced plans for new plants.

"The timing whereby DREE's expansion of the potato processing industry in Manitoba followed significant expansion in the Maritimes, also utilizing DREE funds, was most unfortunate," the reports says.

The committee says that plants in B.C. and Ontario have closed as a result of excess capacity.

"In addition, McCain's plants have reduced their contracted potato production by 36 per cent in Manitoba and by more than 50 per cent in B.C. We are also informed that Fresh Pak is considering the closure of its potato processing operation in B.C. by 1979."

The report says DREE officials were naive or irresponsible in making the grant to the McCain's Portage La Prairie plant.

The report says B.C. has under-utilized available DREE funds and its apparent policy of independence from federal interference has had a detrimental effect on B.C.

As a result, larger amounts of DREE grants to other western provinces have dislocated B.C. plants disproportionately and B.C. has received a smaller share of federal money available for the development of its industries.

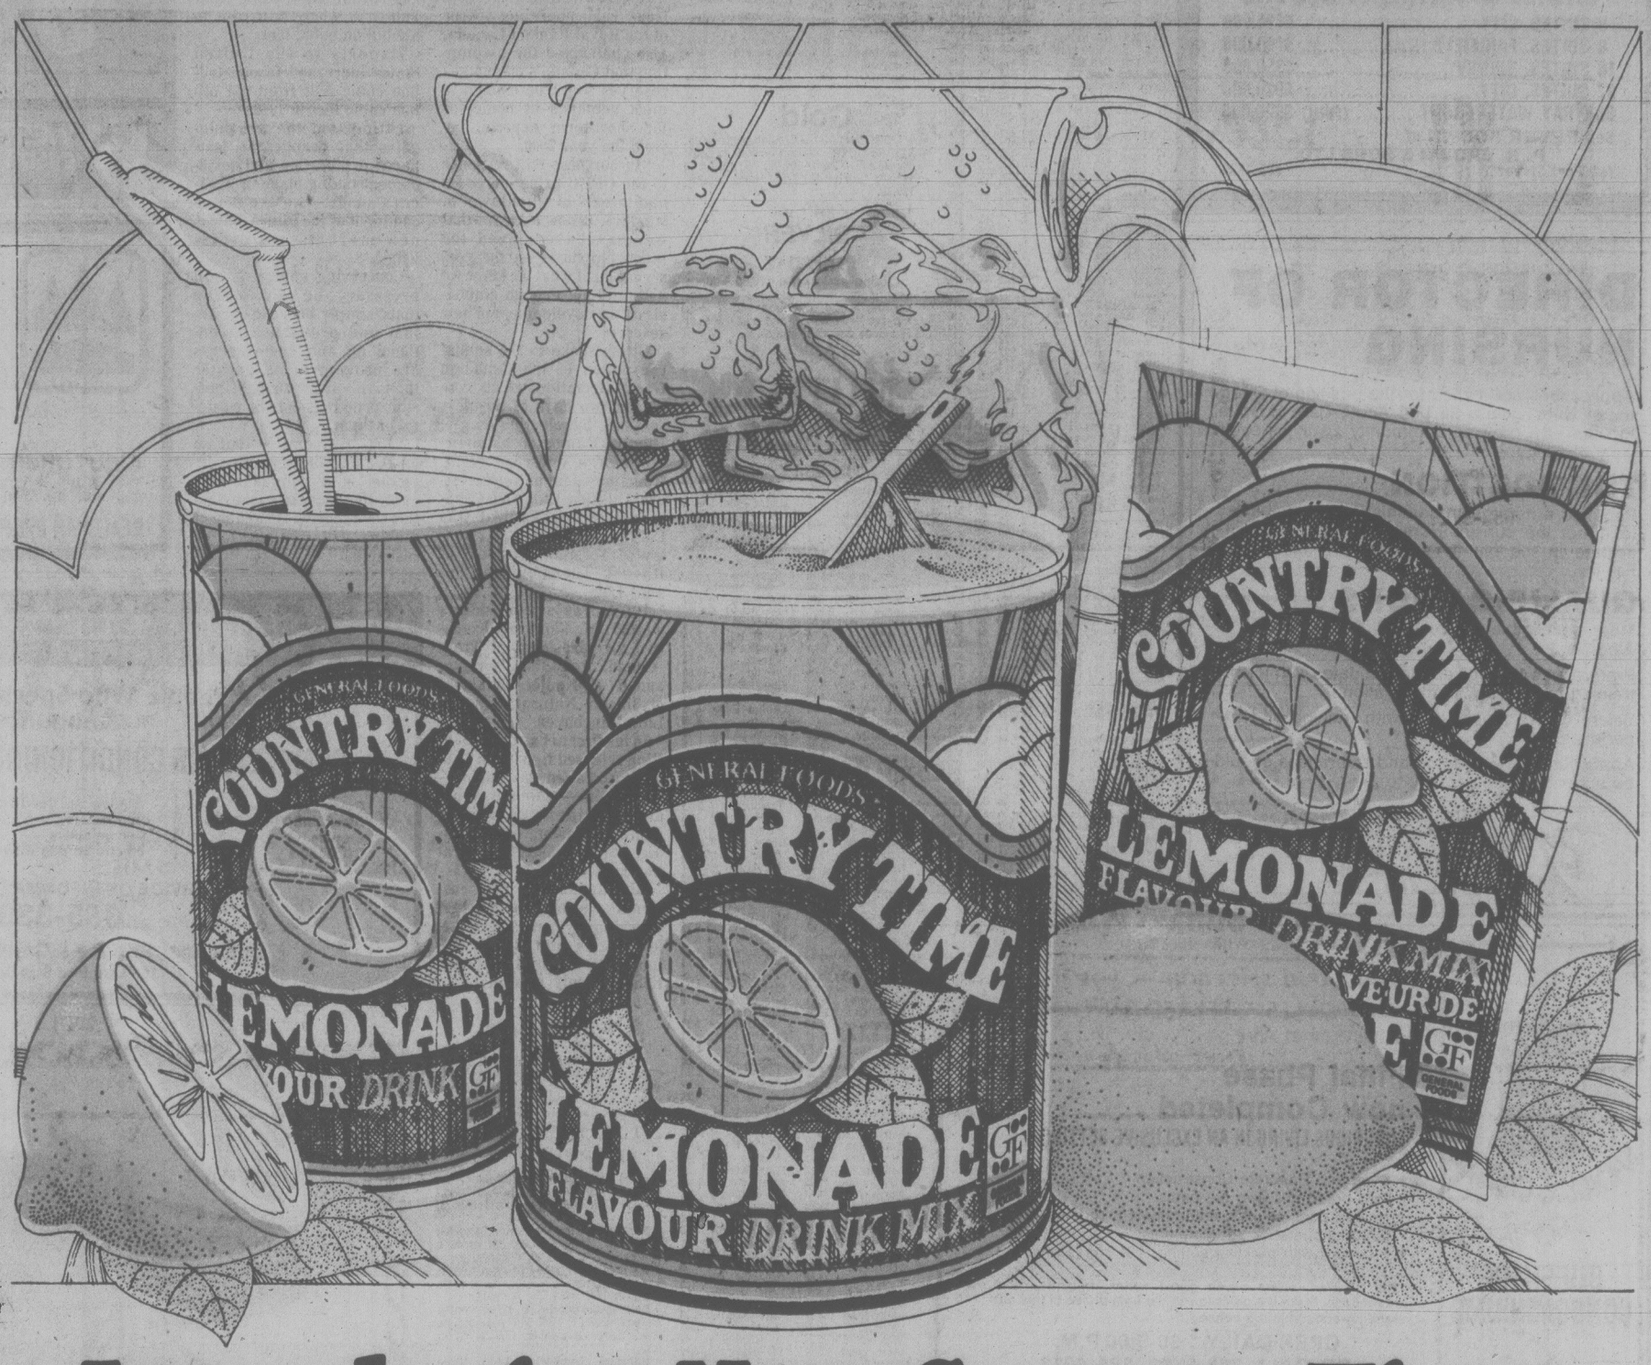

The committee says an analysis of the RDIA program has determined "that the major reason for this critical situation is DREE's inadequate management of its funding, and insufficient evaluation of its applications."

"Even more important is our conclusion that, before awarding RDIA grants, DREE apparently does not adequately address the most important question, which is the extent to which the industry is overbuilt."

U.S. Food Prices Soaring

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Soaring food prices, particularly for beef and fresh vegetables, pushed up the cost of living in the United States in April by 0.9 percent for the steepest increase in 14 months, the government said today.

The April rate, figured on a yearly basis, would amount to 10.8 percent, the Labor Department said in its monthly consumer price index — the first return to a yearly double-digit inflation rate since February 1977.

Barry Bosworth, head of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, warned last week that the consumer prices in April and May would be a "disaster," but he said some improvement may be evident during June.

The 0.9 percent increase compared with 0.8 percent gains in March and January and a 0.6 percent February increase.

The department said its consumer price index for all urban consumers stood at 191.5 last month, meaning goods that cost $100 in 1967 were priced at $191.50 in April.

Canada Hanging Back?

he was unaware of the proposed Paris meeting and declined further comment until he obtained details.

However, Jamieson said at an earlier news briefing that NATO leaders generally expressed concern about the Russian and Cuban activity in Africa during opening sessions of a two-day meeting of alliance leaders. The meeting ends today.

Cuban Vice-President Carlos Rodriguez, meanwhile, said Tuesday that an allegation by U.S. President Carter that Cuba trained and equipped rebel invaders of Zaire's southern Shaba province was "absolutely false . . . based on impudently-repeated lies."

In an hour-long speech at the UN General Assembly's special session on disarmament, he also said that, "the military presence of France and Belgium with U.S. logistical support, on the pretext of saving the lives of their citizens," in the central African country is "an ominous sign."

He defended Cuban troops' fighting in southern Angola against South Africans in 1976 and in Ethiopia's Ogaden region in 1977 and 1978 against a "foreign invasion promoted by the imperialists," his description of the Somali secessionist struggle. He said the Cubans were called in by those nations "to fight beside them to ensure their sovereignty and independence."

From Moscow, the Soviet Union accused NATO today of plotting to crush black African independence movements.

The allegation was made by the Communist party daily Pravda in its second attack in two days on President Carter's chief security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski.

Pravda said Brzezinski's television interview last Sunday, in which he talked of making the Soviet Union and Cuba pay for intruding into Africa, showed NATO is planning increased activity not just in Europe but in other continents as well.

"The question of suppressing any manifestation of national independence of African peoples is specifically being discussed there (at a NATO conference conference in Washington)," the newspaper says.

Pravda says that Brzezinski was unable to furnish proof "since it does not exist" for his allegation of Soviet-Cuban involvement in the rebel invasion of Shaba province in Zaire.

"Today's reality in Zaire is not a mythical 'Soviet-Cuban intrusion' but quite real American warplanes and Belgian and French paratroops conducting military operations," it says.

Sharp Words but Farmland Stays

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Nine specific areas of Saanich lying within the Agricultural Land Reserve will be declared sacrosanct against development and retained as farmland, Saanich council's lands, planning and housing committee agreed Tuesday night.

The vote endorsing in principle a recommendation from municipal planner Gil Laurenson came following a lengthy debate which again found council sharply split between a group generally favoring development and another concerned with protecting farmland for future generations.

And once more the main point of controversy was the future of the Blenkinsop Valley.

Ald. Geoff Vantreight, a daffodil farmer, was loudly applauded by Blenkinsop Valley farmers present when he claimed that not a single farmer in the valley is able to make a living off the land.

"All you can grow in the Blenkinsop Valley is hay," he declared. "It's not an ideal agricultural valley, so why not let it be developed?"

Vantreight said farming in this area could never compete with cheap imported produce from California, the southern U.S. and Mexico, where farm laborers work for low wages.

But Ald. John Mika and Ald. Robert Cameron took issue with Vantreight on the question of Canadian reliance on imported foodstuffs.

Mika said within a dozen years California might not be exporting any produce at all.

Noting that California has been alternately hit with drought and floods, Cameron said: "If the Americans get into tough straits they will look after themselves first. To put ourselves entirely at the beck and call of someone else is rather foolish."

Mika also took the opportunity to brand Vantreight as the developers' spokesman on Saanich council.

"I know that Ald. Vantreight has already said that this year is going to be the year of the developers, that he is all for them and that he is going to help them at election time," he said. "But we have to look beyond this fall.

"There are people in farming now who are much more interested in real estate than in farming. They deserve to have a voice on council and they have it in Mr. Vantreight."

Vantreight protested at what he termed Mika's ignorant remarks, and said he was on council to represent the interests of all Saanich residents.

Ald. Dave Paterson said if council really believed the Blenkinsop Valley should be saved for future generations, it should start buying up the land as it had done in the Swan Lake-Christmas Hill area. It was unfair to expect the landowners in question to hold it as farmland and open space without paying them some form of compensation.

In addition to the Blenkinsop Valley, the areas to be retained under ALR protection are North Cordova Bay, Oldfield Valley, Tod Creek Valley, Quick's Bottom and surrounding area, Hastings-West Burnside, Swan Lake, Rithets Bog and the Panama Flats.

The review of ALR lands was undertaken by the planning department to confirm the status of those areas that are considered suitable for agricultural production, and to weed out other parcels which by virtue of topography, size or poor soil quality should not be included in the farmland freeze.

Mayor Mel Couvelier said it was an essential task because whatever decisions council makes on retaining or excluding ALR properties must be defensible.

In other business Tuesday night, the committee recommended that a public hearing be held on a proposal by Laurenson that the subdivision minimum in the Blenkinsop Valley and in rural Saanich outside the urban containment boundary be doubled to 10 acres.

The committee also rejected a 140-name petition presented by contractor Nick Liberto requesting that the present five-acre minumum in the Hector-Liberto area be reduced to two acres.

KICKING THE HABIT . . . SORT OF

A Smoke but No Fire

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Saanich Ald. Geoff Vantreight took the cigarette from his mouth and flicked an imaginary ash into the ashtray.

"Been doing this for 2½ years," he said, "ever since I gave up smoking.

"I smoked for 40 years and towards the end I was smoking 80 cigarettes a day. I still put cigarettes in my mouth but now I never light them. After a while they get a little soggy. I go through maybe 10 or 12 in a day."

This is officially Non-Smokers Day in British Columbia and Vantreight has a lot of fun being a member of the group.

Like the day he pulled out a cigarette at a Saanich council fire committee meeting. In a reflex reaction, Mayor Mel Couvelier pulled out his pipe and lit it. Moments later, Ald. Fred Severson lit a cigarette.

Committee chairman Ald. Bob Cameron ordered Severson and the mayor to put away their smoking implements because of the no-smoking rule.

They protested that Vantreight had a cigarette in his mouth.

"But I didn't light up and that makes all the difference," Vantreight chuckled. "Severson and the mayor had to put theirs away."

But there was no fun and games at the time he quit smoking.

"I was miserable. I felt like firing everybody. I felt like selling the farm," he said, referring to Vantreight Farms, the flower and vegetable plantation at 4437 Tyndall.

"I even tried to take up smoking again but every time I lit a match somebody in my faily would blow it out. You can't quit without the support of your family."

A former smoker will remember the instant he quits, Vantreight said.

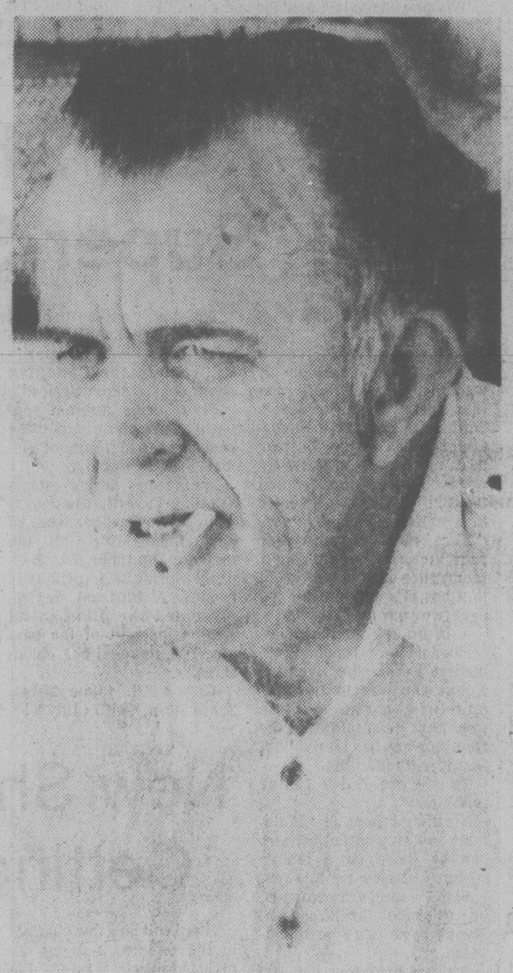

In his case it was on Oct. 30, 1975, after a hard day of arguing with provincial and federal officials trying to get vegetables excluded from price controls.

"Went through 87 cigarettes that day. I remember because I started the day with a fresh carton and later I counted what was left. I had a coughing fit at 3 a.m. Thought I was going to die."

At 4 a.m. he woke up craving a cigarette. He lit one and started coughing again.

"That's the instant I gave up smoking . . . 4 a.m. Oct. 30, 1975."

At 5 a.m. he was down at the cigarette machine trying to buy a pack.

VANTREIGHT . . .It's not lit

"I really had it bad. I'd been smoking for 40 years. But the machine didn't work. I lost my money. Couldn't buy cigarettes until the desk clerk came on at 7 a.m."

When he bought the pack and some matches, his lawyer friend reminded him he had just quit.

"I remembered all the coughing and I threw the matches back. But I kept the cigarettes. In the car the first thing I did was push in the lighter. It was a reflex reaction. But I didn't light the cigarette. Later that day I threw the lighter out the car window."

Withdrawal was severe.

Vantreight's son, Ian, who quit smoking in April, 1977, recalls being phoned at all hours of the night when Geoff was travelling.

"Got a call from dad at 3 a.m. one morning. He was in Newfoundland and there it was 7:30 a.m. He just wanted to say he had been off cigarettes for 12 days but was gaining weight fast. He said at the rate he was gaining he would weigh 586 pounds within a year. He woke me at 3 in the morning to tell me that!"

Geoff Vantreight concedes weight is a problem for reformed smokers.

"As it turned out I gained 45 pounds but I've lost 15 of that. Exercise is the important thing. You have to keep busy. You also have to keep busy to keep your mind off cigarettes."

It's been tough becoming a non-smoker but it's all worthwhile, he said. Especialy when he's the only one who can put a cigarette in his mouth at council meetings.

Meanwhile, tobacco sales continue to be brisk across the city despite the decline in the number of smokers.

"There are fewer adult smokers now but a lot of young people are taking up the habit," says Sears manager D.T. Thompson, a non-smoker.

"The trend is against smoking but young people don't seem to be getting the message. At least there is no decline in our tobacco sales."

However, Thompson was startled to notice that at a recent gathering of about 30 people there wasn't a single smoker in the crowd. Five or six years ago more than half of them would have been smokers.

A spokesman for the Old Morris Tobaconnists Ltd. at 1116 Government said sales continue to be high despite the anti-smoking campaigns.

The only change is a trend towards pipes for men instead of cigarettes.

86 Cases Of Beer In Home Stolen

Charges are pending against three juveniles in connection with a theft of 86 cases of beer from a waterfront home in Gordon Head Tuesday night.

Saanich police recovered 29 of the cases found hidden in bush along the beach near the residence, and suspect the remaining 57 cases ended up in the hands of local youths who got wind of the break-in and decided to help themselves.

The spokesman said the owner of the home, identified only as a Greater Victoria hotel owner, surprised two youths in the act of stealing the beer at about 10:30 p.m.

He lunged at one youth who broke free and ran off. The other jumped over a 25-foot embankment, rolling into some brambles, to make his escape.

Police refused to release the victim's name or address pending completion of their investigation.

Ottawa Cutback Hits Victoria French Classes

French instruction programs in Greater Victoria schools won't be expanded next year because the district will receive about $273,000 less than expected in federal support funds.

Although the demand is there, trustees decided Tuesday night the district can't afford any new programs.

The board has cancelled plans for two new immersion French kindergarten courses in the Gordon Head area this fall.

Basic French, a program where students get about 20 minutes of French instruction a day, will not be expanded beyond the 127 classrooms now using it.

The school board had planned to use the federal support grant to finance 50 per cent of the cost of starting new programs.

The other half of the cost would have been supplied under another federal grant-designated for special projects.

However, the support grant was cut from the requested $433,175 to $160,000.

Trustees decided not to use district funds to make up the difference and scaled down the total French budget by $433,368.

The board decided to use the federal money to improve existing programs, which were described by curriculum superintendent John Wiens as being in serious trouble.

Wiens told the board basic French programs were floundering because teachers are not equipped to handle the program and need constant training and assistance from qualified teacher aids.

He said teachers of immersion French programs, where students get a half-French half-English instruction, have no standard curriculum to follow and must set up their own course guidelines.

The immersion program, now in its fifth year at Cloverdale and Willows school, has no follow-up at the junior high school level, Wiens said.

He said the district is conscience-bound to continue the immersion program through high school.

"When we've started something we ought to see it through," Wiens told trustees.

Trustees Mark Fisher and Carol Pickup said the board needs to establish a clear philosophy, including a funding formula, for French instruction programs.

Pickup also called for a definite commitment by the board to French immersion programs.

'WINDOW ON THE HARBOR'

The old Oakland Industries Ltd. site on Wharf Street in the Inner Harbor has been bought and will become a "window on the harbor", former city mayor Peter Pollen announced today.

The property, to be turned into a public park, has been bought for $400,000 by the Greater Victoria Environment Enhancement Foundation (VEEF), which consists of Pollen and Victoria businessman Gordon Reeson.

Pollen said he had come to a verbal agreement on the purchase price with the owner of the property, Hans Hartwig, on Tuesday.

Hartwig said he has applied to the city for a demolition permit to take down the old fish cannery building on the property. He said he was confident that some of his crew would volunteer to undertake the demolition.

Pollen said the park would be turned over to the Capital Regional District for use of the public.

Capital Regional District board chairman Jim Campbell said the park will have shrubs, lawn, places to sit and relax and will be a "useful resting place".

Hartwig had originally intended to build apartments on the site but his proposal was turned down by the city.

Hartwig, who owns the adjacent Pacific Piledriving property, said if his proposal to build a low-profile office-commercial building on the site is accepted he will provide public access fronting the Inner Harbor.

Campbell today also announced the Capital Regional Board has agreed to buy the Simon Leiser building on Yates Street for $737,000. It has rented the building from the VEEF for the past five years.

Pollen said the purchase will pay off the Bank of Montreal loan which he and Reeson raised to extensively renovate the three-storey heritage building, which was built in 1908.

The Capital Regional Board bought the adjacent building at 534 Yates Street for $140,000 in November, 1977, and the board plans to consolidate the two structures into a single office building.

Campbell said staff now housed in rented property will be moved into the consolidated building.

MaryMoon to Hurdle Fences at Home

max low

My friend Trisha MaryMoon says that's it for Trident fence-jumping for a while. She's going to stay home and look for a few anti-war fences to hurdle in Canada instead.

Now I've got to be careful with my words here (as she's a little touchy about roles and has already told me not to open any more doors for her) but Trisha, you may recall, is the Rape Relief Centre person whose so-called low-cut blouse so incensed Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier recently.

Anyway, Trisha is also a member of the Pacific Life Community and has just returned following two more hops last week over the wire surrounding the Trident nuclear submarine base in Bangor, Wash.

They earned her — along with 263 others — an appearance at the Federal Courthouse in Seattle at 9:30 a.m. on July 10. Most, including Trisha, were charged with illegal re-entry of a United States naval installation, a violation of Title 18 U.S. Code, Section 1382.

But that didn't come until after the second hop. So let's start at the beginning.

As the U.S. authorities had already been told in advance of the mass protest planned to coincide with the special United Nations session on disarmament, they were ready. Many of the 100 or so Canadians who went down, in fact, had a difficult job getting over the border.

"Several of them had to try four different border crossings before they finally made it through," says Trisha.

On the holiday Monday a crowd of more than 1,500 people belonging to the Pacific Life Community, Greenpeace, Live Without Trident, Mobilization for Survival and several church groups gathered outside the gates. When 293 of them scaled the wire, there was a neat row of buses waiting inside to take them away.

But first it was off to the base gymnasium to be processed (fingerprinted and photographed) and lunch (chicken sandwiches, milk and apples) for the 293, who were all arrested.

After a bus trip to Tacoma, though, only five, including Julianne May of Victoria, were taken to the Tacoma city jail and charged. The rest were released in the parking lot.

Next day they were all back again at Bangor (except for the five already charged) and 266 went over the fence, taking with them a huge U.N. flag.

"This time, they gave us time to put up a tent and make a human peace symbol with our bodies," says Trisha. "Then they started arresting us."

Military guards did the arresting and then the protesters were taken by buses, some to Tacoma and some to Seattle, and handed over to U.S. marshals.

"The marshals are cool and cynical to keep up their 007 image but there was no real rough stuff," Trisha explains.

On the base, many of the protesters refused to co-operate. They sat down or limped and had to be dragged to the buses. This time, every person who went over the fence (except for two juveniles) was charged, including Trisha and Berta Schmidt of Victoria, Ren Hines and Wendy Mitchell of Courtenay and Ian Jamieson of Powell River.

That makes it four times over the Trident fence for Trisha MaryMoon but, as I said, she won't be doing it again for a while.

"I will support anything that happens down there, though, and I'm sure all the Canadians who went down feel this way," she says.

It's just that if Trisha's going to end up in jail she'd rather do it in Canada.

"I want to start working more in Canada against nuclear armament, the whole arms race and war in general," she explains. "I'm going to put my energy into opposing Canadian systems that support U.S. arms involvement."

As part of this work, she and other Pacific Life Community members will conduct non-violence training, concentrating on civil disobedience, on Vancouver Island. This summer Trisha plans to visit the clinic of Dr. Elizabeth Kubler-Ross, famed for her work with dying patients, in Escondido, Calif.

"I'm going to talk with them about transferring the diagnosis and treatment of a dying individual to a dying society," she explains with sincerity.

But this decision to work nearer home doesn't mean that Trisha feels the Trident demonstrations have been a waste of time. Far from it.

"We don't expect that any one demonstration is going to stop Trident," she explains. "What we do expect is that any stand we take and risks that go with it will help move the masses to take a stand themselves.

"It's important for people on Vancouver Island to realize that Canadians are taking a stand — and a fairly risky stand as well — and that there are a number of people who are willing to take that risk."

Edmonton Eskimos Playing Same Hand

In Montreal, on Nov. 27, 1977, in a billion-dollar stadium with a field fit for ice-fishing, a football team called Alberta Crude turned to Alberta Crud.

Edmonton Eskimos lost the Grey Cup final 41-6, primarily because Montreal Alouettes got to the staple gun first.

The gun had been left by construction workers waiting for the game to end so they could resume putting the Olympic Stadium back together on overtime. The Alouettes borrowed it, shot the soles of their boots full of heavy staples, got better traction and thus played football while the Eskimos played hockey.

It was an historic event, since it cost them nothing and was thus the first and only Olympic Stadium construction project to come in on budget.

Perhaps because they're convinced the elements whipped them more than did the Alouettes, the Eskimos aren't looking to make too many changes in defence of their Western Conference championship.

Defensively they can go with the same unit they had in the Grey Cup game, unless offensive adjustments force one or two changes, and in that case it will be a matter of shifting people they already have.

Offensively they have added the explosive Tommy Scott, the best wide receiver in the west when George McGowan isn't healthy, and if juggling permits they may add one import to the line. Throw in the possibility of rookie quarterback Warren Moon sitting on the bench instead of Bruce Lemmerman or Tom Wilkinson, and you've about reached the limit.

Wait a moment. Perhaps some explanation is in order.

I realize that picking football teams this early in the pre-season and by remote control is fraught with peril. One twisted ankle or torn knee and the whole projection changes.

On the other hand, by picking players without actually seeing them you avoid the possibility of bias. Besides, it is a well-known fact that reporters in other cities know more about the players than the coaching staffs, having met them in bars, pubs and places where girls hang out hanging out.

Here, then, the first in a series of Western Conference scouting reports, compiled at great expense after 6 p.m. when the phone rates go down:

The key to Hugh Campbell's plans for the Eskimos is McGowan, who missed six games last season and is coming off knee surgery uncertain whether or not he can play.

McGowan says the knee feels better now than it did at any time he played last year. He says he is running pretty well. Some on the team, while admiring his determination, say it just isn't so. If it isn't, look for Larry Highbaugh to see a lot more action on offence.

Scott, who played out his option in Winnipeg, will move in at slotback, leaving Stu Lang to alternate with tight end Don Warrington, flanker John Konihowski or, should he be needed defensively, with Highbaugh.

The question in the backfield is the status of Larry Washington, who was jolted out of the lineup last year after a brilliant start. Washington has a strange pelvic problem. The gristle (an old medical term I learned while carving a turkey) between the pelvic bones has deteriorated, leaving the bones grinding together. The Esks want him but they still have Howard Strickland and if Washington isn't ready from the start they aren't likely to wait.

Quarterback? Ah, yes.

The Esks made a big pitch to land Moon, the Washington Rose Bowl hero — but Wilkinson and Lemmerman are still there. One of two things will happen. If Moon looks good enough to stick, one of the other two will go on the injured list with a severe case of hurt feelings. If Moon looks good enough to play Lemmerman will be traded at some point early in the season, unless Wilkinson shows signs of succumbing to old age, in which case he could wind up as an assistant coach working with the other two.

The only other newcomer with a look on offence is David Green, the 6'4", 258-pounder from U of New Mexico, who could replace Canadian Eric Upton at guard if the numbers allow.

Defensively, Joe Hollimon comes off the injury list to go back to the left corner. Campbell could decide to use two Canadians in the backfield, since Pete Lavorato and John Farlinger have both proved they can start. That would leave Greg Butler free to replace Highbaugh on the other corner if necessary, or to go somewhere and get sick until he's needed.

Otherwise, Alberta Crude stays intact, Dave Cutler gets his usual 150 points plus, and the Eskimos perform to sellout crowds in the new Commonwealth Games stadium.

In fact, Eskimo fans view the coming season with such complacency they are concerned about two things.

Will punter Hank Ilesic — who always punts for distance but sometimes make most of it vertical — manage to hit the midfield cluster of speakers in the new stadium.

Most of all, will Cutler meet his biggest challenge? You see, at the south end of the new stadium there's this marvelous sheet of glass covering the VIP section. A kicker like Cutler, booting a short field goal, just might make histoy.

Knowing Cutler, he'll be shooting for it.

LOOKING FOR HELP is Kevin Grevey of Washington Bullets while being checked by Dennis Johnson in National Basketball Association playoff game against Seattle SuperSonics at Seattle, Tuesday. It turned out that Seattle needed help as Bullets came from a 15-point deficit to defeat Sonics 120-116 in overtime and even the series 2-2. (AP wirephoto).

Bullets Find Target Late; Down Sonics

SEATTLE (AP) — Whether you're rooting for Washington Bullets or Seattle SuperSonics, big leads spell big trouble.

"I really don't think big leads are that important," said Bullets coach Dick Motta, who watched his players dig themselves out of a 15-point third-quarter hole and climb past the SuperSonics 120-116 in overtime Tuesday night in the fourth game of the National Basketball Association championship series, now deadlocked at two wins apiece.

"I said it earlier in the series, it's difficult to keep a 15-point lead," added Motta, whose Bullets learned that lesson the hard way in the first game when they saw a 19-point, third-period lead evaporate into a four-point Seattle victory. "That 24-second clock dictates that you have to keep playing."

Tuesday night's game had a record 39,457 fans in the Kingdome on the edge of their seats throughout the final frantic minutes.

The SuperSonics appeared headed for a runaway victory after rookie forward Jack Sikma's three-point play gave them a 85-70 lead with 2:22 left in the third quarter. But suddenly, Seattle stopped running, began taking bad shots and the big lead slowly began to dwindle into a big disappointment.

"We played the last quarter and a half like we had played the last playoff series against Philadelphia," said Motta, referring to the Bullets' upset of the '76ers in the semi-finals.

"We'll come back and play harder Friday and we'll win," said Seattle guard Dennis Johnson, who scored a career-high 33 points and blocked a Bobby Dandridge shot in the final moments that assured an overtime session.

"We let them off the hook," said SuperSonics coach Lenny Wilkens. "We had it and we just weren't patient. We didn't execute down the stretch."

Down the stretch is where Washington played its best.

The Bullets tied the game midway through the final period, in which they outscored Seattle 28-19, and led 106-104 after forward Bobby Dandridge hit a three-point play with 20 seconds to go.

But clutch-shooting guard Fred Brown sent the game into overtime with a jumper from the right corner with 14 seconds on the clock.

"I thought we had it won in regulation," said Motta. "But Seattle executed that play to Freddie very well, and then D.J. (Dennis Johnson) came out of nowhere, like he has all series, to block Bobby's shot."

Guard Charles Johnson, who had scored just eight points in regulation time, took command in overtime for the Bullets, scoring the first basket on a fast-break layup, then beating Seattle's defense downcourt for a jumper that made it 110-106 with 3:35 to go.

The Bullets led the rest of the way.

McDonalds Punish Smaller Roadrunners

Victoria McDonalds combined some tough defensive tactics with excellent offensive moves and came up with a 20-10 romp over Richmond Roadrunners in a hard-fought Western Canada Junior Lacrosse League game Tuesday at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

The Bakers used a physical game to slow down the smaller Roadrunners.

"I thought they'd be harder to beat," said Victoria coach Muzz Bryant. "But we played well on defence, although we did get a little too chippy on some retaliatory stuff.

"I thought Ron Sage, Jim Boyd and Rhys Wickes really stood out on defence and Terry Jay (one goal and five assists) played his best game of the season."

Richmond's top gun, Brent Greig, was limited to a goal amd three assists as the Bakers kept the pressure off starting goaltender Mike Duch and his third-period replacement, Bill Thomas.

Victoria came up with seven power-play goals and captain Doug Angrove continued to be deadly with his club a man short. Three of Angrove's four tallies were recorded with clubmates in the penalty box.

Murray McLaren also had four goals for Victoria, Wayne Reeve added two goals and four assists, Boyd and Ed Van Dyk also contributed two apiece and singles were fired by Mike Game, Ray Pallon, Mark Roberts, Tarey Pollock and Sage.

Jim Northey led Richmond with three goals, Greg Jensen had two and the remaining singles were added by Mike Cormant, Bob Johnson, Doug Morrison and Art Hazel.

Stan Kern Shelved Until 'Super-Series'

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

Victoria Budgets' coach Harvey Stevenson doesn't want to create the impression that Northwest Major Men's Softball League isn't important, but he's decided to steer pitching ace Stan Kern towards "Super Series '78" and the British Columbia senior men's championships.

Kern, in his seventh year with Victoria, is suffering a recurrence of a back problem that has plagued him for the past two years.

A lump, generously described as the "size of a fist," hinders Kern's effectiveness. Kern, who was to try acupuncture treatments this week, has been informed the condition can be cleared "but that it will take time."

That's created a roster problem.

Northwest League regulations say only three pitchers can be listed on a team's roster. Changes are allowed, but once a pitcher is dropped, he's "burned" for the season. Meaning, he can't be reactivated.

Budgets have four hurlers. In addition to Kern, they are holdover Andy Konopacki and rookies Larry Cole and Dave Wilson.

"We've had to make a decision," Stevenson said Monday. "We've decided to go with Konpacki, Cole and Wilson. This doesn't mean that Stan can't be added later. Nor does it mean that league play isn't important.

"Kern is still the one of the best in Canada and we feel we'd rather have him healthy for the B.C. championships, and the 'Super Series,' rather than use him in league play and not give his back condition a chance to clear up.

"The big thing is to make sure he's healthy."

The report on Kern shared some of the spotlight of a conference called primarily to promote the Canadian champions' "Super Series."

Five series against top-flight American competition ranks as the highlight of Victoria's 1978 campaign.

The "Super Series" starts June 10-11 with the Royal Athletic Park appearance of Springfield (Mo.) CMI and their great pitcher, Ray Burlison. Springfield, primarily because of Burlison, has represented the Mid-Central Region in eight of the past nine U.S. national championships.

Aurora, Ill. (June 23-24), Santa Rosa, Calif. (July 8-9), Reading, Pa. (Aug. 5-6) and Portland Ray Bristowes (Aug. 12-13) all will return to Victoria for their second visits and complete this year's "Super Series" of fastball.

Reading and Victoria (as Bates) shared the 1976 world championship with New Zealand.

Budgets, incidentally, will introduce an official team song in the series with Springfield. Titled "Budgets Are Our Name," the song was written by CFAX radio announcer Barry Bowman and was recorded by one of Victoria's best-known musical groups, the Brothers Forbes.

New Shamrock Getting Nod

There will be a few changes in the Shamrock lineup tonight for their Western Lacrosse Association game against Coquitlam Adanacs at Memorial Arena.

Goalkeeper Scott Marshall, a newcomer to the team this year from Fergus of the Ontario Lacrosse Association, will get his first start in goal while captain Ranjit Dillon, who made a return to the club Saturday, has been sidelined again.

Marshall played for Fergus last year on an alternating basis and the year before that was selected as the outstanding player in the Canadian Junior "B" final.

He has been with the Rocks since the start of the season but, until now, Larry Smeltzer has played all the games for the club.

Coach Nirmal Dillon says Marshall has "looked pretty good in practice; is a stand-up goalkeeper and moves the ball well."

Ranjit Dillon, who suffered a shoulder injury in last year's playoffs, played Saturday night against New Westminster and apparently came through unscathed, but he hurt the shoulder again in a workout this week.

FIFA Ducks China Issue On Eve of Cup Opener

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter) — The International Football Federation (FIFA) has once again avoided taking a final decision on moves to admit China at the expense of Taiwan, a problem unresolved after more than 10 years of controversy.

The FIFA congress decided Tuesday night to defer its ruling on the issue for up to two years while the matter is considered in detail.

The effect of the decision is that Taiwan will retain its FIFA membership, for the time being at least. Peking's stated policy is that it will not apply for FIFA membership until Taiwan is expelled.

FIFA also decided that up to 24 teams may compete in future World Cup final series—eight more than in the present tournament, which gets under way Thursday with defending champion West Germany meeting Poland.

The decision to raise the maximum number of World Cup finalists to 24 followed pressure from Asian and African countries that their continents were not adequately represented. But it was not clear when—or whether—any tournament would be organized for 24 teams.

Havelange said at a news conference earlier this week that only seven countries have the facilities to stage a final tournament for 24 countries—Brazil, France, West Germany, England, Sweden, Italy and Spain.

Spain will stage the next tournament in 1982 but it is not thought to be in favor of 24 teams.

The congress also rejected a request from Israel for FIFA to intercede on its behalf with the European Football Union and recommend Israel's acceptance as a UEFA member.

Israel left the AFC after many Asian countries refused to play the Israelis and sought membership with EUFA instead.

Meanwhile, soccer pundits here are wondering whether the veteran West German squad can claw its way back to the form which won it the 1974 title—opening Thursday against a determined Polish team which finished third in 1974.

Poland is also looking for revenge. West Germany beat Poland 1-0 in the semi-finals four years ago, winning a farcical match on a waterlogged pitch to end Poland's most successful World Cup campaign.

In many ways, the two teams face the same problems. Both are relying on aging players, many of whom played in the 1974 finals, and badly need some new blood to provide an inspirational spark to their game.

West German manager Helmut Schoen is retiring after this tournament and would dearly like to end his 14 years at the helm by leading his country to a third victory, a feat achieved only by Brazil.

But on the evidence of recent matches, West Germany will do well to beat Poland, let alone win the trophy. Beaten in successive friendly matches recently by Brazil and Sweden, West Germany appears at its lowest ebb in a decade.

Army General Heads Security

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter) — Military authorities in the Argentine capital announced Tuesday their security plans for game days in the World Cup soccer finals and a top official said the country's future image depended on the outcome of the tournament.

General Andres Ferrero, first army corps commander for Buenos Aires, told a news conference that roads around the capital's River Plate and Velez Sarsfield stadiums will be closed on game days and entry into the area will be electronically controlled. Traffic will be banned for four hours before each match.

Even military officers in uniform will not be allowed into the area without tickets.

General Ferrero said that the country's image abroad—good or bad—depended on the outcome of the championship.

Tuesday's announcement was yet another stage in a huge security operation throughout.

Over-all security is in the hands of a specially-created department headed by an army general, who will have units of the three armed forces and the police at his disposal.

The tournament opens Thursday with defending champion West Germany facing Poland.

On Friday, it's France vs. Italy, Hungary vs. Argentina and Tunisia vs. Mexico.

Closed Circuit TV At Memorial Arena

Soccer fans in the Greater Victoria area will have a chance to watch the World Cup matches via closed circuit television at Memorial Arena. There is no home TV.

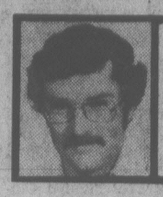

First-round matches will be telecast from Argentina June 3 (Peru-Scotland, 12:45 p.m.), June 10 (Italy-Argentina, 3:15 p.m.) and June 11 (Scotland-Netherlands, 12:45 p.m.).

Teams and times for second round matches will be announced June 11 for telecast as doubleheaders June 18 and 21.

The championship final is scheduled for June 25.

Tickets are now on sale at Memorial Arena.

Early-Morning Jaunt Becomes A Long Trek

OUTDOORS
stewart lang

Our four-wheel-drive club outing proved to be a little more than bargained for Sunday.

Three vehicles — two CJ-5 Jeeps and our Ramcharger — set off from the north end of Shawnigan Lake on what was supposed to be a relaxing jaunt in the area north of the Koksilah River.

The first part of the trip went according to schedule as we crossed the Koksilah at Burnt Bridge and meandered up a washed out road to the top of Koksilah Ridge just east of Wild Deer Lake.

The only real excitment came when the rear end of our vehicle slipped sideways into a washout — inciting the drivers of the shorter Jeeps to rush out to try and capture a "stuck dump truck" on film. Fortunately, we were able to drive right out with a minimum of effort. The rear bumper of the vehicle hit the bottom of the washout with a fair jolt but the only effect was to straighten it back to its original shape.

Then the fun began.

We drove down a good logging road into the valley in which Wild Deer Lake is situated and then turned northwest on roads paralleling the Cowichan River.

Road conditions steadily got worse. Washouts and heavy brush left just enough room for our vehicle to squeeze through with outside mirrors folded.

On one of the dicier parts of the road, while waiting our turn to navigate over the remains of a small bridge, someone else pulled up behind and joined our little caravan in an early-model Power Wagon.

As it turned out, that was our luckiest moment.

All of us pulled over to allow him past after discovering he knew far more about where we were going than our "fearless leader" of the day.

Not far along the trail the advantages of having a "no spin" rear end in an off-road vehicle became apparent. At a spot where a washout cut at an angle across the road, the Power Wagon ground to a halt several times, suspended on two diagonally-opposing tires.

Neither the Ramcharger or the two Jeeps had any trouble because the power was being diverted to the rear tire with the most traction rather than the one which was slipping.

While all this was going on, we were enjoying some breathtaking scenery along the crest of a ridge on the south end of Cowichan Lake. In between rain and hail squalls, we could see most of the lake and the village of Lake Cowichan spread out below us.

The Power Wagon driver then gave us some cherry news. The approach to the village itself — which we had been heading for — was impassable because of a washed-out bridge.

So we had to either retrace our tracks, which would have taken another four hours, or continue on around the end of the lake and connect to a major road system going into Honeymoon Bay.

We decided on the latter option.

The only way to get to the road system of the other logging company was over what must have been a skidder trail. Some fun. We hit the bottom of our front differential housing at least four or five times on rocks and just managed to get through a couple of other places that involved tight turns between stumps perched on the top of hummocks.

Then I managed to bang the rear bumper out of shape again while negotiating a steep-walled dip and our friend in the Power Wagon snapped one of his front springs in half, slowing him down for the remainder of the trip.

By now we could see some active logging across the valley and roads belonging to the system we were trying to reach.

But around one more corner, they suddenly looked as far away as the moon.

An old gravel-filled logging bridge, with a 30-foot drop on either side, had a 10-foot deep hole right in the middle where the gravel had slumped away. Less than five feet of gravel was left on one side and only a couple of stringers were left on the other. Both the Ramcharger and Power Wagon were wide enough to straddle the hole but crossing would have been extremely risky. And, for the narrower Jeeps, the way was definitely blocked.

Then the chap in the Power Wagon took the "im" off impossible by unveiling a chain saw he carries for just such emergencies.

Seven or eight sections of a large half-rotton log, laced with a number of rocks and boulders, were used to fill the hole to the right height, and we were off again.

After that it was easy. At the end of a very long and steep hill — which gave me greater respect for the courage of guys who drive loaded logging trucks in such areas — we finally made Honeymoon Bay.

Altogether, it took over six hours of concentrated driving to cover a mere 30 miles.

"Dennis is a sweet sensitive guy, and if you don't let us get married he's gonna break both your legs."

Volleyball Teams Lose

SHANGHAI (CP) — Canada's two national volleyball teams lost exhibition games to Shanghai representative teams Tuesday night, playing before more than 18,000 fans at the Shanghai sports gymnasium.

The Canadian women lost to Shanghai, 15-11, 15-1, 15-4, while the men went down to defeat after winning their opening game, 10-15, 15-7, 15-9, 15-8.

BAYI BEATEN

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuter) — Richard Tuwei, a little known Kenyan soldier, beat Tanzania's 1,500-metre world record-holder Filbert Bayi recently in a dual meet at the northern Tanzanian town of Arusha. Tuewi won in the slow time of three minutes, 42.3 seconds.

The two Canadian teams end a three-week tour of China Friday following matches in Canton and Peking.

Both Canadian squads encountered problems at the net in their games Tuesday. Their Chinese opponents also proved much faster in the backcourt.

Only briefly, in the opening men's game, did the Canadians establish any superiority around the nets where they blocked Chinese shots that had been aimed at exploiting Canada's deficiencies in the backcourts.

Mussels Open Camp Here on June 12

Approximately 30 players will be on hand June 12 when Victoria Mussels open their training camp at Royal Athletic Park for the upcoming Pacific Northwest Baseball League season.

Mussels' manager Jim Chapman said Tuesday he and coach Don Rogelstad will be holding tryouts for amateur players before June 12 and expects several Island players will be invited to the camp.

The camp will include workouts twice a day as well as intra-squad games June 16-19.

Mussels open their 72-game schedule June 20 in Bellingham and return to Royal Athletic Park the following night for their home opener against the same team.

Meanwhile, Mussels have signed Gord Hahn as a trainer. Hahn has served as trainer to Victoria Cougars of the Western Canada Junior Hockey League since the 1974-75 season.

Baker Gives Orioles Bad Time

By The Associated Press

Detroit rookie Steve Baker says he doesn't like to face the same team twice in a row and you can imagine how Texas Rangers feel about their second successive fruitless run-in with Minnesota's Geoff Zahn.

Baker, a 21-year-old right-hander pitching in only his second major league game—both against Baltimore—held the Orioles to three hits in seven innings Tuesday night as the Tigers snapped a seven-game losing streak with a 5-2 American League baseball victory.

"I kinda like being a stopper," said Baker. "It's a challenge to go in there and try to break a losing streak."

Meanwhile, Zahn and Mike Marshall combined to shut out Texas for the second time in nine days, both by 2-0 scores.

In other American League action, Boston Red Sox blanked Toronto Blue Jays 4-0, Cleveland Indians tripped New York Yankees 5-1, Milwaukee Brewers edged Oakland A's 2-1 and Chicago White Sox downed California Angels 6-2.

Meanwhile in the National League, Silvio Martinez made his major league debut by holding New York hitless for six innings as St. Louis Cardinals dumped the Mets 8-2.

Martinez lost his no-hitter and shutout in the seventh inning when lead-off batter Steve Henderson sent the ball over the left-field wall. It was the only hit he surrendered.

In other games, San Francisco Giants beat Houston Astros 1-0, Philadelphia Phillies defeated Pittsburgh Pirates 6-1, Montreal Expos downed Chicago Cubs 7-4, Los Angeles Dodgers whipped San Diego Padres 10-2 and Atlanta Braves shaded Cincinnati Reds 4-3 in 10 innings.

Baker, called up last week from Evansville of the American Association where he had a 4-0 record and 1.88 earned-run average, held Baltimore to one run over 6 1-3 innings in his debut last Thursday—a game eventually lost by reliever John Hiller. This time, Hiller came on in the eighth and retired all six batters he faced to preserve Baker's first big-league triumph.

"I don't like throwing to the same team two games in a row," Baker said. "I threw more breaking balls the last time and that made my fast ball more effective this time. But it doesn't really matter who you throw against if you're on."

New Money Bid

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian equestrian team is seeking at least $400,000 to train and field jumping, three-day and dressage teams in international competition for the next three years, team chairman Dennis Whitaker has announced.

Whitaker has unveiled his newest fund-raising scheme, the Canadian Olympic Equestrian Foundation, which he hopes will lure most of the funds from private sponsors so that the team can rely less on government support.

Watt Offered Job

MONTREAL (CP) — Tom Watt, who has coached University of Toronto hockey teams successfully for more than a decade, has been offered what amounts to the best of two worlds in his negotiations for the vacant Minnesota North Stars coaching position, the Star said Tuesday.

The university has made him a verbal offer of a multi-year contract, but is also prepared to give him a year's leave of absence to see whether or not he likes coaching at the NHL level or is successful with the professional club.

Watt is represented by Alan Eagleson, executive-director of the NHL Players' Association, in his negotiations with the North Stars. The report says Watt and Eagleson will meet with university officials today in order to get the offer from that source in writing.

FANS CHANTED 'VICTORY OR DEATH'

When World Cup Stadium Was Ringed With Steel

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter) — Security arrangements for the 11th World Cup soccer finals which kick off here Thursday are regarded as the most rigorous ever in force at an international sporting event.

But the pattern for such a heavy security presence was set nearly half a century ago when the World Cup was held for the first time across the river Plate in neighboring Uruguay in 1930.

The Uruguayan army was put on its guard when swarms of Argentine fans crossed the river chanting Victory or Death. The centenary Stadium in Montevedeo was ringed by soldiers with fixed bayonets and most of the 90,000 crowd were searched for revolvers.

In fact the less savory aspects of the sport go back 2,000 years when Chinese soldiers played soccer as part of their military training using the head of an enemy warrior as the ball.

Uruguay won the first World Cup, beating Argentina 4-2 in the final, and the following day in Buenos Aires a mob stoned the Uruguyan consulate and police fired on the hostile crowd.

The idea of the World Cup was born in Paris in 1904 when four influential Frenchmen met and decided to organize a world championship. They set up the International Football Federation (FIFA), which is still the games controlling body, but it took 26 years to turn their plans into reality.

The key man in the development of the World Cup was Jules Rimet, a diplomat who was FIFA president from 1921 to 1954 and who gave his name to the first World Cup trophy.

This statuette now is the permanent possession of the Brazilian Sports Confederation following Brazil's record third victory in 1970.

Four years after the initial tournament, the World Cup switched to Europe with Italy staging the finals, though for political reasons Uruguay declined to defend the title.

Italian dictator Benito Mussolini used the event as a propaganda ploy to boost his Fascist party—as Adolph Hitler was to use the Berlin Olympics two years later.

Mussolini wanted an Italiay victory. He got it. The Italian players picked up around 10,000 lire each and politics and commercialism were here to stay.

The 1938 finals in France took Europe's mind off the gathering war clouds and saw the advent of Brazil, which was to become the most compelling and spectacular team the modern game has known.

The Brazilians were eliminated in the semi-finals by Italy, which went on to retain the trophy by beating Hungary 4-2 in an enthralling final. The following year the clouds burst and Europe was embroiled in war.

Eleven years later, in 1950, the show was back on the road, this time in Brazil.

The Brazilian commitment to soccer was total and to prepare for the occasion they build the massive Maracana Stadium in Rio de Jeneiro capable of holding 200,000 spectators. The crowd of 199,000 which watched the 1950 final is still a world record.

Among other things, the tournament marked a low point in the soccer fortunes of England, where the modern game was developed and formalized. England lost 1-0 to the United States, a relative soccer nonentity, and left Brazil stunned and embittered.

The Brazilians themselves went into the final match 10-1 favorites to beat Uruguay and take the title, and they had a special samba written to celebrate the occasion.

They lost 2-1. The samba went unplayed and the enormous crowd alternated between stunned silence and mass hysterics.

The next World Cup, in Switzerland in 1954 was equally traumatic with the infamous Battle of Berne between Brazil and Hungary still rated the most violent game the competition has known.

Hungary's team in the mid-'50s has become a legend for its attacking flair and new concepts of soccer strategy.

But on that day in Berne, the living legends found themselves grappling with brawling Brazilians on the pitch and concinuing the battle with bottles in the dressing rooms.

Hungary won the match 4-2 and found itself facing West Germany in the final. When the talented Hungarians were two goals up in eight minutes it seemed all over. But the West Germans staged one of the most remarkable recoveries ever to triumph 3-2 and steal the title.

After their misdeeds in Switzerland, the Brazilians, who went to Sweden for the 1958 final—including a slender 17-year-old called Pele—were models of good behavior.

Their new 4-2-4 system sent them cruising through the tournament in which they met Sweden in the final, recovered from a bad start and swept to a 5-2 triump. Brazil's golden days had arrived.

The pattern was repeated in 1962 in Chile, where the Brazilians overcame Czechoslovakia 3-1 in the final, but four years later in England it was a different story.

The 1966 tournament saw the introduction of the destroyers, the hatchet men assigned to snuffing out talented opponents by the crudest means available. Pele was such a victim and Brazil limped out early in the tournament.

Rugged defence was the keynote of a series in which unfancied North Korea brought off an upset by helping to eliminate Italy, and England manager Alf Ramsey outraged Argentines by saying their players behaved like animals.

England became the first host team to win the World Cup, beating West Germany 4-2 after extra-time in the final, but four years later, in Mexico in 1970, Brazil was back in the driver's seat.

Brazil's build-up was less than smooth and included a change of manager shortly before the tournament. They seemed likely to be stretched in the final by Italy, which had hit form at the right time. But the Italians, when it mattered most, crumbled and lost 4-1. The Jules Rimet Trophy was Brazil's forever.

The 1974 tournament saw the introduction by Holland of the concept of Total Football. The Dutch, marshalled by Johan Cruyff, were a joy to watch. But West Germany, slightly less spectacular, had more character and clinched the trophy 2-1 after conceding a first-minute penalty in the final.

China Threat Of Future

LONDON (Reuter) — China will soon become a major force in world soccer, Ron Atkinson, manager of the English League's First Division side West Bromwich, said Tuesday.

He was talking to reporters after his team had arrived back from a successful tour of China in which West Bromwich—the first professional British club to play in China—won all its matches against Peking, Shanghai, Canton and the Chinese national side.

Atkinson said: "If the Chinese continue to play against top class foreign teams it will only be a matter of time before they are competing in the World Cup and the Olympic Games. I would say they are the third best footballing country in Asia."

Dryden 'The Best', Says The Computer

NEW YORK (AP) — Ken Dryden's position as goaltender for Montreal Canadiens would seem to entitle him to some inside information about the future plans of Scotty Bowman, coach of the National Hockey League team.

But the veteran netminder insists that he has no better idea of what will happen than the people who claim that Bowman, with his Montreal contract elapsed, will join New York Rangers.

"Like anybody else, I'm looking at the little factors or things that might indicate what he might do," said Dryden. "But I don't have any feelings or sense of what is going to happen.

"I've been reading the stuff in the papers, same as everyone else, but until Jean-Guy Talbot is fired as coach of the Rangers, Jean-Guy Talbot is still the coach of the Rangers," he said.

What Dryden also will be reading is that he was named by a computer as the NHL's best player in 1977-78.

"Certainly, there are better players," said the goaltender who helped the Canadiens to their third consecutive Stanley Cup championship by winning 12 of 15 games in the NHL playoffs. "Guy Lafleur (Montreal's right winger) and others are certainly better."

But the computer, analyzing all statistical aspects of play and comparing it to a computer-researched standard of performance, gave the award—and the $10,000 cheque that goes with it—to the 29-year-old veteran of seven NHL seasons and five NHL titles.

"I'm not a fan of statistics, myself," said Dryden.

For those who are interested in numbers, the goalie compiled a 2.05 goals-against average and five shutouts during the regular season.

Kozak, Shushack Qualify

HORNBY, Ont. (CP) — Bill Kozak of Niagara Falls qualified Tuesday for his 16th Canadian Open golf tournament with a one-shot victory in the Canadian Professional Golfers Association of Ontario spring tournament.

Kozak, 55, a four-time Ontario senior pro champion, fired a 71 for a two-round total of one-under-par on the Wyldewood Golf and Country Club course to earn one of two available berths in the field for the Canadian Open, to be held June 22-25 at the Glen Abbey course in nearby Oakville.

The other spot went to runner-up Mark Shushack, 27, of Thunder Bay, who put together two rounds of par 70. He has played in the last two Canadian Opens, but has missed the cut both times.

FLIN FLON TO WINNIPEG?

Billings Franchise Assured

Western Canada Hockey League owners concluded a weekend meeting in Calgary by approving an ownership change that will assure the existance of a franchise in Billings, Mont.

A Billings group headed by Joe Sample has reached a tentative agreement to purchase the Bighorns from Sheldon Ferguson of Red Deer, Alta.

Sample has informed the league that he will keep the Bighorns in Billings and Kings) will keep two teams in Manitoba.

A decision on the relocation "fully expects" to retain Bob Strum and Dave King as general manager and coach, respectively. The executive combination guided Bighorns to the Central Division playoff championship.

It has been learned, too, that the WCHL "is close" to relocating the Flin Flon Bomber franchise in Winnipeg. The league purchased the franchise last week with an eye towards moving to a more convenient geographical location than the Northern Manitoba mining town.

Winnipeg, Edmonton and Spokane all had been mentioned as possibilities. Winnipeg has the inside track, primarily because a team there (and the Brandon Wheat could be made within a week.

Flin Flon, meanwhile, may apply for membership in the Saskatchewan Junior League for the 1978-79 season.

The city of Flin Flon indicated in a letter to Wayne Kartusch of Regina, president of the SJHL, that they are prepared to meet with him to discuss the possibility.

There are currently 11 teams in the league.

Victoria Cougars were represented at the weekend meetings by co-owner Paul Panchyshyn, who has called a press conference for this afternoon.

Football Final Set Saturday

Saanich and Gordon Head clash Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Oak Bay Lions/Hornets Peewee Football League playoff final at Royal Athletic Park.

The consolation final, between Juan de Fuca and Victoria, is scheduled for 6 p.m.

Dedicated train watchers can tell you about the car-loads of automobiles, tractors, tank cars of fuel, containerized shipments. But, out of sight in one out of every ten freight cars is the biggest payload of all—pulp, paper or pulpwood.

Eight surprising facts about the pulp and paper industry

Our love affair with automobiles, the drama of petroleum and headlines about wheat deals may make Canadians forget the biggest industry of all—pulp and paper. It puts money into pockets in every corner of Canada. When the pulp and paper industry is growing and healthy, profitable and creating jobs, everybody gains. Read on:

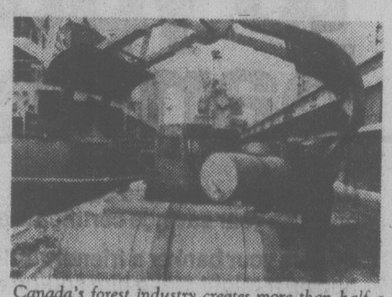

1. Pulp and papermaking in Canada pays almost five times as much in salaries and wages as the oil refiners. It pays out almost twice as much as car building and a third more than the iron and steel mills. The forest, along with manufacturing and service industries that depend on it, supports one out of ten Canadian jobs. The majority of these jobs depend on pulp and papermaking.

2. Canadian forests belong largely to the people of Canada. Only 11% of the forest land is privately owned. All the wood cut on public land is measured for government audit. The pulp and paper companies pay for every single cubic foot of wood they use. Last year, they paid the Canadian people, through their provincial governments, about $110 million for this wood. Besides this, they pay rent for the use of the land, and share costs with the provinces to protect the forests from insect and fire damage.

3. One freight car in every ten in Canada is loaded with pulpwood, pulp or paper. This illustrates dramatically the dominant position of the industry in the country's economy.

4. Animal life finds little attractive or nourishing in a mature forest. When a mature stand has been cut, young trees usually spring up. There is often a population explosion of wildlife, deer, moose, partridge, rabbits, fox, birds of many kinds.

The harvested trees are turned into jobs and money. If we manage the forest judiciously, nature covers the land with new growth quickly in a summer or two. Wildlife and sportsmen rejoice. And our grandchildren will be back reaping further crops of wood.

Canada's forest industry creates more than half a million jobs in secondary industries—people who supply helicopters, ropes and chains, tractors, fuel, fork lifts, boats, rail transportation, etc.

5. The average return on investment between 1970 and 1976 for Canadian forest products companies that report their results publicly, was 5.7%. The investment community thinks it should be at least 10% and preferably around 14%.

> Everyone should be rooting for the industry to make more profits because over 40% of them go to the federal and provincial governments in taxes. Last year, Ottawa said that, directly and indirectly, the development of our forest resource yields taxes of "roughly $1 billion". A large part of this is generated by the pulp and paper industry.

6. Since 1960, over half a billion dollars have been spent by the pulp and paper industry on processes to cut down on air and water pollution. Research is searching for ways to "scrub" the odours out of mill fumes, to reduce the need for chemicals in papermaking, even to discover entirely new processes for making paper fibre out of wood.

7. When some of our other natural resources are consumed, we will still have our forests—if we look after them. Last February, a conference of forestry ministers from the provinces agreed with Ottawa that "there need to be long term commitments by the provincial and federal governments, and by the forest industries in reforestation and in intensive forest management". Feed the goose that lays the golden eggs.

8. The U.S.A., Europe, Japan, Latin America and others pay Canada about five billion dollars every year for pulp and paper. These exports enrich our economy by about twice as much as mining or grain exports. Pulp and paper exports bring in close to $1,000 for every Canadian family. Canada competes for this export business. It is a challenge to Canada's pulp and paper industry to hold its lead, to keep costs competitive.

To compete, Canada must hold down costs through modern harvesting equipment, high productivity mills, new technology. And that calls for growth money, profits. It also calls for money from investors who see the pulp and paper industry as a safe and profitable investment, at work in a climate of public support.

This message is one of a series whose purpose is to remind Canadians of the impact of the pulp and paper industry upon the Canadian economy.

If you would like to know more about the industry, ask for the booklet "About Pulp and Paper". Write: Communications Services, Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, 2300 Sun Life Building, Montreal, H3B 2X9.

Landers Joins Red Deer

EDMONTON (CP) — Red Deer Corvets of the Western Major Fastball League have signed Pete Landers from Oshawa Chubb Security to a one-year contract.

Landers, 31, named top pitcher at the International Softball Congress tournament in Phoenix last year, said he he wants to regain the position of best pitcher in Canada from Peter Brown of Camrose Merchants.

The two pitchers met two years ago in the first annual World Series of Fastball final here. Brown emerged with a 2-0 victory.

Landers, a six-foot-three 235-pound lefthander and former pitcher for Oshawa Tony's, has competed in six Canadian championships during his 13-year career, winning three of them.

Female Reserve Officer Selected

C.F.B. BORDEN, Ont. (CP) — Lt. Gabrielle Savard has become the first female reserve officer to be selected as a member of a NATO military pentathlon team by being named to the Canadian Forces reserve officers team. Savard, 19, of Ottawa, will compete against 38 teams representing the other eight NATO countries in Bonn, West Germany, August 6-12.

Lt. Mike Moutillet, Quebec, Lt. Jim Woolford, Victoria, Capt. Don McKinnon, Guelph, Ont., Lt. Ross Matthews, Toronto, Lt. John Rich, Toronto, Capt. Charles Hamel, Lasalle, Que., Lt. Michel Fournier, Rimouski, Que., Lt. Claude Lepine, Drummondville, Que., Lt. Serges Hamel, Montreal, Lt.-Col. Georges McGrath, Canning N.S. and Lt. Jim Blanchard, Port Williams N.S. were the other reserve officers selected.

Cathy Gets No-Hitter

Cathy Wilkinson tossed a no-hitter Tuesday night while leading Victoria Skylarks to a 7-0 shutout over Victoria Athletics in a Victoria Senior Women's Softball League game at Hyacinth Park.

Wilkinson struck out eight batters and allowed only one baserunner. She lost a perfect game in the six inning when Sharleen Eden committed an error.

But Eden more than made up for the bobble by setting the pace for Skylark hitting. She bashed out three singles and a sacrifice to drive in one run and score twice.

Two-hit efforts were contributed by Crystal Lockyer, Lorna McHatie and Lisa Atkinson.

In the Stuffy McGinnis Men's League, Seaboard Construction posted a 6-1 victory over Ingraham Hotel at Central Park.

It was the ninth win in 11 games for the first-place Seaboard crew.

Mike Taaffe led Seaboard batting with a two-run triple in the sixth inning which capped a five-run splurge, another triple in the third and a single in the first.

At Heywood Avenue Park, pitcher Jim Miller struck out 11 and walked none while scattering four hits to lead Victoria Athletics to a 3-1 win over Webb and Trace in Heywood Men's League play.

Miller also supported his own victory at the plate, hitting three singles in three trips to score once and drive in one run.

In Sidney Men's Association action, Gordon Bob pitched a two-hitter to spark Tsawout to a 6-1 victory over Hermsen Construction at Sansche Park.

Capitals Score

Captital Radiators combined three opposition errors with four hits to produce seven runs in the fifth inning Tuesday en route to an 8-7 decision over Dairy Queen in Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League action at Lambrick Park.

Dairy Queen had built up a 5-0 lead before the collapse and then scored two more runs in the seventh frame before winning-pitcher Ross Barnett snuffed the rally.

Randy Price sparked Capital hitting with a triple and two singles and drove in what proved to be the winning run with a sixth-inning sacrifice.

Minister Admits Secrecy Rampant

OTTAWA (CP) — Secretary of State John Roberts said Tuesday he is convinced too much government business is kept secret.

Speaking to the Senate-Commons committee on freer public access to government information, Roberts said: "On the general question, I'm on your side rather than on the side of holding back."

Roberts, who introduced a discussion paper last year on freedom of information, promised to do his utmost to press cabinet to come to grips quickly with the issue because "in a literal sense, there is not a government policy."

Roberts also said he hopes the government will introduce a bill during the next session of Parliament to provide the public with more access to government information. He intended to draft the bill quickly.

He urged the committee file its report on the freedom-of-information discussion paper as quickly as possible, saying he "wants as much support and ammunition" as he can have when he presents the draft bill to cabinet.

Roberts said he is also convinced that reforms bringing freer public access to government information must include an independent arbiter to settle disputes about whether certain information should be kept secret.

Roberts said a court review procedure would be too long, complex, costly and result in long delays.

The appeal issue has been one of the most contentious concerning freedom of information.

Ray Hnatyshyn (PC—Saskatoon-Biggar), said any freedom-of-information law would essentially be rendered meaningless unless there is an independent appeal procedure that was binding on cabinet ministers.

The freedom-of-information issue has been simmering in Ottawa for a number of years.

But it heated up earlier this year when two provincial inquiries into alleged RCMP wrongdoing — one in Alberta, the other in Quebec — were repeatedly denied access to certain federal documents.

The Quebec commission's request eventually led to the closing of the inquiry while the Supreme Court of Canada determines whether the commission overstepped provincial powers.

The issue also came to the forefront with the secret trial of Peter Treu, charged under the Official Secrets Act.

Committee co-chairman Gerald Baldwin (PC—Peace River) called the wording of the act "obscene" because of its far-reaching implications.

On March 1, the public gained the right to look at certain government files under privacy provisions in the Human Rights Act.

Natives Win Spray Battle

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T (CP) — The Canadian Coast Guard will have to return to cutting brush by hand at its 285 Mackenzie River sites this summer instead of using a toxic herbicide.

The Northwest Territories government informed the coast guard in a letter Monday that it was revoking a permit for use of a lethal herbicide and a soil sterilant it issued in January.

Dan Billing, territorial environmental protection officer, said he wrote the letter as a result of last week's protest by a Northern native group.

The Dene Nation claimed the plan to spray the toxic chemicals on a total of 192 acres of land threatened the health of animals and people in the Mackenzie Valley.

Billing said the permit was issued only after he received reassurances from the federal department of agriculture that the herbicide was used regularly on 20 million acres of Canadian farmland.

If the coast guard wants to try the spraying again in the future, it first "will have to convince the people of the Mackenzie Valley that it is safe," Billing said.

Israel Boycotters Get Horner Warning

OTTAWA (CP) — Industry Minister Jack Horner warned today any company complying with the Arab boycott-of-Israel campaign will be named by the government.

But the minister then refused to name one company that the government knows did comply with the boycott last year.

Horner was giving some clarification in the government's program designed to combat the Arab and any other international commercial boycott.

Under government policy any company that complies with such boycott prohibitions as trading with Israel is denied the substantial federal assistance offered to Canadian foreign traders and businessmen.

But up until now it has refused to name companies which have complied with the boycott and thus lost government assistance. Now those companies will be named.

Horner commented in an interview after tabling a report on the application of the government anti-boycott policy, covering the period Aug. 1, 1977 to Jan. 31, 1978.

That report mentioned a company which agreed to a general boycott clause in a $25 million contract and had government services withdrawn last August. Later it re-negotiated the contract and government services were restored.

Horner told reporters the decision to name individual companies which comply with boycott provisions was made by the cabinet last December.

Canada will continue to withdraw government assistance from any company which agrees to suspend all commercial dealings with one country in order to secure a contract with another foreign nation.

It is primarily Arab countries which have demanded companies sever commercial links with Israel as a condition of doing business with them.

Horner said Kuwait and Libya are hardliners in pushing the boycott. Saudi Arabia was showing some willingness to negotiate.

LeBlanc Will Pay His Fine

OTTAWA (CP) — Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc said Tuesday he will pay a $30 fine for illegally parking hs car on government property and forget about his tiff with a commissionaire.

LeBlanc was refused permission by 21-year-old Mike Whittaker to park his car in a basement parking lot in the government building because he didn't have the required permit.

So instead he parked it in a fire lane despite warnings from Whittaker it might be towed away.

When LeBlanc returned 30 minutes later, his car had been towed away.

LeBlanc had a few words with Whittaker and then called the RCMP about his car. But nobody brought it back.

Morale Damaged

OTTAWA (CP) — An Ottawa Liberal accused the Opposition Tuesday of undermining the morale of the public service with ill-founded, abusive attacks.

Lloyd Francis (Ottawa West) said the Progressive Conservatives had jumped the gun.

Francis acknowledged the study had indicated — as the Conservatives say — that 16 per cent of government employees sampled in the capital are over-classified.

But Francis said it was wrong to extrapolate the study's findings to 300,000 public servants across the country.

RCMP Can't Close Files

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCMP hasn't yet found a way to close files on 993 organized crime figures though some have died since special tax investigation units began compiling the files in 1972, a royal commission into RCMP wrongdoing was told Tuesday.

RCMP Sgt. Victor Pobran, whose Ottawa unit has 96 such files, known as 347s said they are reviewed annually.

If the person has died or is in prison, the file is placed in a "dormant" category. But what if the person has paid his tax bills and no longer is involved in "organized crime?" Is there any way of formally closing such files?

"Not at this time," Pobran replied. He told Commission Counsel Sidney Leterman of Toronto that a method of closing the files is being sought.

Much information in the files comes from confidential tax records on the "targets" under a 1972 agreement with the revenue department. The information is supposed to be used only in tax investigations of organized crime figures.

However Pobran testified that in at least three cases in his division, revenue officials had been asked for — and had given — information to help police in other investigations.

The revenue department had supplied a "missing person's" address and present employment April 25, 1977. A couple of months later, it supplied the address of a "murder suspect" wanted by RCMP in British Columbia. Last Dec. 8, it supplied the address of a kidnap suspect wanted by police in Cornwall.

Pobran agreed with Leterman that there wasn't the "remotest" tax interest in any of the three cases. However, the information was "biographical" rather than "financial" and for this reason Pobran didn't feel it violated the non-disclosure provisions of the Income Tax Act.

HAMILTON (CP) — The city's public library has received a unique request from Moscow.

Lenin State Library in that city has asked to borrow a copy of Jazz Exercises And Pieces For The Young Jazz Pianist, a 1965 book by Oscar Peterson.

Janet MacNeil, regional reference librarian, says the book is on loan to someone in the city and the Lenin library will have to wait.

Gov't Pensions Urged To Protect Workers

TORONTO (CP) - A government-run insurance plan should be established to guarantee workers do not lose pension benefits if their employer goes bankrupt, an official of the United Auto Workers said Tuesday.

Claude Poulin, a pension expert at UAW headquarters in Detroit, told the Ontario royal commission on pensions that such a plan would have protected a number of the union's Canadian members who lost benefits when their employers went under in the early 1970s.

He said a pension insurance corporation created in the United States by the 1974 Employee Retirement Income Security Act guarantees pensions up to $1,000 a month if there are insufficient funds in a plan that is terminated.

The insurance corporation has the right to sue a company terminating a pension plan for up to 30 per cent of its net worth to recover money owed to the pension's fund.

The corporation can also sue a parent company to recover money owed to a pension fund.

Laws governing the funding of pension plans are more stringent in Canada than in the United States and large liabilities are less likely to develop, Poulin said.

★ Quebec Probers Pack Up

MONTREAL (CP) — The Keable commission officially closes its downtown office today after holding 132 hearings, questioning 188 witnesses and pleading a key constitutional case before the Supreme Court of Canada.

Commissioner Jean Keable made the announcement in a letter, released Tuesday, to Quebec Justice Minister Marc-Andre Bedard. But there is still a chance that the inquiry will resume its work if it obtains a favorable ruling from the Supreme Court.

Keable said the commission will cease all activity pending the high court ruling in the case, which pitted Quebec and six other provinces against Ottawa in a dispute over provincial authority to investigate the RCMP.

Keable's inquiry into police wrongdoing has been blocked from any hearings for the last three months by a Feb. 21 ruling by the Quebec Court of Appeal.

In the meantime, the only source of work has been the legal preparation for the appeal before the Supreme Court. But this dried up after pleas were completed in four days of hearings last week.

The high court ruling could come this summer but is more likely to be delayed until the fall. Court sources say they have no idea of the date.

Campbell Trial Argued

MONTREAL (CP) — Lawyers for former National Hockey League president Clarence Campbell have moved to quash his committal to trial on conspiracy charges in the Sky Shops Affair.

Campbell's lawyers, Harvey Yarosky and A. J. Campbell, argued in their application Tuesday in Superior Court that Sessions Court Judge Luc Trudel erred in committing their client to trial Feb. 13 since there was no evidence in the record from which he could have formed a judicial opinion.

The motion is to be considered June 29.

Campbell, Senator Louis Giguere and Bahamas businessman Gordon G. Brown, face charges in connection with an alleged conspiracy to use Giguere's influence in 1971 and 1972 to get government approval of a lease extension for the duty-free Sky Shops Export Ltd. store at Dorval airport near Montreal.

Giguere allegedly received $95,000 after he used his influence to obtain the lease extension.

A fourth accused in the affair, Montreal businessman Louis Lapointe, died before his trial.

N.B. Grit Says Tories Get It All

FREDERICTON (CP) — The opposition house leader in the New Brunswick legislature charged Tuesday that not a single student, "half-ton truck, wheelbarrow or whatever" can be hired for work on a major highway through his riding without "a slip from the defeated Tory candidate."

The only exceptions, said Liberal leader Norbert Theriault, are people who are approved by the returning officer in the riding or the president of a local Progressive Conservative party committee.

But Transportation Minister Wilfred Bishop dismissed the charges as ridiculous and said it "absolutely isn't being done." He challenged Theriault to provide names or produce one of the slips of paper.

Quarrel over Alta. Dam Lulls

BROCKET, Alta. (CP) — The dispute over control of an irrigation dam on the Piegan Indian reserve lulled Tuesday as officials awaited results of contempt-of-court proceedings against Indian protestors.

The court action was sought by Lethbridge Northern Irrigation District after the Indians, who say they own the land under the dam and want payment for irrigation services, refused to allow the irrigation authority to open the dam, despite a court injunction ordering them to do so.

When irrigation officials approached the blockaded dam Monday, accompanied by about 75 riot-equipped RCMP, Peigan Chief Nelson Small Legs Sr. only allowed the officials to inspect a log-jam at the site and the canal flood gates.

The RCMP converged on the dam site in two 47-passenger sightseeing buses and several patrol cars. Under their protection, a helicopter with irrigation officials on board landed and officials toured the site.

The reserve is about 90 kilometres west of Lethbridge.

Six unarmed Indians were standing near the dam at the time, and about another 40 band members were standing nearby beside two teepees set up at the site.

Neither the Indians nor irrigation district officials would comment on what actions could be expected after the contempt-of-court charge is heard in the Alberta Supreme Court at Edmonton today.

Although RCMP Supt. A. J. Niedzwiecki said Tuesday the force considers the issue a civil dispute, he said the injunction would have to be upheld if irrigation authority members pressed for it.

The central issue in the dispute is contested ownership of 4.1 acres of riverbed land on which the dam sits. The Indian band says these acres have never been transferred to ownership by the provincial government.

In Ottawa, an Alberta Conservative sought Tuesday to have the federal government condemn the action of Peigan Indians.

Ken Hurlburt (Lethbridge) said the result of the Indian action is to deny desperately-needed water to 800 farmers on 114,000 acres of land. He said the Indians have broken the law.

He was unsuccessful in an attempt to move in the Commons a motion that would have had Northern Affairs Minister Hugh Faulkner notify Paegan Chief Nelson Small Legs Sr., immediately "that under no condition can he condone the actions of the Peigan band in defying the law. . . ."

Tame Phone Talk

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Except for a few profanities, a transcript of a telephone conversation four or five years ago between a Progressive Conservative government backbencher and a businessman who has accused the Newfoundland government of wrongdoing turned out to be pretty tame when tabled Tuesday in the legislature.

"It's a very innocuous document," opposition leader William N. Rowe said after one of his Liberals was ordered by Speaker Gerald Ottenheimer to table the transcript.

Conservative MLA Robert Wells, who admitted that the transcript resembled a phone conversation he may have had with Andrew Davdison in 1973 or 1974, drew laughter from the government side as he read the document aloud after receiving a copy.

Wells, a St. John's lawyer who served in the cabinet of Premier Frank Moores for 14 months starting in June, 1975, asked the speaker what he should do about the swear words while reading the transcript aloud.

"I think you could blank them out," Ottenheimer said.

The transcript appears to be of a rambling phone conversation between Wells and Davidson, former vice-president of Scrivener Projects (Nfld.) Ltd.

Two affidavits signed by Davidson, tabled earlier this month by Liberal MLA Steve Neary, accuses the government, Moores, some of his ministers and the PC party with demanding kickbacks from Scrivener in exchange for hospital construction contracts.

During the last several weeks Neary and Liberal MLA Roger Simmons made several references to the transcript and said it quoted Wells as saying the government was made up of a brunch of crooks.

Yukon Probe Blasted

WHITEHORSE, Yukon (CP) — Hours after the Stratton inquiry report into alleged misconduct of government officials became public Monday northern politicians described it as a whitewash.

"It was a whitewash," said Yukon Progressieve Conservative MP Erik Nielsen in an interview. "It's a rather repulsive, perverse result to the whole exercise."

In an 80-page report, inquiry chairman and Alberta lawyer J. J. Stratton found that four government officials did not act dishonorably in withdrawing misconduct charges against a local lawyer, but had, rather, made errors in judgment.

The four named by the inquiry were Yukon Commissioner Art Pearson, Deputy Commissioner Doug Bell, territorial government legal adviser Padraig O'Donaghue and his assistant adviser Sidney Horton.

The inquiry began after Whitehorse lawyer Allen Lueck held a news conference last July to explain why he had resigned as legal adviser for the Council for Yukon Indians.

Territorial legal adviser O'Donaghue subsequently laid charges of professional misconduct against Lueck based on his alleged breach of confidentiality to his client.

Red Tape Protested

BURLINGTON, Ont. (CP) — The head of an adoption service for foreign children went into the second day of a hunger strike Tuesday to protest what she says is red tape in the federal immigration department.

Helke Ferrie, president of Kuan-Yin Foundation Inc., has not eaten since Monday at 6 p.m. because she says immigration officials deliberately and arbitrarily are delaying the processing of visa applications for three children in India.

Two of the children are awaiting emergency medical treatment in Canada and the third is being adopted by a couple in Trail.

The hunger strike is Mrs. Ferrie's second. She went without food for 4½ days in 1972 to protest delays in determining her suitability to adopt children.

More Auto Plants Planned - Horner

OTTAWA (CP) — Trade Minister Jack Horner said Tuesday he hopes to be able to announce in June the establishment of up to three or four new automotive industry plants.

Horner's remarks came in the Commons shortly after a United Auto Worker's official said the Canadian automotive industry could be obsolete within seven or eight years unless major new investments are made by auto manufacturers.

Replying to questions from Ed Broadbent, the New Democratic Party leader and MP for the auto industry city of Oshawa, Horner said he hopes to have written confirmation of the plants to be constructed when he makes the announcement.

The government has recently been negotiating with companies in response to criticism that Canada does not have its fair share of industry jobs despite the Canada-U.S. free trade autopact.

Earlier, Basil Hargrove, assistant to the Canadian director of the UAW, told a Commons committee that new investment is particularly required in the automotive parts manufacturing sector of the multi-billion dollar industry.

If the country does not get a fair share of investment, Canada could have a trade deficit of $20 billion in automotive parts alone within the next 10 years, Hargrave said.

In 1977, the country rolled up a $1 billion deficit in automotive trade between the U.S. and Canada. The country had a $2 billion surplus on assembled vehicles but there was a $3 billion shortfall in parts.

Hargrave said the government must put pressure on major companies to increase their investment in Canadian industry.

"The problem is not just the present structure of the industry but the threat to the future since at this critical time of major new investments we have not been getting our share of investment," Hagrave said.

He added that investment in Canada by the big four — Ford, General Motors, Chrysler and American Motors — in the 1970s has represented only five to seven per cent of the North American total. Canada represents about 9.5 per cent of the market.

Dredging Bids Discussed

TORONTO (CP) — Robert Schneider, former vice-president and general manager of Canadian Dredge and Dock Co. Ltd., testified Tuesday that he went to many meetings with executives from other dredging companies where bid-fixing was discussed.

Schneider, 55, was testifying at the Ontario Supreme Court trial of 11 men and nine companies charged with defrauding public agencies of more than $4 million.

Schneider told the court of a meeting he had in 1968 with Hugh Martin, one of the accused. He said they discussed the period during the late 1950s and early 1960s when dredging companies were trying to bid competitively and some companies folded as a result.

Schneider said he and Martin agreed that dredging companies were making better money since the practice of getting together to discuss bids started.

He said he also discussed with Martin a plan to purchase Canadian Dredge and Dock — a deal that eventually went through.

The trial continues.

TAILORING FRENCH HAS FAILED

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Attempts to bring Joual, the colloquial French of the Quebecois, more in line with modern Parisien French have not been successful, a University of Montreal sociologist said Tuesday.

Stanley Aleong told sociologists and anthropologists at the University of Western Ontario that certain words and phrases no longer are officially acceptable even though they have been part of the culture for years.

"There's been officially a long tradition of purism and anglophobia," Aleong said.

Words cannot be changed the way one changes clothes, he said, adding that often the wrong words have been chosen for the transition.

Aleong, working on a paper dealing with French equivalents in citizens' band radio jargon, used the example of the word vente, which means sale, and which the Quebec government has tried to replace.

Sneeze Powder Causes Cancer

OTTAWA (CP) — The importing, sale and advertisement of certain sneezing powders which contain a cancer-causing element has been banned in Canada, it was announced Tuesday.

Powders containing the chemical 3,3'-dimethoxybenzidine have been banned under the Hazardous Products Act, the consumer affairs department said in a news release.

The ban covers any substance used to induce sneezing which contains the chemical or its salts, whether or not the product is called sneezing powder.

The release warned consumers to take extreme precautions in disposing of any such sneezing powder they already own to prevent inhalation of the chemical.

It said the powder should be wrapped first in newspaper, then plastic and placed in the garbage.

Retailers and wholesalers with larger quantities should contact the nearest office of consumer affairs. The substance should not be placed in an incinerator or in a garbage compactor truck, it said.

DURANTE MAKING SLOW RECOVERY

SANTA MONICA — Comedian Jimmy Durante, hospitalized 11 days ago, is "showing signs of improvement," a spokeswoman reported.

The 85-year-old "Schnozzola" was in fair condition at St. John's Hospital, where he is being treated for an upper respiratory infection aggravated by aftereffects of a stroke that partially paralyzed him in 1972.

"His vital signs are stable and he is showing signs of improvement," a hospital spokeswoman said. "For example, his appetite has improved."

He will be in hospital for at least another week, she said.

Doris' Windfall Swept Away

EDMONTON — A divorced mother of five who says an Edmonton credit union deposited $30,000 in her account by mistake was charged Tuesday with theft over $200.

Doris Anderson, 36, said she went to the Edmonton Savings and Credit Union in April after she made a phone check and was told she had more than $30,000 in her account.

"They scurried around for 20 minutes and said the money was mine, that it had been deposited April 19. I couldn't believe it."

Anderson said she thought the money must have come from a friend who had paid an $8,000 bank loan for her this year without telling her.

She said she was called down to the credit union 10 days ago and told the computer had made a mistake. She was asked to return the $30,000.

However, Anderson said, she has spent $25,000 to buy a double-size trailer, retrieve her car and pay off some small loans to friends. She went off welfare when told the $30,000 was hers.

The credit union refused to comment Tuesday on why Anderson has been charged with theft. A head office statement said the matter was now up to the courts.

"Beyond that, we have nothing more to say at this time," said branch manager Jim Hadfield, who refused to confirm or deny Anderson's story.

Disco Sally, the Go-Go Granny

NEW YORK — Seventy-seven and 54 equals Disco Sally, that hip, Tequila Sunrise lady who seven nights a week partakes in the party lights of the chic and cliquish Studio 54.

"I'm gonna dance 'til the day I die," says Disco Sally, who is really 77-year-old Sally Lippman, a widow, former lawyer, platonic lover of nice young men and one heck of a hustle, on and off the dance floor.

Disco Sally generally arrives at Studio 54 between 1 and 2 a.m., hob-nobs and discos with the likes of Dustin Hoffman, Truman Capote and Bianca Jagger for a few hours, then heads for breakfast.

She gets home generally "at 6:30, 7:30, 8:30 or 9:30 in the morning, depending on where we go and what we do."

Disco Sally says she performs at Studio 54 because "it's got me hypnotized." Prescription sunglasses are part of her outfit because she "can't stand the glare. When I first went there, I used to put cotton in my ears. Now I like it. I love it. It's fun and I can tell you, it's changed my life."

Mrs. Lippman's social day begins about 9 p.m. with the arrival for dinner at her co-op of a select all-male group of "seven or so."

"They're such nice boys. But they all think I'm their mother," Sally says while watching over her veal stew and pot roast for the night's guests. "They tell me everything, all their troubles. But you know, seven kids can eat you out of house and home."

She lives on Social Security and income from the estate of her husband, who died three years ago.

New Royal Love Flap

LONDON — Britain's royal family, which weathered the end of Princess Margaret's marriage, today faced the plan of a family member to marry a Roman Catholic who is divorced.

Queen Elizabeth's top advisory group was meeting today to consider the marriage plans of Prince Michael of Kent, 16th in line to the throne.

Prince Michael is expected to announced with a few days his engagement to Baroness Marie-Christine von Reibnitz, 33, a convent-educated Austrian whose six-year marriage to a London merchant banker ended in divorce in 1977.

Both Catholicism and divorce have been anathema to the British royal family in the past.

Princess Margaret gave up Group Capt. Peter Townsend because he had been divorced, and any report of a Catholic bride for Prince Charles is immediately squashed.

Under current law Michael, 35, the Queen's cousin and an army major working in the ministry of defense, would have to renounce his claim to the throne and remove himself from the line of succession if the marriage went through.

He and the baroness could not be married in a Church of England church, which is Britain's "established" church.

Now I'm Ancient, Says Cary Grant

SEATTLE — Cary Grant says a film comeback is out of the question because people loved a younger, dark-haired hero — and because he never wants to come back.

"Movies?" asked Grant. "I don't want to make the blasted things."

The 74-year-old Grant who was a matinee idol for millions still managed to turn heads Tuesday as he strolled through the lobby of a hotel at a convention of Variety Club International, a charity for children.

But heads turn "not as much anymore," said Grant. "I'm ancient.

"Also I find that when they're looking at me, they think about the movie they saw of me last night with nice white teeth and stuff and dark hair."

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 30-year-old Mill Bay man, who escaped from jail in Ontario almost three years ago, was sentenced in Victoria provincial court Tuesday to a total of four years and four months in penitentiary for four offences to which he pleaded guilty April 17.

Vaughan Grant Armstrong was sentenced to four years for extortion, one year for obstructing justice and one year for jail escape, to be served concurrently, and to four months consecutive for attempted escape.

Crown counsel Wayne Smith said the manager of a Bank of Montreal branch near Ottawa got a phone call Dec. 30, 1974, ordering him to bring $10,000 to a bus terminal locker or dynamite attached to a friend's car would be exploded.

The manager called police and Armstrong was arrested at the bus terminal after taking a package which resembled money from the locker.

The obstruction of justice offence occurred the following day. Armstrong obtained cash bail of $1,000 after telling a justice of the peace he had no criminal record, had no outstanding charges, had never been charged before and that his real name was Allan. Smith told court that Armstrong is the man's true name and that he has a criminal record including armed robbery.

He escaped custody June 5, 1975, leaving by open doors which others who had planned an escape had used. He came to Mill Bay where, he told Judge Fred Green, he had the best two years of his life.

Armstrong also said he deeply regretted the extortion as a very foolish, impulsive act.

The attempted escape occurred Feb. 6, 1978, in Duncan when he ran away from sheriff's officers taking him from the RCMP station to the courthouse. He was caught one block away.

Defence counsel Barry Mah Ming said he had been told by Armstrong that there never were any sticks of dynamite attached to any car at any time.

In sentencing him, Judge Green said he had to be particularly concerned at the protection of the public. He said there is national and world-wide concern for real or apprehended acts of violence such as extortion.

Two teen-agers who were sentenced Friday by Judge Blake Allan to one day each for breaking and entering received nine-month sentences Tuesday from Judge Harold Alder on a similar charge.

Stephen Craig Hewson, 18, and James Olfrey, 17, both of 10 Eaton, pleaded guilty to a May 15 break-in at 1101 Burnside.

Following the guilty plea, Crown counsel Don Laughton withdrew a charge of possession of stolen property.

Laughton told the court Olfrey entered the residence through a sliding glass door and let Hewson in through the front door. They then took out stereo equipment, Laughton said, and hid it in some bushes.

Defence-lawyer Brian MacKenzie said the two teenagers went to the address to look at a car for sale. He said his clients had already made a written apology to the victim.

After learning that the two had been given nominal, one-day sentences Friday (Hewson received two concurrent terms for breaking and entering and theft over $200), Alder decided on the nine-month term, adding that he would recommend the term be served at the Boulder Bay prison camp.

Alder denied bail to a 23-year-old woman charged with breaking and entering and using a stolen credit card.

Kathryn Elleen Piercy, 2211 Shelbourne, was charged with the two offences and defence lawyer elected trial by judge and jury.

Following the bail hearing, a preliminary inquiry date of Aug. 3 was set.

Inquest Ruled Out In Traffic Fatality

GANGES — There will be no inquest or charges in the recent death of a Vancouver man in a Salt Spring Island traffic mishap.

William Boyce was killed when his motorcycle collided with a motor home on the Fulford-Ganges road.

RCMP here said it was presumed Boyce was in the wrong lane when he rounded a curve and met the camper coming in the opposite direction.

Police said the victim was travelling with a group of motorcyclists, two or three of whom started a skirmish with the driver of the camper. The outbreak was stopped by other motorcyclists.

Police refused to identify the driver of the camper for fear of reprisals against him. He was visiting Salt Spring from the Interior.

Damage to the camper was about $1,500. The motorcycle, a 1963 model Harley-Davidson 1200, was a writeoff.

Girl Missing

MONICA ROSE JACK

RCMP are appealing to the public for help in locating a 12-year-old girl who was abducted May 6 while riding her bicycle on Highway 5 at Nicola Lake, about 12 miles north of Merritt.

Police said Monica Rose Jack was forcibly taken into a camper truck and her bicycle thrown over a bank by the lake.

The girl is described as four feet eight inches tall, 90 pounds, with long auburn hair, brown eyes and appears three or four years older than her age. She was wearing a white T-shirt with pink floral pattern, brown cord pants and blue running shoes.

Post Office Taking Rights Won in Bargaining- CUPW

37,500 Jobs Daily

OTTAWA (CP) — The average number of jobs available on a daily basis was 37,500 for the three-month period ending April 30, up two per cent from the previous period, Statistics Canada reported Tuesday.

But compared with the same period a year ago the number of vacancies fell 10 per cent or 4,100.

For every 1,000 existing jobs in the period, there were only four vacancies available, the same as in January but down from five per 1,000 in April, 1977.

The highest vacancy rates were in Alberta, where there were eight jobs open for every 1,000 existing positions.

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) said Tuesday it appears that Postmaster-General Gilles Lamontagne wants to guarantee a postal strike by proposing to take away rights already gained by mail sorters and postal clerks.

"If anyone wants a strike in the post office, it has got to be Mr. Lamontagne," CUPW president Jean-Claude Parrot said in a news release.

Lamontagne said in the Commons Monday the post office wants the freedom to hire casual employees, to contract-out work and to measure the quantity and quality of postal workers' production.

The postal workers have been without a contract for almost a year and they now are negotiating with the post office with the aid of a three-member conciliation board.

The union has accused the post office of violating provisions in the last contract aimed at protecting employees from adverse effects of technological change and cutting down on the use of casual, non-union employees when there are CUPW members available to do the job.

The post office has denied that it violated the old collective agreement, signed in 1975 following a seven-week strike.

In the current round of negotiations CUPW has asked for a total end to the use of casual, non-union employees and the right to veto any proposed technological change which would adversely affect union members.

Parrot said the union has proposed a full set of contract demands, but the post office has not come up with any new counter-proposals.

"Mr. Lamontagne obviously does not know that the use of casual labor has been the cause of more disruptions than all the other issues combined and he doesn't seem to know that the employer made a commitment in 1975 to eliminate the use of casuals as much as possible," Parrot said in his news release.

"Any fool can see that it is the use of casuals that is the problem, not the clauses contained in the collective agreement which management has violated with impunity."

Parrot criticized Lamontagne for saying he wants the power to contract-out work and services.

"Did it ever occur to him that a better solution might be to improve and expand the postal service?"

Parrot said the union is "willing to exhibit flexibility, "but it is impossible to be flexible if the employer refuses to make any counter-proposals and remains completely intransigent."

The union will not be in a legal strike position until the conciliation board has completed its hearings and issued a report.

Law Grads Finding It Easy

University of Victoria law graduates are having no trouble finding articling positions after all.

Although a serious shortage was predicted, it appears all of the school's 67 law graduates who wanted articling positions have them, according to a UVic law school spokesman.

Some graduates did not actively seek articling positions.

At the University of B.C., which graduates about 280 lawyers a year, the situation was slightly worse, but better than predicted last winter.

Undersea Quakes Rattle C. America

MANAGUA (AP) — Two strong undersea earthquakes seconds apart shook most of Central America Tuesday night. They caused some panic, broken walls and window panes and power blackouts in Nicaragua and Costa Rica but no casualties or serious damage was reported, officials report.

The quakes struck at 9:05 p.m. EDT and 10 seconds later and registered 5 and 5.5 on the Richter scale. The epicentre was about 96 kilometres under the Pacific off the coast of the Nicaraguan port of Corinto, 165 kilometres northwest of Managua, the Nicaraguan Seismographic Institute said.

Parts of Managua were blacked out. Communications were cut indefinitely with Corinto, and Telex and telephone links between Managua and other cities were interrupted briefly.

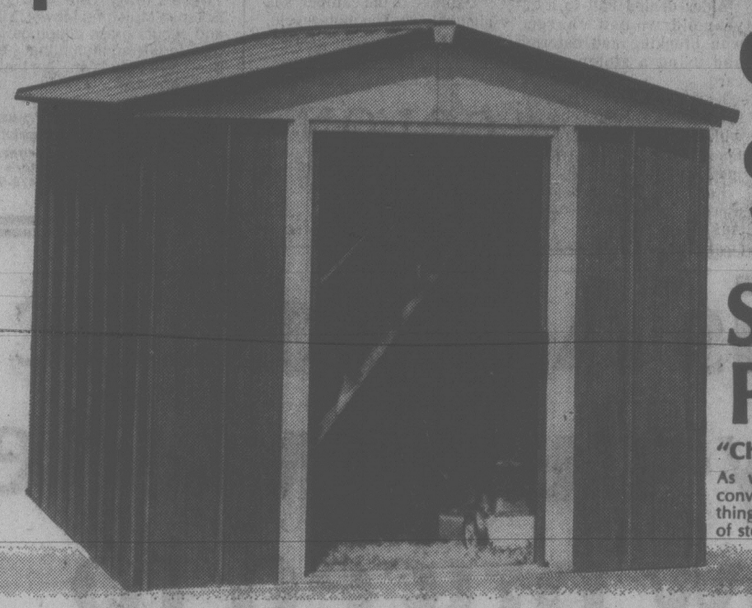

The Nicaraguan Red Cross said many people in Managua were treated for nervousness and hysteria. There was panic also in San Jose, the Costa Rican capital.

The quakes were felt to a lesser degree in Honduras and El Salvador. Only slight tremors were felt in Guatemala, where at last 23,000 persons were killed in quakes in February 1976..

An earthquake measuring 6.2 on the Richter scale levelled Managua in December 1972, killing more than 5,000 persons.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. A quake registering 5 can cause considerable damage, 6 severe damage and one registering 7 is a "major" quake capable of widespread heavy damage.

Islanders Awarded Heroism Medals

Five Vancouver islanders were among 14 persons awarded Stars of Courage and Medals of Bravery for exceptional acts of heroism at a cermony held at Government House in Ottawa.

Ten-year-old Todd MacKay of Port Hardy received a medal of bravery for rescueing his three-year-old brother Shon from a 27-inch culvert near their home.

Shon who was playing with other children on Oct.23 and fell from the top of a culvert. Todd jumped down and grasped him, but by the time help came, the boys were carried under by the raging turrent.

They were carried along about 400 feet, with Todd hanging onto Shon, and were found clinging to one another when their father lifted the lid of a manhole.

David Christney, coxswain of Bamfield Lifeboat 104, received a star of courage and his crewmen, Robert Murray Amos, Clifford Charles and Martin Charles, got medals of bravery for saving three fishmen and three members of a helicopter crew off the reefs of Cape Beale on the night of Feb. 28, 1976.

Christney and his crew went to the rescue of three fishermen in driving snow and gale-force winds. Two were found on a liferaft and a third perched on the reefs.

A U.S. Coast Guard helicopter was called in to assist and airlifted the lone fishermen from the rocks, while the other were taken aboard the Canadian Coast Guard Lifeboat 104.

But while returning to shore, the helicopter ran out of fuel and fell on the reefs. The lifeboat crew answered the call for help and at great risk plucked the men from the rocks.

Something Different for Supper

Mrs. Moore died suddenly last week. The accompanying article is one of several she wrote before her death. Her publisher has advised the Times her new cookbook is now being mailed.

By MARY MOORE

If all you have is half an hour to get dinner ready I have an idea that will please you. It is different and economical for these days of high-priced food.

QUICK TOP-OF-STOVE BANANA SAUSAGE SUPPER
(Serves 4 to 6)

1 lb. pork sausage meat
¾ c. chopped onion
One 19-oz. can tomatoes
1 tbsp. lemon juice
½ tsp. thyme
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. pepper
5 c. thinly shredded cabbage, packed
3 medium-sized bananas, green tipped (not ripe)

In large frying pan break up sausage meat (a potato masher does a good job), add onion and cook over medium heat until meat is cooked and onion is limp. Stir in tomatoes, lemon juice, salt, thyme and pepper and simmer, uncovered for 5 minutes. Add cabbage, cover and simmer 12 minutes longer, stirring once or twice. Peel bananas, cut into ¼" slices and add to frying pan to heat through.

Serve with sliced garlic buttered bread: While meat and onion are cooking, under broiler crispen bread on ONE side, amount depends on the number of slices of bread your family will eat. Remove from oven, butter other sides then sprinkle them sparingly with garlic salt. Place on broiler pan again. Put into centre of oven at least 8" below preheated broiler and heat until bubbling and golden.

Sausage meat, cabbage and bananas combine for a different dish.

PINKO MICE BLAMED

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — This time, it appears, science has really ripped it.

The recent report that hamburgers cooked the conventional way might cause cancer has aroused the U.S.'s outrage like nothing since the capture of the Mayaguez.

In the past couple of weeks, I have read and heard dozens of angry remonstrances and many dark mutterings of revolt against that finding.

Typical of the firestorm reaction was the tirade of my friend Clanker, who called up to enlist me in a protest movement.

"This time they've gone too far," Clanker fumed. I could feel him glowering even over the phone.

"When they told us cigarettes might give us cancer, I switched to cigars. When they told us cyclamates were carcinogenic, I switched to saccharin. When they told us saccharin caused lesions in rats, I gave up dieting. But I'll be hanged if they can make me give up hamburgers."

"Hold on there, Bertie," I said. "It isn't fair to imply that science is depriving you of life's pleasures. Scientists didn't put carcinogens in those items. They only found them there."

"I know that," Clanker retorted. "But why is it they only find carcinogens in things people like? Why don't they ever find them in things we abhor? Why don't they ever tell us we can get cancer from broccoli, for instance?"

I said, "Are you suggesting there may be something sinister behind the hamburger experiments?"

"You bet your buns I am. I'm suggesting this may be part of a commie pinko conspiracy to undermine the American way of life. Today, it's hamburger. What will tomorrow bring? Will they tell us next that cancer may be caused by apple pie and motherhood?"

I tried to reason with Clanker, which is usually a bootless endeavor.

"How can you say such things?" I cried. "There has been nothing to indicate that any of the cancer researchers is anything less than a red-blooded, true blue, 100 percent patriotic American. If you have any evidence to support your dastardly insinuations, let's hear it."

"Who's talking about the scientists?" Clanker exclaimed. "I'm talking about the mice they used in the experiments. How do we know they weren't commie mice? How do we know foreign agents didn't slip into the lab and substitute mice that already had cancer? How do we know commie scientists haven't created a strain of mice that are allergic to hamburgers, cigarettes and artificial sweeteners?"

Some people, of course, see a conspiracy behind every test tube, so I'm not buying Clanker's theory just yet. Meanwhile, does anyone know how to administer a rodent loyalty test?

Chocolate Brownies Easy to Prepare

2 squares unsweetened chocolate (2 ounces)
⅓ cup shortening
⅔ cup sifted rice flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 eggs
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Melt chocolate and shortening together over hot water (or use microwave oven). Cool. Sift flour with baking powder and salt twice. Beat eggs until light. Add sugar, vanilla, then chocolate mixture, and blend. Add flour and mix well. Pour batter into a greased 8x8x2-inch pan. Bake at 350° for 30 to 35 minutes (325° if using glass baking dish). Do not overcook. Cool slightly. Cut into squares. Makes 16 brownies.

It's your choice: Plain or Fancy

DON'T OVERLOOK RICE PUDDING

Rice pudding has always been considered a perfect family dessert. Easy to make, low cost, nutritious, but as a party dish, however, rice pudding far too often has been overlooked.

Ironically, it requires very little effort to create an elegant rice pudding — one that will prove you're the "hostess with the mostest!"

For example: bake a prune meringue on top. The added touch instantly converts a family dessert into one fit for any dinner party menu. And you've not only added a look of elegance, but you've also provided still more nutritive value.

So, when you're having company, serve them a well-thought-out menu and be sure to include a fancy (but easy) rice pudding to end the feasting on a healthy note.

RICE PUDDING WITH PRUNE MERINGUE

3 cups cooked rice
3 cups milk
¾ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon butter or margarine
2 eggs, separated
2 teaspoons vanilla extract
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
1 cup cooked pitted prunes, mashed
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Combine rice, milk, ½ cup sugar, salt, and butter. Cook over medium heat about 20 minutes, or until creamy, stirring often. Beat egg yolks; stir in a small amount of hot mixture. Return all to hot mixture. Cook 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat; add 1 teaspoon vanilla. Turn into a 1-½-quart baking dish. Cool to room temperature. Beat egg whites with ¼ cup sugar and cream of tartar until stiff but not dry. Fold prunes, lemon juice, and remaining vanilla into egg whites. Spread meringue over pudding. Bake at 350 degrees for 12 to 15 minutes, or till peaks of meringue are golden brown. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

JUBILEE RICE PUDDING

2 cups cooked rice
2 cups milk
¼ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 envelope whipped topping mix, prepared
¼ cup port wine
1 can (21 oz.) cherry pie filling

Combine rice, milk, sugar, and salt. Cook over low heat until thick and creamy, about 30 minutes. Add vanilla. Cool. Fold in whipped topping. For sauce, blend wine and cherry pie filling. Layer pudding and cherry sauce in parfait glasses or spoon pudding into dessert dishes and top with sauce. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Few Dishes Beat Homemade Soup

tiny bennett

Soup-making on a regular basis can provide homemakers with an endless supply of nourishing foods, a check to food wastage, and a considerable saving in the budget.

Best of all, the making of soup from basics is an interesting exercise in good cooking, with almost no limit to the variety.

The French, among the best and most frugal of cooks, eat soup three times a day, and the addition of a fine soup at each meal not only gives a fine touch, but acts as a filler and helps save on the expensive entree items.

On a three-week trip to the south of France many years ago my wife and I used to line up for the students'/workmens' dinner where, by law at that time, the smaller restaurants would serve a good meal for what was then about 40c a head.

We'd sit at a big table with students and enjoy soup, a small main entree with lots of superb vegetables and finish off with fresh fruit, cheese, a loaf of French bread and a carafe of local wine.

The bread and the wine were included in the total price, as was the tip, because we always made sure of that before we selected where we would dine that night.

The big deal was the soup which was always magnificent and which came in a huge china tureen that was always refilled once and quite often twice, for our healthy young appetites. Two or three large plates of great soup, a four ounce veal cutlet with lots of vegetables, plus the bread, plus the wine, plus fruit and plus cheese — now that was a feast.

It was also filling, and extremely well balanced nutritionally.

In North America we tend to regard a dish of soup as a quickie snack, readily available and easy to whip up from a can or pack. But this attitude denies the real purpose of soup in the life of the family. It is, or should be part of the ongoing procedures in the day by day work in the kitchen, something the cook handles as casually and regularly as brewing a pot of coffee, or making toast for breakfast.

Soup begins with a stock, which can be meat, fish or plain vegetable stocks usually become the base for vegetable soups.

The meat stocks are best confined to the use of beef bones — plus meat, chicken carcasses or bought chicken back and neck, with a well scrubbed and scalded foot added for richness.

Lamb bones have a distinctive flavor that should only be used in lamp-type soups such as Scotch broth that I cook up with lashings of barley or pearl barley.

Veal bones make a delicate broth but it is almost impossible to get a calf's foot that makes jelly. If you can use pork products, pig's feet with a tankard of ale is MY idea of a great lunch.

To make a good soup stock, put a broken-up, raw chicken carcass into a two gallon lidded pot, cover with cold water and heat slowly.

Add two small onions (one stuck with two cloves), add one carrot cut in one inch segments, one stalk of celery cleaned and broken in half — use one of those outer stalks that you usually throw away — add six whole peppercorns, one tsp. salt, one tsp. dried thyme, one large, or two small imported bay leaves and one tsp. dried parsley.

Skim off and discard the scum, which is actually harmless but clouds the stock, give a good stir to release the last of the scum, throw it away, turn down the heat, cover and simmer on low-low heat for several hours. Cool a little, strain through small mesh, chill in the fridge and after discarding the upper fat layer, you finish up with a pot of clear chicken stock.

Discard all the strained vegetables, put the chicken bones back in the pot, repeat with the covering water, the vegetables and the herbs, and get a second and more powerful batch of stock from the final simmer. Beef stock is made in the same fashion, but browning the beef/bones and vegetables in a 400 oven first makes for a glorious golden stock.

To make a big batch run through a week, don't chill and remove the fat, simply strain through several layers of cheese cloth, and then stir well, and pour into screwtop jars to keep in the fridge. The fat will rise to the top and form a protective layer. To use, you remove this hardened fat lid, discard, spoon the clear, jellied stock into a saucepan, heat, taste and season, and then add the materials that make the soup of the day.

What have you got? What's cheap? What do you fancy?

A small can of peeled Italian plum tomatoes, simmered in your golded stock, tested for taste, beaten up with a whisk and strained, is a glory of a soup. Pour the strained soup into a tureen, and slosh on dollops of thick sour cream, and you will hear the angels sing.

Poach any fine vegetable in the stock, from the woody, discard ends of asparagus, to fresh young, or even old and stale leeks. Put all in the pot through a blender, strain through cheesecloth and reheat, and you have gourmet soups from what you might have discarded. Wanna add fresh or sour cream — who's stopping you?

Rice Flour Sponge Cake

2 eggs, separated
½ cup sugar, divided
¼ cup sifted rice flour
Dash salt
1 teaspoon lemon juice

Beat egg whites until frothy. Add 1½ tablespoons sugar and beat until stiff but not dry. Sift together twice rice flour, remaining sugar, and salt. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored. Add lemon juice and four mixture. Beat only until smooth. Add a small amount of beaten egg whites to yolk mixture and stir until blended.

Fold in remaining egg whites with a rubber spatula. Pour into a small loaf pan (7⅝x3⅝x2½ inches) which has been lined with wax paper. Cut gently through batter to remove any air bubbles. Bake at 350° for 25 to 30 minutes. If using glass baking dish, reduce temperature to 325°.

Invert onto cake rack and let cool before removing from pan. Makes 4 servings.

'PEANUTS' FOR POT

LONDON (CP) — Two airline employees who found illegal herbal cannabis worth £12,500 ($25,000) in the cargo hold of a 747 have been rewarded by customs with £5 each. Derek Doughty and Paul Gibbs said: "We've been rewarded with peanuts for our efforts." Later, a customs spokesman said: "If they contact us we may consider increasing their reward."

Why Not Be a Smart Cookie?

hilda beastall

Homemade cookies are likely to become new favorites in your home if you make them as carefully as you do bread. Treat them as part of the daily food, realizing that by leaving out baking soda and refined flours and the overload of sweetness they can indeed be considered as contributing vitamins and minerals needed by growing youngsters and active adults.

Other grain flours besides the commonly used wheat flours occur in some of these recipes, the ideas for which have been collected from several sources. The many people who cannot eat wheat products will therefore be able to add a cookie recipe or two to their limited collection.

Salt has been omitted from some recipes since other ingredients such as black molasses make salt unnecessary to bring out flavor. Vegetable oil, sunflower oil, as an example, is an unsaturated fat, believed by most nutrition authorities to be less harmful to more people that solid fats of animal origin, particularly for those who consume meat two or more times daily.

These cookies are all the "drop" kind, easily handled by using the wooden mixing spoon to pick up a walnut-size piece of the cookie mix and a broad knife to push it from the spoon in a small mound.

The three recipes make a total of around six dozen cookies, a useful assortment for the live-aloner to last three or four weeks with refrigeration, or for one week's supply for a family of four at the rate of a dozen and a half each.

Hi Protein Cookies

1 Tbsp. dark molasses
1 Tbsp. sugar
½ cup sunflower oil or soft vegetable margarine
1 small egg
1 cup oat flour (see note following)
2 Tbsp. soy flour
2 Tbsp. non-instant skim milk powder

NOTE: oat flour in these recipes can be made by running the same amount of oat flakes through a hand mouli grinder. A few flakes escape whole but this is no disaster.

Blend moist ingredients and sugar together. Add dry ingredients and mix well to form stiff cookie dough.

Drop on lightly-greased cookie sheet in small mounds. Flatten with bottom of small glass dipped in cold water.

Bake in fairly hot oven at 190 deg. C for about 15 minutes. Makes 12 to 15 cookies.

The next recipe can be made to go on same large cookie sheet since they bake at same temperature for same period.

Carob is the ground product of the carob bean with the slight, pleasant flavor of chocolate but lacks the caffein-like stimulant found in chocolate. It is also low in fat, 2 per cent cmpared with 52 per cent in chocolate.

The few grains of salt bring out the flavor but be sure the nuts you use are not salted. If they are salted, leave out the additional salt. Raw peanuts are about the best, though hazels or filberts give a fine flavor.

There is no wheat in this next recipe.

Carob Cookies
(contain no wheat)

¼ cup sugar
¼ cup oil or soft margarine
1 small egg
½ cup buttermilk (see note following)
¾ cup oat flakes
1¼ cup oat flour (ground oat flakes)
¼ tsp. salt
¼ cup carob powder
½ cup ground uts (unsalted)
(If needed, 1 Tbsp. water to make drop mix)

NOTE: for buttermilk from powder, mix 2 Tbsp. buttermilk powder into ½ cup water. Stir until dissolved.

Mix first four ingredients. Add remaining dry ingredients.

Mix well, using extra water if needed.

Drop in small amounts on greased cookie sheet. Bake in fairly hot oven at 190 deg. C for about 15 minutes. Makes 40 to 42 cookies.

Now for Graham Flour Cookies; these are wheat.

Graham Flour (Wheat) Cookies

¼ cup sugar
¼ cup oil or soft margarine
1 small egg
2 Tbsp. orange juice
1¼ cups graham flour OR
¾ cup unbleached flour plus
¼ cup wheat germ and
¼ cup bulk bran (not packaged)

Stir first 4 ingredients together; mix in graham flour OR the substitute flour with wheat germ and bran.

Drop in small mounds on light-greased cookie sheet.

Bake in moderate oven 177 deg. C for about 12 minutes. Makes about 24 cookies.

The Carob Cookies are dark brown and chewy with the buttermilk and oats together keeping them on the soft side.

The Hi-Protein Cookies are a delicate light brown and crisp.

Graham Flour (Wheat) Cookies are a delicate light brown and of a lighter crispness than the Hi-Protein Cookies.

With variation in texture and flour, the three recipes seem worthy of a place in the permanent file.

Sizes have been deliberately kept small to aid calorie counters in consuming less cookies without quitting entirely. While these cookies have their calories, the only "empty" calories are in the small amounts of sugar in each group. That is why it is reasonable to include such foods in a meal as part of its total nutrition. Calories are as necessary as other values in daily food.

PROTECTION FOR BEES

LONDON (CP) — New rules to protect honey bees from infection from imported honey bees carrying a parasitic mite called Varroa jacobsonii come into force July 1. Imported bees already need health certificates, issued after inspection of hives in the country of origin. This inspection now must include a search for Varroa jacobsonii.

FINE HERB SALAD

2 pounds small, new red-skinned potatoes
Salt
¼ cup finely chopped shallots
1 clove garlic, finely minced
2 tablespoons chopped fresh chives
3 tablespoons finely chopped parsley
1 tablespoon chopped fresh tarragon (or half that amount dried)
¼ cup dry white wine
1 teaspoon red wine or herb vinegar
3 tablespoons walnut oil (see note) or use peanut, vegetable or corn oil
Freshly ground pepper
Lettuce leaves, for garnish

Put the potatoes in a kettle and add cold water to cover and salt to taste. Bring to the boil and cook until tender, 15 to 20 minutes. Remove from the heat and drain.

As soon as the potatoes are cool enough to handle, peel them. Cut them into quarter-inch-thick slices and put them in a mixing bowl.

Add the shallots, garlic, chives, parsley, tarragon, wine, vinegar, oil, salt and pepper to taste. Toss well Garnish with heart of romaine lettuce leaves or other greens.

Yield: Six to eight servings.

Note: Walnut oil is available in specialty shops dealing in imported foods.

Cutting Out the Half-Truths in Nutrition eating right

By RUTH FREMES and ZAK SABREY

Last week we began by answering the most frequently asked questions that we and other nutritionists receive. We have answered some of them before but because there is so much controversy about some nutrition questions and because there is a great deal of publicity for nutritional half-truths, we find that they need to be repeated. For example our first question . . .

How safe are foods, like hot dogs, with so much nitrite added to them?

These foods are safe, particularly since the amount of nitrates and nitrites has been reduced in new health regulations. The levels allowed are necessary to cut down the risk of having botulinum bacteria, which produces deadly poisons, in these foods. The often talked about risk of stomach cancer from having nitrites in foods is not proven. For example, the incidence of stomach cancer has been decreasing in the United States even though nitrites are added to foods. The level now allowed is enough to protect the food from bacterial growth, and that is necessary.

Although we don't favor the use of additives to foods for cosmetic reasons, we recognize the importance of certain chemicals to preserve the food and to make it safe from deadly bacteria. In the past, nitrites were added in amounts to kill bacteria (a necessary function) and make the meats look red and fresh-like (a cosmetic function). Now, our regulations have limited the amount to that needed to stop the deadly bacteria from growing. That's sensible and safe.

Do eggs raise your blood cholesterol? How many eggs can be 'safely' eaten each week?

It all depends on what else you are eating, in what quantities, on your age, sex and family history, on your exercise, smoking and drinking habits. Don't give up in des pair. The truth of the matter is there are many factors that affect your blood cholesterol, diet is only one factor (but an important one).

The diet that is likely to raise your blood cholesterol is one that is high in fat, particularly saturated fat from meat, cream, butter, eggs and foods with palm or coconut oil. For some people, too much sugar will mean more fat in the body. Excessive amounts of salt are known to raise blood pressure which leads to a greater risk of a coronary. Eggs are really only part of the story.

Eggs are high in choles terol and their fat is of the saturated variety. Cholesterol in the diet does not mean a rise in blood cholesterol unless it is in excessive amounts or accompanied with lots of saturated fat. This means that fried eggs should be given up in favour of boiled or poached, especially if you will have the poached ones on unbuttered toast. It also means that if you are carefully watching and limiting the amount of meat, in your diet, trimming the fat off the meat, using little or no butter or margarine, avoiding cream and non-dairy whitners in your coffee and tea (use milk instead), drinking skim milk and using it with your cereal, then you can have more eggs than someone who doesn't do all or most of these things.

Considering all these dietary measures, and providing that you are not under doctor's order to limit eggs, you could have 3 to 7 eggs a week.

Why do nutritionists come out against low-carbohydrates diets when they are effective in reducing weight?

For a diet to be effective in reducing somebody's weight, it has to take off fat, be bearable for the person to stay on for a long time and not jeopardize his or her health. Low-carbohydrate diets do not do any of these. Weight loss is most at the start of a low-carbohydrate diet and most of that weight loss is water, not fat. These diets tend to increase the body's production of ketone substances, which are rather smelly. They are excreted in the urine, permeate the breath and are part of the prespiration. After several weeks on the diet, the person loses his or her appetite and with eating less, the health hazards multiply.

Cutting down on carbohydrates will mean virtual elimination of cereals, fruits and vegetables from the diet. These happen to be important sources of vitamins and minerals. So the diet becomes nutritionally unbalanced. The person will be able to sustain health as long as the body's reserves of these vitamins and mineals can hold out, which is usually a few weeks. After that nutritional deficiencies set in, and the body is weakened. Add to this, the complications of the loss of appetite, at about this point, and the situation becomes progressively unhealthy.

Carbohydrates are the best fuel for muscles and the brain. They are used efficiently by these tissues. The body protects against short periods of carbohydrates deprivation by converting protein components to carbohydrates. But, the body's capacity to sustain this conversion is limited. This is why people who follow low-carbohydrates diets experience periods of fatigue (reflecting low energy for muscles), and dizzy spells (meaning low energy utilization in the brain and the central nervous system).

It is important to insist that when you lose weight, that it be done safely. There is no sense trading off a problem that you can see in the mirror, like obesity, with many other problems, that even your doctor will have difficulty diagnosing, like nutritional deficiencies.

Are infants likely to be overweight; why the push to control weight in infants?

This is a difficult question, since it is hard to know when a healthy weight ends and a state of overweight begins. However, we know that for many overweight adults, the probem starts early in life. How early? We don't know for sure; but probably soon after the first year of life. So, what are we going to do: put your kids on a weight reduction diet? No! Children should be allowed to eat a balanced diet and to develop a healthy appetite for as long as they are physically active and can avoid becoming excesssively obese. The key is in eating a balanced diet and being physically active. The diet should be low in sugared and in fried foods and high in fruits, vegetables, milk and cereals. Physical activity is essential. Most kids, given half a chance would play, run and be active. We should encourage this pattern of behaviour, rather than insist on having them 'sit quietly' and 'behave themselves'. If excessive obesity occurs, eliminate the highly sugared and fried foods and encourage exercise. Your child will use the extra weight in the next growth spurt.

Until recently, it was believed that during infancy, overeating results in an increase in the number of fat cells in the body. This is now believed to happen at all ages not just in infancy. That is to say: the way we become obese and accumulate fat is by increasing the number of fat cells and stretching them to as much as four times their regular size. An obese person would succeed in shrinking the fat cells to their original size, by dieting and exercising; but is not likely to reduce the number of fat cells. This is why it becomes easy to regain the weight. This is an area of active research at present.

TOTAL HEALTH PUSHED BY W.H.O. SPECIALIST

HALIFAX (CP) — The world medical community has generally ignored the relationships between nutrition, health, environment, housing, education and employment, an international medical specialist said here.

Doctors around the world must also become more concerned with adequate water supplies and food sources, said Dr. Aleya Hammad of the World Health Organization in Geneva.

She made the comment in an address to the second annual International Congress of the World Federation of Public Health Associations.

Because primary health care is aimed at meeting the priority needs of the people, the medical community must listen more closely to the wishes of the people in the development of national health policies.

"This process has to be followed by a planning and programming process undertaken at all levels. . .and involving an equitable allocation of resources," Dr. Hammad said.

"The promotion of health as a way of life, when taken as a national decision, is usually followed up by concrete activities in many sectors such as education, agriculture, public works and industry."

As part of that process, she said, all countries must de-emphasize construction of large, expensive medical institutions and concentrate more of their resources on promotion of general health.

"These hospitals not only absorb most of the countries' resources, but do not and will not in themselves produce health."

Tasty Baked Pudding

4 eggs, beaten
3 cups milk
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons vanilla extract
2 cups cooked rice

Combine all ingredients and pour into a 2½-quart baking dish. Set dish in a pan of hot water. Bake at 300° for 1 hour. After 30 minutes insert spoon at edge of pudding and stir from bottom. Continue baking until knife inserted near centre of pudding comes out clean. Serve hot or cold. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

RAISIN RICE PUDDING

Prepare Old-Fashioned Rice Pudding. Add ½ cup seedless rains to mixture before baking. Spread cooked baked pudding with 2 cups whipped cream and sprinkle with a mixture of 2 teaspoons sugar and 1 teaspoon cinnamon. Brown quickly under broiler.

EARLY VILLAGE FOUND

PERTH (AP) — Scientists in western Australia have found an archeological site they say pushes the first known human habitation of Australia back to 100,000 years, 60,000 years earlier than previously thought.

The site on the Murchison River produced 30 stone tools plus fossils, said a paper delivered at a meeting of the Western Australian Anthropological Society.

FILTERS CATCH ON

LOMBARD, Ill. (AP) — In 1977, production of filters for household water filtration systems passed the one-million mark, says the Water Quality Association.

"Production of three to five million units is expected in the years immediately ahead," said Douglas Oberhamer, executive director of the association.

Antibiotics Still Controversal in Stock your health

By L. L. COLEMAN, M.D.

I introduced a thought to a group of friends. They looked at me as if I had gone out of my mind. I feel so strongly about this that I decided to direct the question to you in the hope of getting a more objective opinion.

Question: Since some livestock are given antibiotics and since antibiotics can cause side effects in some instances, why can't the meat and poultry we eat adversely affect humans? — Mrs. D.I.L.

Dear Mrs. L.:

For almost 30 years, small doses of antibiotics have been given to animals in order to protect them against disease. In some instances, the antibiotics were given to help increase their growth.

Since that time, controversy has existed all over the world about the possible threat to human health when antibiotic-treated animals were eaten.

Early in 1970, the U.S. Federal Drug Administration created a large task force to explore every aspect of this problem. Two years later, this group of surveyors issued a report that said, "Continuous low-level use of antibiotics in animal feeds pose a human health hazard." They recommended that "the use of particular antibiotics be discontinued unless it were conclusively shown that there is no public health hazard."

In October, 1977, the FDA decided to ban penicillin and the tetracyclines from the feeds. Since that time, proponents and antagonists of this ban have girded their loins, dug their trenches and are battling each other eye to eye about the problem. Each group is collecting its own data to see if they can convince the other side about the truth of their convictions.

Your question has merit. Far from being "out of your mind," you are an alert consumer.

Is there any way other than surgery to treat a bunion? I've tried everything — soaks, ointments and even acupuncture. — Mr. H.C.

Dear Mr. C.:

When you realize that a bunion is a change in the anatomical structure of the great toe you will understand local applications may reduce the skin irritation, but will do nothing for the underlying problem.

A bunion is an inflammation and a thickening of the bursa toe.

The incapacitation and pain can sometimes be relieved by "space shoes," padding, and other devices. When these fail to bring relief, surgical correction of the deformity is a simple, and almost ideal, way to handle the problem.

Unfortunately, many people go on for years delaying this operaton only to find that the problem becomes more complicated as time goes on. The operation is a safe and relatively simple one.

Draperies should not be cleaned in coin-operated cleaning shops, because these cleaners use a heavier solvent which can break down fabric fibres weakened by a build-up of gases within your home, says a dry-cleaning company executive who owns several types of cleaning businesses. The best way to save on cleaning costs is to remove the pins and take draperies to a dry-cleaning shop which usually uses a lighter solution for draperies. This way, too, you save $1 or so a pair for pick-up-delivery costs.

Baking chocolate that is "greying" in the cupboard isn't ruined. The cocoa butter has risen to the top, but neither flavor nor quality is harmed. And if you're wondering about the flavor of an inch or so of instant tea in the cupboard, it should be good for two to three years if the lid's on tight.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: When I married my husband, I thought he was a charming, polite gentleman. After one month, I still feel the same way — except for one thing: he insists on sleeping on the floor!

He is a forest ranger, and he believes that sleeping on the floor is healthy. We have an arrangement whereby I sleep on the floor with him three nights a week, he sleeps in bed with me three nights a week, and on Tuesday we retire to our respective corners.

I can't take this much longer. My back is killing me. My husband and I agree to abide by whatever you decide. My husband is sure you will agree with him because you will know that sleeping on a hard surface is healthier. I say you will agree with me because a husband should be loyal to his wife. What do you say? — BRUISED IN GOLETA.

DEAR BRUISED: I say it's "healthier" to sleep on a firm surface, but for those of us who are accustomed to sleeping in beds, the floor is too "firm" for comfort. Compromise. Get an extra-firm mattress (or a bed board for your husband's side of the bed) and sleep together full time.

DEAR ABBY: Am I a dope to accept an engagement ring from a guy who admitted it was the same diamond he gave a girl three years ago? I didn't ask him any questions because I never knew him when he was engaged to her, and I figured it wasn't any of my business. Right?

Well, a very good friend of Alan's said she thought I was a dope for accepting a second-hand engagement ring. But, Abby, he had the diamond reset, so it's not like it was the same ring. Do you think I was a dope? — PENNY.

DEAR PENNY: No. If Alan can fell two birds (chicks, that is) with one stone, there's no harm done.

(P.S.: Keep your eye on that "good friend" of Alan's who thought you were a "dope" — just to make sure she doesn't take you for one.)

DEAR ABBY: I met a very wonderful man a year ago. He's been a widower for three years and I'm recently divorced. We got serious about four months ago, and I moved into his home which is very beautiful.

I love him very much and he says he "cares for me," but he doesn't want to marry again.

He rarely speaks of his late wife, but this house gives me the creeps. It is a museum of mementos, with pictures of his dead wife in every room. I just hate waking up in the morning to be greeted by pictures of her in our bedroom!

Do I dare suggest that he put them away? — M. I. UNREASONABLE(?).

DEAR M.: If you want to continue the relationship, don't make any suggestions. Perhaps you need to be reminded that the house is HIS, and YOU moved in.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think a man who would cheat on his expense account would cheat on his wife? — WILMA.

DEAR WILMA: Only a man who can't resist nice round figures.

Bio-dex

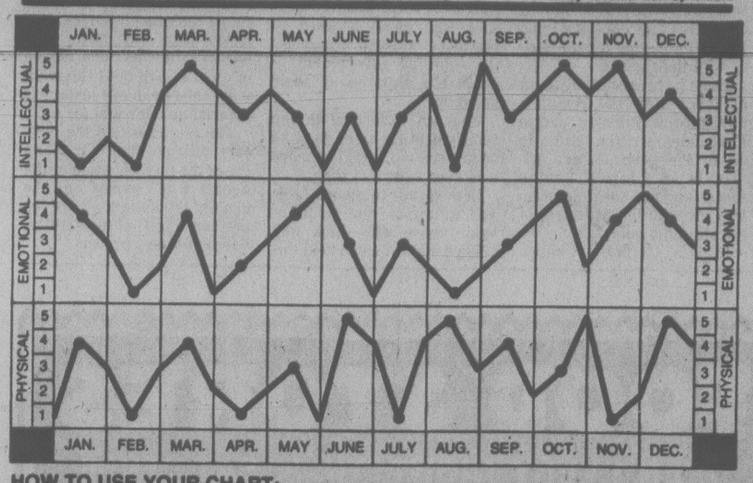

June 1/78

By Ken J. Michaels

Your computerized biorhythm

©BIODEX PRODUCTIONS 1978

Dist. by Toronto Sun Syndicate

HOW TO USE YOUR CHART:

Locate your month of birth. The dots on each graph highlight your biorhythm readouts. Check the scales on the left or right for your Intellectual, Emotional and Physical factors, from 1 to 5. Add these three numbers to obtain your Bio-dex. The Bio-dex is computed on average population age based on official Government statistics.

BIO-DEX READOUT:

0-5 Negative Cycle- The steak burns; you trip on a non-existent crack in the sidewalk. Slow down!

6-10 Neutral Cycle- Don't try to do everything at once. Be methodical and cautious.

11-15 Positive Cycle- Michaelangelo sat at the feet of his masters to learn. Follow his example during a mental peak.

How do you search for someone special? Can you know which is the right place to be and when is the right time? Love seems to arrive and depart by its own clock, but a check with both of your Bio-dex charts may show some surprises. Next time your emotional curve peaks, look around. You may find that special someone looking right back at you.

Father's Role Vital, Says Psychologist

MONTREAL (CP) — Lack of a father may be more of a problem in child development than lack of a mother, says Henry Biller, associate professor of pschology at the Allan Memorial Institute.

At a recent seminar on the role of the father, Biller said a father-run home usually gets some female support from grandmthers, aunts or housekeepers.

"There will be women around and, up to the fifth or sixth grade, the adults the child interacts with in our schools or pre-schools are usually female.

"But when a child has no father around, he or she may totally lack male figures in his environment."

He said that in suburban areas frequently the only men children see during the day are postmen and milkmen.

Until recently, psychologists, psychiatrists and social workers used the word parenting to mean mothering, Biller said. Fathers were regarded only as support personnel for mothers.

In the last decade studies have shown that children thrive best when both parents are actively and positively involved in their care and nurturing.

"The lack of a father does not necessarily lead to problems and an absent father may be better than a present one who is passive or abusive or over-critical," Biller said.

Both parents play important roles in "fostering a child's ability to its maximum potential."

Biller said present studies suggest that fathers play an important role even in infancy for both girls and boys.

If the father is absent before the child is five, it may have more effect on the child's development than if he is absent later.

"We are accumulating data which indicate that children can profit from relationships with males very early in their lives."

Biller said fathers have different reations to infants than do mothers.

"They tend to be more sensitive to individual charactristics and abilities."

MORDEN, Man. (CP) — Many Canadians find the taste of garlic irresistible, but we have always depended on imports to satisfy the demand for this bulbous herb. Now research is under way at Agriculture Canada's Morden research station and at Portage La Prairie, Man., to test the feasibility of garlic as a new Canadian crop.

POTATO SALAD, WITH BACON

2 pounds small, new red-skinned potatoes.
Salt
6 slices lean bacon
4 tablespoons finely chopped onion
3 tablespoons finely chopped parsley
Freshly ground pepper
1 tablespoon wine or herb vinegar
5 tablespoons peanut, vegetable or corn oil
Lettuce leaves, for garnish.

Put the potatoes in a kettle and add cold water to cover and salt to taste. Bring to the boil and cook until tender, 15 to 20 minutes. Remove from the heat and drain.

As soon as the potatoes are cold enough to handle, peel them. Cut them into quarter-inch-thick slices and put them in a mixing bowl.

Meanwhile, cook the bacon on both sides until crisp. Drain on absorbent paper towels. Chop coarsely. Set aside.

Add the onion, parsley, salt and pepper to taste to the potatoes. Add the vinegar and oil and half the bacon and toss.

Spoon into a salad bowl and garnish with the remaining bacon bits and small heart of romain lettuce leaves or other greens.

Yield: Six to eight servings.

Chileans Beg For Return Of Loved Ones

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — At a recent folklore festival in Santiago, four women took the stage to perform Chile's typical national dance, the "Cueca."

The modestly dressed women did the peculiar, strutting dance without male partners before several hundred persons who would have normally clapped their hands to accompany the happy melody.

The symbolism of the dance was painfully clear.

The husbands of the women are among more than 600 arrested Chilean leftists who have vanished since the 1973 military coup.

In recent days, a sense of urgency about the missing persons has gripped their relatives.

They are afraid that with the general amnesty granted by the military government in March, the fates of the missing persons may never be known.

The amnesty gave full pardons to all persons convicted of crimes against the national security from Sept. 11, 1973, the day of the coup, to March 10, 1978.

And although the amnesty decree did not say, the relatives claim that the pardon will not apply to missing persons — but it will to those responsible for making them disappear.

The relatives blame the military regime's DINA and CNI secret police for the arrests and subsequent disappearances.

In a public press conference on May 11, several women charged that since the amnesty took effect, 18 cases of missing persons that had been presented in three different Santiago courts had been dismissed outright.

As a result, the relatives have sent messages to President Carter, the United Nations, the Organization of American States, Amnesty International, the World Council of Churches and Pope Paul VI pleading for solidarity with their cause.

They have also sought an audience with the regime's new interior minister, Sergio Fernandez, written letters to all of the generals and admirals in Chile's armed forces and are seeking an interview with the president of the supreme court.

Chile's Catholic Church this month expressed support for the relations.

A document signed by two bishops and six priests said:

"We would like to echo the pain of several hundred persons who await a word — promised several times by the supreme government — about the situation of their loved ones.

"We are referring to the relatives of the persons, who once arrested, nothing more was ever known of them."

In the letter to the generals and admirals, the relatives said "those who think that silence and time can heal this wound and that the fate of our disappeared family members will not concern the entire world are fooling themselves."

"We will never rest until they return to our homes. Our descendents will never rest nor will the clean conscience of any Chilean until this ominous episode in our history is cleared up once and for all."

The relatives told the military officers that "in many cases the identification of the agents who carried out the arrests are known, as are the precise details of the arrests, with witnesses present."

MOON GARDENS A POSSIBILITY

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet biologists say they have produced wheat, carrots, sugar beets, radishes and some other plants in lighting conditions that simulate the moon's.

Reporting in the Soviet journal Space Biology and Avia-Space Medicine the scientists said they found that plants still thrive in long periods of darkness.

During 15 days from the time of sprouting, the plants were grown in a porous clay "soil" with nutrients. When the plants were in a darkness cycle, scientists said, tap water was used instead of the nutrients and was poured on the seeds every three days.

The journal reported that the wheat was not inferior to normal stalks but the weight of the grains was "somewhat less."

Scientist Develops Safe PCB Destroyer

OTTAWA (CP) — A University of Waterloo chemistry professor says he has found a method to break down components in the toxic pollutant, polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs) to produce harmless chemicals.

Prof. James Smith said today in a telephone interview that while his work is still confined to laboratory research, a successful lab procedure could be expanded in pilot plants to neutralize millions of pounds of the hazardous chemical.

The PCBs are injected into a combination of sodium and napthalene, says Prof. Smith, compounds which react with chlorine.

He says "the sodium in the organometallic compound combines with the polychlorinated compound, separating it out and producing sodium chloride, which is the chemical name for plain old salt."

A federal survey shows there are 7.7 million kilograms (16.9 million pounds) of PCBs in Ontario. Used widely in Canada for more than 40 years, PCBs now are permitted for use only in certain electrical equipment under carefully controlled conditions.

The chemical, which has been linked with birth defects, nervous disorders and cancer, is considered a serious environmental problem because of widespread distribution, resistence to decomposition and tendency to accumulate in food chains.

Prof. Smith, whose says a request for a grant from the federal environment department was turned down, had received instead a grant from the provincial environment ministry to hire two undergraduate chemistry students for further experiments.

"Since the reactions will have to be done in a solvent they'll also try to find out which would be the cheapest and best solvent for the purpose."

Prof. Smith estimates the cost of enough sodium napthalene to remove the chlorine from one pound of PCB at $1.23.

Currently, the only means of eliminating the PCBs is to burn them off at a high temperature. However, a Mississauga, Ont., firm which became the centre of controversy earlier this year stopped that procedure after strong protest from nearby residents.

"But in our work," says Prof. Smith, "everything is sealed tightly and this would also apply in a pilot plant."

STARVATION FACES AFRICAN COUNTRIES

ROME (Reuter) — Drought, flood and war have caused severe food shortages in 17 African countries, and urgent action is needed in five of them, the UN Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) said today.

Conditions are critical in Ethiopia, Niger, Chad, Mali and Ghana, all of which face immediate problems in obtaining enough food and delivering it to famine areas, an FAO report said.

In Ethiopia, the recent main cereal crop was abnormally small and the prospects for Ethiopia's secondary harvest were also poor, the report said.

In Ghana, drought has seriously curtailed food supplies. Mozambique has been hit by floods and Angola and Zaire are suffering from shortages following the arrival of many refugees from war zones, the FAO said.

GREATER VICTORIA SCHOOL DISTRICT

Mice No Problem

Victoria exterminators have little difficulty controlling mice, unlike their counterparts in downtown Vancouver.

Bernie McCarthy, of PCO-Pied Piper, commented on a complaint that pest controllers in the mainland city were finding an anti-coagulant mouse bait to be less effective than it used to be: the mice are developing resistance to its active ingredient.

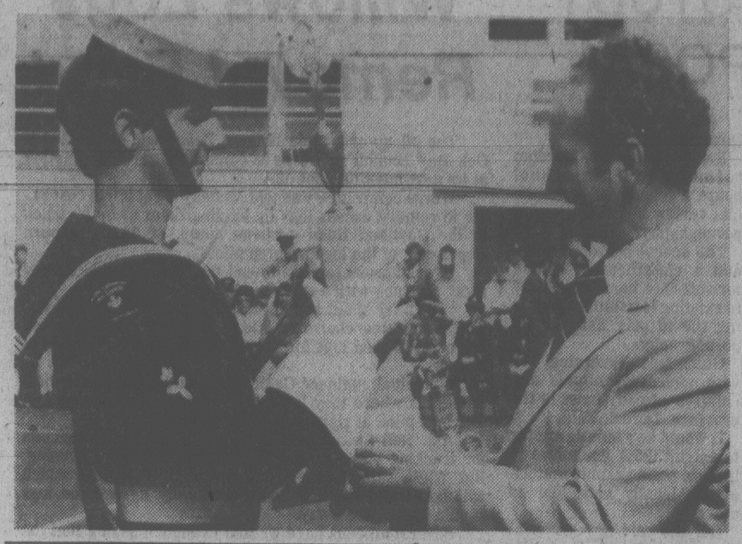

But there, he said, some blocks have heavy infestations of mice because of the condition some buildings are in. The situation does not apply in Victoria, he said.

McCarthy said resistance to anti-coagulants has been going on for years, but there are alternative mouse baits in use. These are just as effective but anti-coagulants are much safer to use because they are virtually harmless to humans and domestic animals.

When using the alternative substances, exterminators place bait in places inaccessible to children and pets, or in a locked, metal bait station.

McCarthy said a new substance recently made available may replace anti-coagulant baits.

DRUM MAJOR PO2 Bruce Michaels of Victoria's Rainbow Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps receives the trophy won by his band on the weekend from Hal Philbrook, vice-chairman of the Southern Vancouver Island Cadet League. The band topped the A division trumpet band section in the annual Strathcona Fund cadet band competition held in the dockyard of CFB Esquimalt. A total of 19 army, navy and air force cadet bands took part. No. 819 Royal Canadian Air Cadet Squadron from North Delta won the A division brass band section and the Admiral de Wolfe Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps from Campbell River won runner-up aggregate brass and trumpet section.

Energy Program Labelled Waste

TORONTO (CP) — A proper conservation and renewable energy program could save Canada $25 billion in the next 12 years, says a study by Energy Probe, an independent environmental group.

A report on the group's study was released Monday in Probe Post, a periodical published by Energy Probe and Pollution Probe and designed to give businessmen tips on how to save money through conservation.

Energy Probe said a $50-billion package of nuclear and pipeline projects introduced by federal Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie at the first ministers conference last February is too costly.

As many jobs — one million man-years — and enough energy to meet Canada's needs by 1990 could be provided with half the money proposed by Gillespie, the study said.

Probe's program would include spending $15 billion on solar panels for two million single and multiple homes, building wind generators, using forest waste to create methanol and insulating and upgrading furnaces in 95 per cent of pre-1975 homes.

A-G AGREES TO STUDY PORN BAN PROPOSAL

Attorney-General Garde Gardom has agreed to study a Greater Victoria school board proposal that would remove pornographic magazines from public view and ban the sale of them to children.

A committee now reviewing pornography guidelines in the province will include the school board's request in its study, Gardom told Trustee Pete Dorazio at a meeting Tuesday.

The report should be completed in about two months.

"It's all we could ask for," Dorazio said Tuesday.

Earlier this year, Gardom turned down the school board's concept of a provincial review board to classify pornography.

The school board wants to add a classification system for soft-core porn magazines to existing legislation governing the display and sale of pornography.

Guidelines governing sex with violence, animals and children already exist in the province, Dorazio said.

It would be a simple matter to extend those guidelines to include pornographic material not legally classified as obscene.

Dorazio said any material showing genitals and completely concerned with sex should be placed under the new classification.

Willows Logs Removal Eyed

The pileup of logs on Willows Beach will be tackled if Oak Bay council approves a committee recommendation at its next meeting June 12.

Works committee was told Monday night it will cost $3,120 to remove excess logs by hauling them away by truck to the Hartland Road garbage dump, or $3,000 to burn 30 per cent of the logs in three piles.

It was agreed to recommend the excess logs be hauled away by truck with a spending limit of $3,000.

"We'll try it out and get a little tidiness to the beach," said committee chairman Ald. Douglas Watts. He urged retention of good logs for people to sit on and to be able to lean on.

Municipal engineer Geoff White said the logs are most numerous where they have been pushed aside for access. The logs piled at right angles are safe, he said.

Ald. Neil Swainson said he had a hunch the estimate for trucking was low and he preferred selective burning. But White said it is not a large number of logs which will be moved and Swainson eventually agreed the logs should be trucked away.

Several citizens have written to council asking that the number of logs be reduced.

'Watch' Pays Off

Neighborhood Watch is proving a deterrent to burglars in Saanich.

According to Sgt. Fred Wooster, head of the Saanich police department's community service division, only nine of the 5,000 homes currently participating in the crime prevention program have been broken into in the past year.

And in half of those cases, the homeowner had inadvertently left a door unlocked.

Wooster says statistics show that homeowners who do not join the program are 15 times more likely to be burglarized than those who do.

Since the police department started the program in February, 1976, more than 22,000 homeowners have been contacted. About 30 per cent have responded by attending special meetings arranged by the police to discuss the program and what homeowners can do to cut the break-in rate in their neighborhoods.

Wooster says there are only about 200 homes left to canvass and letters will be sent to those homeowners inviting them to attend a meeting later in June.

In future, Wooster says, the emphasis will be on officers going to groups like service clubs and parent-teacher associations to explain the program and convert new members to it.

CITY TAXPAYER FIGHTING BACK

Frank Frau isn't about to take a 25 per cent hike in his property tax lying down.

He has drafted a petition and in the next few days will trudge through Fairfield looking for supporters who, like him, are appalled by the increase.

Last year Frau's tax on his home at 1608 Chandler was $716 gross. This year it's $888.

"I couldn't believe it," he says. "I expected some increase, maybe $50, but not this. I took one look at the notice and just about fell over backwards."

Frau blames the problems on the provincial government's decision to lower the tax assessment on apartments.

Apartments are now classified as residential properties and pay tax on only 15 per cent of actual value. Before, they were classed commercial and assessed at 25 per cent.

"The apartment owners aren't the ones who need any break," he says. "It's guys like you and me who go out and punch a clock who need it."

Frau says he lived in apartments in the city for four years and "they never once gave me a break . . . no way."

His petition asks the government to resestablish the old assessment rate for apartments.

Frau says he'll cover as much of Fairfield as he can on his own and hopes to gather converts on the way who will assist him.

E&N Rapped by Workers

Service on the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway is slow, inefficient and overpriced, says an employees' committee trying to save the passenger service on the line.

Yet these factors, coupled with adverse publicity, have led to a consistent increase in passenger use.

"If such negative publicity and the obviously deteriorated condition of the line can produce an increase in ridership, surely a positive approach could result in even more substantial increases," members of Local 1051 of the United Transport Transportation Union say.

The union committee says the Canadian Transport Commission should censure the E&N's parent company — Canadian Pacific Railway — for not living up to its commitment to maintain efficient passenger service.

The committee, headed by Victoria representative John Cooper, Jack Mason od Nanaimo and Ed Sharpe of Albernie, says seating is often so overcrowded, passengers are placed in the baggage section.

And the rails have deteriorated so much the Dayliner is under "slow orders" so that it is half an hour behind schedule every day.

It doesn't run on Sunday, and costs more than comparable runs in other areas of the country, the union says.

Schedules appear to be classified information and there is no visible promotion of the service by CPR.

The committee says the tracks and stations should be updated and the fares brought in line with bus fares.

"Because of the impending energy crisis, the future belongs to rail passenger transportation. It is foolish to cease to maintain such service when it will be sorely needed in the foreseeable future."

Robbery Remand

FORT ST. JAMES — A Toronto couple was remanded in custody to June 12 when they appeared in court here Monday on charges resulting from the armed robbery and confinement of two University of Victoria students on an isolated island on Stuart Lake, 100 kilometres north of here.

Robert Charles Barinecutt, 30, and his wife Pamela, 20, were arrested two days after the incident involving Robert Gathercole and Elizabeth Ann Arthur of 859 Carrie.

An RCMP spokesman said Gathercole and Miss Arthur were held at gunpoint for two hours on the night of May 19.

Their captors then made off with an outboard motor, some jewelry, travellers' cheques and other items.

The Barinecutts have been charged with armed robbery, unlawful confinement and theft over $200.

Computer to Tab Social Services

DETROIT (UPI) — Officials are betting $3 million that Michigan residents have a lot of questions computer memory banks can answer.

On Thursday, the state will begin an experiment by placing 75 video-screen computer terminals in libraries, hospitals and mental health crisis centres in five counties in the southeastern part of the state.

Each terminal will be connected to the central computer, which has detailed dossiers on the types of services offered by more than 3,000 public and private social help agencies in Michigan.

To tap into the system, a resident can visit a terminal centre, or phone one and explain the problem to a terminal operator. If there is a place that can help, the computer will pinpoint it in seconds, officials said.

The system will not be able to do anything an individual could not do on his own using conventional sources, such as the telephone book, social services brochures or newspaper advertising.

But the system will get answers in seconds, something most residents are unable to do when confronted by the bureaucracy, said Henry Mayers, the 29-year-old director of the system, known as the Human Services Network.

The computer took only three minutes, said Mayers, to solve the hypothetical dilemma of a pregnant Detroit woman, who was immobilized by a broken leg and needed someome to come to her home to give her pre-natal education.

The system coughed up the name of the field services division of the Detroit Department of Public Health, the only agency in Lower Michigan offering such a specialized service.

Ex-Nazi Stripped Of Citizenship

CHICAGO (AP) — Frank Walus, a retired Chicago laborer, was stripped of his U.S. citizenship Tuesday on grounds that he concealed from U.S. immigration authorities his past as a teenaged Gestapo agent who murdered Polish Jews during The Second World War.

Federal Judge Julius Hoffman ordered Walus to turn over his certificate of naturalization to the justice department by June 9. The U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) could then begin deportation proceedings, but David Vandersall, regional INS director, said no decision had been made on that.

Hoffman told a packed courtroom that evidence in the 17-day civil trial in U.S. District Court "was consistent, horrible, and generally unshakeable" that Walus, 55, committed wartime atrocities.

"Frank Walus was a Gestapo agent operating in and around Czestochowa and Kielce, Poland, in World War II . . . and committed criminal acts of unjustified violence," Hoffman said.

Walus, a retired factory worker, was absent from the courtroom. He was represented by his wife Celina and his 13-year-old son Paul.

"We will appeal," said Mrs. Walus after the ruling. "Absolutely. Absolutely."

During the trial, Hoffman, 82, was critized by defence lawyer Robert Korenkiewicz, who said that at one point the 82-year-old judge fell asleep.

Hoffman found that Walus lied to immigration officials in 1970, before becoming a naturalized citizen. Walus insisted throughout his trial that he did not lie, and that during the Second World War he had nothing to do with the Gestapo. He said he worked on German farms.

★ Butcher Role Denied

SAO PAULO, Brazil (UPI) — The tall, grey-haired man expressed surprise he was suspected of being the "butcher" who sent hundreds of thousands of Jews to their deaths at the Treblinka and Sobibor concentration camps.

Gustav Franz Wagner admitted he was a sergeant in the Nazi army during the Second World War but denied he was the man with the same name who was sub-commandant of the two camps in Poland.

He also admitted to reporters at the police station he served nearly two years at the Sobibor camp doing constructon work and later was a Gestapo officer in Austria.

Wagner said he could not remember how long he worked for the Gestapo nor what he did before serving at Sobibor.

Wagner Tuesday turned himself in to Sao Paulo political police after hearing from neighbors that he was sought for questioning.

Police said documents and fingerprints expected to arrive from Germany and Israel would establish whether their prisoner was the same Gustav Franz Wagner who was known as "the butcher of Treblinka."

The Gustav Franz Wagner presented to reporters did not look like the man identified by Nazi hunter Simon Wiesenthal through a photograph taken recently by a Brazilian newspaper at a meeting near Rio de Janeiro of Nazi sympathizers celebrating Adolf Hitler's 89th birthday.

2 Soviets Charged As Spies

NEWARK (AP) — Two Soviet citizens who work at their country's United Nations mission were indicted by a federal grand jury Tuesday on charges of obtaining U.S. defence secrets and conspiring to pass them to the Soviet Union. They face possible life imprisonment if convicted.

Rudolf Petrovich Cherkayayev, 43, a personnel officer at the UN Secretariat in New York City, and Valdik Aleksandrovich Enger, 39, an assistant to the UN undersecretary-general, were charged in a three-count indictment handed down about an hour before they were to face a federal magistrate for a preliminary hearing on the charges.

Opera World Scandal

ROME (AP) — The artistic director of the Rome Opera and a dozen other figures in the Italian music and theatre world were arrested today and charged with extortion, corruption in office and fraud.

The charges centre on a 1967 ban against the use of theatre agencies as middlemen between management and singers. The arrests were made in Rome, Milan, Venice, Florence, Verona and Cagliari, police said.

Besides Rome Opera director Gioacchino Lanza Tomasi, others arrested include Francesco Siciliani, artistic director at Rome's Santa Cecilia concert hall and former consultant at Milan's La Scala; former officials of opera houses in Venice, Sardinia and Rome, and a number of theatre agents.

The investigation into the use of theatre agencies was prompted by a suit filed by the husband of Italian soprano Sylvia Sebastiani, who had a well-publicized spat with Lanza Tomasi in 1973 over hiring practices.

ISRAELI ASSAULT CLAIMED

BEIRUT (AP) — Palestinian guerillas say Israeli gunners opened fire Tuesday on Moslem villages in southern Lebanon, killing five civilians and wounding 17.

A spokesman for the guerrilla high command in Beirut said the barrage was aimed at villages of Nabatieh province 13 to 20 kilometres north of the Israeli border.

43 Peasants Slain

GUATEMALA CITY (UPI) — Government troops combed the mountains of northeast Guatemala today for participants in a bloody peasant revolt against wealthy landowners that left at least 43 people dead and 35 wounded.

Observers in the town of Panzos, 124 miles northeast of Guatemala City, said Tuesday the bodies of 43 men and women killed in a battle between peasants and the landowners and their farm workers were stacked in front of the town hall.

An army communique said the peasant revolt was "instigated by guerrilla elements to invaded the lands and private farms."

The military has repeatedly denounced the leftist Poor People's Guerrilla Army for inciting peasants to attack private landowners.

Although army clashes with peasant land invaders are common in this poor Central American country, the death toll in Monday's battle was the highest ever recorded.

The clash began when an estimated 400 peasants from the village of Senahu, armed with machetes, shotguns and pistols, invaded four large plantations, the observers said.

RAISING THE ROOF. . .

CHRISTCHURCH, New Zealand (AP) — John Harwood arrived home Tuesday to find his three-bedroom house was missing its roof, windows, carpets, furniture and bath tub.

A hoax advertisement in a local newspaper that morning had invited people to take everything but the front fence.

Hundreds of people converged on the house with trucks, trailers, cars and vans. In their haste to pull out plumbing fixtures, they broke water pipes and the house was flooded.

After news of the hoax was published, people slowly began returning with timber, roofing iron, and fittings. But Harwood was still waiting for the bathtub, hot water system, carpets and doors.

U.K. Spring Break Was a Hot 'Un

LONDON (CP) — Britons, who sniffled through a post-nasal drip of a summer last year, are deep into the suntan lotion this year — and, officially, summer isn't even here yet.

The first holiday weekend of the sunshine season — spring bank holiday — clogged the roads, caused at least one beer crisis and resulted in a run on cooling equipment.

Surprisingly, it was a dead loss for Britain's first nudist beach.

Automobile clubs report that, at one point, cars were pouring south from London to the coastal beaches last weekend at the rate of 30,000 an hour.

But it wasn't only south. The holiday island of Anglesey, 400 kilometres northwest of London, blossomed forth with the sign "Anglesey—full, sorry."

It was a hoax, but the two television networks and a variety of radio stations fell for it.

The result was a monumental traffic jam. One newspaper called it the most widely promulgated hoax since the late BBC broadcaster Richard Dimbleby announced the failure of the Italian spaghetti harvest.

Actor George Peppard told reporters at Heathrow Airport: "I've got to get to California — it's too hot in London."

When the long weekend wound up, some drugstores reported line-ups of people seeking lotions and compounds to beat sunburn.

"People have been coming in all red, sore and blistered," said a young salesgirl in Bridlington, Yorkshire.

In the Midlands, parched throats stayed that way as pubs ran out of beer.

Hundreds of holiday-makers flocked to the Sussex beauty spot of Ditchling Beacon, only to be moved on after walkers spotted a wartime anti-tank mine. Bomb-disposal experts said ten more such explosive devices were uncovered in the same area during their alert.

The Daily Mirror sent reporter Murray Davies to Hastings, in East Sussex, to report on the opening of Britain's first nudist beach but he found it — in a word — bare.

"Nobody was taking advantage of the new wave of freedom," he wrote.

The only other person he encountered was a would-be sightseer named Mike Dunn, who said: "I've walked the whole length of this bloody beach. I've twisted my ankle twice on these damned rocks and I haven't seen one naked person."

Hastings, where William the Conqueror invaded about 900 years ago and where Harold took the arrow in the eye, hasn't yet put up the signs that read:

"Beyond this point clothes need not be worn for bathing, sun-bathing or other forms of recreaton."

The local council expects business to pick up once they erect the signs.

There has been no reaction from the Crown Estate — in other words, the Queen — owner of the mile-long rocky strand.

Tornadoes Dot U.S.

DENVER (UPI) — Tornadoes and severe thunderstorms raced through much of the Midwest and southern U.S. today. Streets in the Detroit area were flooded and record temperatures were set on the West and East coasts.

The National Weather Service said tornadoes touched down Tuesday near Columbus, Ohio, Hayes, S.D., Beatrice, Neb., Blountsville, Ala., Caledonia, Minn., and Rogers City, Mich.

Zaire Commander to be Shot

LUBUMBASHI, Zaire (UPI) — A military tribunal has sentenced to death by firing squad the Zaire army officer in charge of the defence of Kolwezi at the time of the rebel attack and subsequent massacre of foreigners, the government news agency AZAP said today.

The officer, Brig. Gen. Shikeva of the crack North Korean-trained Kamanyola brigade, pleaded not guilty to the charge of cowardice and asked for clemency from President Mobutu Sese Seko, the agency said.

The military tribunal delivered its verdict at this Shaba province capital Saturday, but it was only publicly released today.

Several other army officers were reported under arrest after the Kolwezi debacle, when some 2,000 rebels quickly overran most of the town May 12.

Several officers reportedly commandeered a light aircraft to flee to Lubumbashi after hearing of the impending attack, but it was not known if Gen. Shikeva was among them.

Zaire paratroops subsequently recaptured the airstrip, a few miles out of town, but it was left to French and Belgian paratroops to recapture the mining center itself and free some 2,500 Whites held hostage by the rebels.

French officers later accused Zaire army troops of widespread looting in the town after the departure of the bulk of the Legionnaires and paratroops.

Meanwhile, the first contingent of Moroccan troops, scheduled to help the Zairean army replace the French and Belgian paratroops as a permanent security force in embattled Shaba, arrived in this tense province capital.

Gen. Jean-Pierre Liron of the French General Staff, also flew to this province capital Tuesday for a first-hand look at the situation and an inspection tour of the French Legion paratroopers on duty here and at several other copper mining towns.

Gen. Liron said he had no idea when the French troops would be withdrawn completely from Shaba.

Scores of women and children and a handful of men have arrived in Lubumbashi from outlying towns, electing to take "early leave" in Europe because of the unsettled situation in Shaba.

Several women said they would never return to the area after the massacre of whites by rebels at the mining center of Kolwezi earlier this month, but the men said they would go back to their mining jobs after the summer break.

GOLD DEMAND ON INCREASE

OTTAWA (CP) — Minting of gold coins is on the increase around the world, partly because people are seeking a hedge against inflation, says an expert in the use of gold.

Richard Davies of Washington, managing director of the Gold Institute, says the number of countries issuing gold coins as part of their legal tender increased to 46 last year from only six in 1972.

Persons with a sense of history know that through periods of economic trouble and currency fluctuations, gold remains valuable, Davies told the annual meeting of the Canadian Mining Association.

The mining industry has been pushing Ottawa to turn out gold coins for investors around the world, providing a multi-million dollar business for the companies and thousands of jobs.

This spring, the Commons passed legislation giving the government the right to issue gold coins without approval of Parliament. The bill cleared the way for the issue of a $100 gold unity coin in the fall.

Davies told the mining executives that as well as interest in gold from small investors, some institutions now maintain up to 10 per cent of their investment portfolios in gold.

Among the reasons countries are deciding on gold coins, he said, are to dampen inflation, attract tourism, add to national prestige or earn foreign currency with which to improve balance-of-payments accounts.

The Gold Institute had been maintaining close contact with central banks, finance ministries and mints in every country, providing technical advice on what type of coins it should produce.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

Without any doubt, the most important trick in the play of the cards is trick one. But there are days when, on any given deal, trick two becomes primary in importance. Such was the case in today's deal.

Neither side vulnerable. South deals.

NORTH
♠ K J 10
♡ J 9 8 4
◇ J 5 3 2

WEST
♠ Q 6
♡ K 7
◇ Q 10 6
♣ A K J 6 4 3

EAST
♠ A 9 8 5 3
♡ 5 3 2
◇ 9 8 4

SOUTH
♠ 7 4 2
♡ A Q 10 6
◇ A K 7
♣ Q 9 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Dble.	Pass	Pass
Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠.

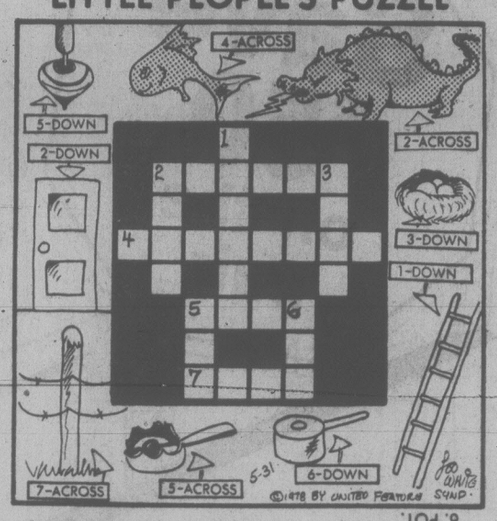

Sitting West and East, respectively, were Richard Katz and Larry Cohen, two members of the team captained by Dr. George Rosenkranz, of Mexico City. After winning the opening lead with his king of clubs, Katz thought for a few moments — and then led the six of spades. South now thought much longer, and finally decided that West, for his original double, rated to have the spade ace. So he put up dummy's king. It was a wrong decision, for East had the ace. East returned his remaining club, and West rattled off five more club tricks.

South, called upon to make three discards on West's club leads, tossed away two hearts and the seven of diamonds. After running his clubs, West led a diamond to South's king. South then played a spade, West's queen winning, after which West exited with another diamond to South's ace. Later West won a trick with his heart king, and declarer suffered a three-trick set, for a loss of 500 points.

When the deal was replayed with Dr. Rosenkranz sitting South and Roger Bates in the East seat, South opened the bidding with one club, which West overcalled with one nofrump. After North had passed, East bid two spades, which became the final contract.

After opening the diamond ace, Dr. Rosenkranz made the deceptive lead of the seven of diamonds. East now had to guess whether to play dummy's queen (hoping that South had the king) or dummy's ten (hoping South had the jack). He guessed wrong by playing the ten. North won with the jack, and returned a diamond to South's king. In time, the defenders made the ace of hearts and two trumps tricks, and declarer incurred a one-trick set.

SOLUTIONS THURSDAY

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Thursday, June 1
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Cut through red tape, excess sentimentality. Cycle is high — take advantage of it. Family situation requires attention; be diplomatic, make intelligent concessions, agree to remodeling or adjustment. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio persons figure prominently — so does the number 6.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Much that occurs could be shrouded in mystery. Get backstairs view. Don't accept everything by surface indications. Something, affecting you, could be going on behind the scenes. Refuse to be intimidated or rush to judgment. Hold fast to principles — and possessions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Spotlight on being gregarious, influencing people, getting points across in significant manner. Friends, hopes, wishes, intensified relationship, good money news connected with career, business endeavors are all part of your personal scenario. Number 8 is also in picture.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Accent on completing project, gaining more recognition, improving image, polishing techniques, making room for yourself at elevated position. Aries, Libra figure prominently — so does the number 9. Superior acknowledges you were right "all along."

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Good Moon aspect coincides now with long-range effects, language, education, spirituality, journey, publication. Take initiative; make new starts, open yourself to chance for love. Another Leo — and an Aquarian — figure in scenario. Creative juices flow.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be thorough, dig deep, reject the superficial, get accounting, become familiar with rentals, leases, inventories. Aquarius, Cancer, Leo figure prominently. By sharing, you gain. By teaching, you learn. It is that kind of day and you'll benefit.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Lie low, go slow, play waiting game, become aware of legal ramifications, rights and permissions. Examine various possibilities — display versatility and humor. Horizons expand. You will hae luxury of choosing, of being selective. Know it and don't brood over minor delay.

SCORPIO (Oct. 32-Nov. 21): Steady pace is necessary. Steer clear of sensational. Strive for balance in work and recreation. Pay heed to nutritional requirements, diet. Aquarius, Taurus, Leo persons play key roles. What appears a setback will boomerang in your favor. Know it and be of good cheer!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Emphasis on creativity, emotional involvement. Key is style, communication, imprinting personality, touching and affection. Children respond to you. Popularity increases. Members of opposite sex want you — and then want to change you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Home, basic material, security, domestic arrangements dominate. Build on solid base, select quality, be receptive to shared experience offered by parent, authority figure or older colleague. Taurus, Libra figure in scenario.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accent on ideas, reports, messages, relatives in transit, quick trips, aura of "ordered confusion" and media attention. Humor helps — express yourself, illustrate meanings, get Capricorn to aid in basic building blocks, materials.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Spotlight on business, finances, funding, payments, collections, income potential. Love and money mix — relationship is intensified. Be confident. Invest in your own capabilities. One who was indifferent will now open door of opportunity.

IF JUNE 1 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are creative, independent, restless, versatile, dramatic, temperamental and sexy. If single, you could marry this year. If married, you go into business — and there could be an addition to family. December will be a productive, testing, memorable month. Leo, Aquarius persons play important roles in your life.

"I started at quite a low salary, but with a 20% raise every year," said Andy. "Bill started with a different outfit the same day at exactly double my salary but with a flat $286 a year annual raise."

Clare shook her head. "You didn't do too well," she commented.

"On the contrary," Andy chuckled. "After we'd been in our jobs only five years my salary was $96 a year more than his."

What was Andy's starting salary?

Fuchsias in Comeback

Fuchsias have become popular again during the past 15 years keeping pace with the increase in off-the-ground apartments and condominiums. Balconies thank goodness, sprouted simultaneously for the pleasure of the occupants, so that hanging containers of flowering plants were in demand.

Soon it was found that fuchsias give the most enjoyment for time and money spent. They have lovely color combinations in the red, pink, purple range with ample dark green foliage for a background.

Flowering period continues from the first warm spell usually at the end of May, until well into September. This long flowering depends on the care given during the season.

Total success with fuchsias is related to the type of fuchsia selected for the situation. Hanging containers need drooping or pendant varieties; tubs and planters look better with either dwarf bushy kinds or standards.

The type of container too is important. Wire baskets have been favorites for years as seen by the City of Victoria's hanging baskets on downtown street-lighting standards.

The baskets, lined with green moss, have perfect drainage, yet are slow to loose the moisture held in the living moss when it is replaced by frequent saturations.

Slatted wood baskets are attractive to some balcony gardeners; if the slats are spaced, they also need lining with green moss.

Which type you choose is up to you, but a minimum diameter and depth should be 12 inches or thereabouts. It is the old story of the greater the volume of soil the better are soil conditions of moisture and general fertility.

If you are buying fuchsia plants to make up your own hanging containers, first have the container and the moss thorougly dampened. Also the soil mixture of leafmould, sand, compost and peatmoss should be dampened well when mixing, but not too wet to handle comfortable. When finished, leaving a good two-inch space above the surface at the rim, soak the whole container in a pail or large bowl of tepid water.

Maintenance during the season not only includes ample watering usually on at least a once daily basis, but also pinching back some of the longer growths early in the season to encourage more new growths and thus more flowers.

On trailing varieties, see that some growths are allowed to remain in the drooping position even though the growing tips are removed. New shoots come in the axils of the leaves, each ending in a cluster of blossoms. This is how the plants are encouraged to have hundreds of flowers open at one time.

Fuchsias in containers need frequent but weak feeding with a liquid such as Alginure which strengthens as it stimulates growth. Make the solution half the recommended strength on the label, using it as one of the regular waterings on the same day of each week.

Removal of seed pods is routine as with all plants in containers. Once seed setting is allowed, plants cease blooming.

Dedicated fuchsia fanciers claim that nothing in the plant kingdom compares with a well-grown fuchsia basket. Try it and prove the statement for your own satisfaction.

309 IN MEMORIAM

McKINTY JOHN A. — Husband, Father and Grandfather who passed away May 31, 1976.
We do not need a special day to bring you to our minds
Days we do not think of you are very hard to find
No need for words, except to say still loved, still missed in every way.
—Pat, Ronita, Joan, Dianne, Lary and familys.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD. AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN. AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.

MOST IGNORE TAX OFFER

VANCOUVER (CP) — Most of the 1,000 persons the federal government suspects of cheating on income taxes are ignoring an offer to confess without having to pay a 25-per-cent penalty.

As a result, the government has penalized 500 persons for filing phoney receipts for money claimed to have been sent to dependants overseas.

The fake receipts are bought from suppliers for between one and three per cent of their value and can result an tax rebates of $200 to $400 a thousand of income.

The government sent letters to those suspected of false claims advising them their claims are suspicious and inviting them to supply additional proof that the money really was sent abroad.

"Ferreting them out can be a slow procedure, so we said in the letters we'd eliminate the penalty if they came forward on their own," said John Ellerton, head of the tax department's special investigation branch in Vancouver.

"We had anticipated a flock of them coming in, but we're not getting it," he said. "There have only been a half-dozen so far."

Five hundred of the 1,000 suspected cheaters have been sent a second letter stating they have been assessed the penalty.

Awards Won By Reporters

VANCOUVER (CP) — Investigative reporting won the top honors in MacMillan Bloedel's 20th annual awards for journalists on British Columbia daily newspapers, presented Tuesday night by company president Calvert Knudsen.

Vancouver Sun columnist Doug Collins won the $500 first award in the over-25,000 circulation category for a series of articles on moonlighting by a university dean, who carried on outside consulting work on university time and at taxpayers' expense.

Medical reporter John Braddock of the Vancouver Province took the $250 runner-up award in the higher circulation category with an account of the medical battle which saved the life of B.C. Lions football player Barry Houlihan after he was injured in an automobile accident.

John Asling of the Prince George Citizen won the top award for writers on newspapers with less than 25,000 circulation for a series of stories examining the lack of psychiatric health care facilities in the central Interior city.

Five honorable mention awards of $100 each were voted by the panel of independent judges. In the higher circulation category they went to Stephen Hume of the Victoria Colonist, for a series on the export of B.C. native artifacts, and to two Province writers— Kay Alsop, for an interpretative article about attitudes in the Quebec-national unity situation, and Dennis Bell, for an investigation of bank loan kickbacks involving the Greek community in B.C.

HIGH-FLYING longjohns brought to earth Monday by public works employee John Kirby, in bosun's chair, are displayed by Kirby and Veno Vargo, who helped hoist his colleague to the top of the legislature flagstaff. Underwear trophy was substituted for the Canadian flag in Swiftsure night prank and bore the following note: "May 27, 1978, 3:45 a.m. This garment belongs to Lance McCullock, General Delivery, Parksville. I am unconditionally not responsible for the location of this garment. Due to unforeseen circumstances beyond my control. 'Crazy captain.' When found, to be returned to the above address. Lance McCullock." (Irving Strickland photo)

MPs Query Soviet Threat

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The contradiction between the Canadian government's undismayed assessment of the Soviet military threat and the United States' alarm over the Russian armaments buildup was the subject of sharp questioning in the commons Tuesday.

Prime Minister Trudeau is attending the NATO summit meetings in Washington. In his absence Deputy Prime Minister Allan MacEachen endeavored to explain the government's defence policy in regard to NATO. His explanations were dismised as "flim flam" by opposition MPs.

Progressive Conservative leader Joe Clark said he was disturbed by the contradiction between the policy of the Canadian government and the policy of the American government concerning NATO; policies in each case based on different interpretations of the same NATO document regarding growth of the Soviet threat.

"President Carter, on the basis of that document, has said 'the military lead the West once enjoyed has been reduced.' " The prime minister, presumably on the basis of the same document, said he does not think alarm over the threat is supported by the information before the NATO ministers, Clark pointed out.

MacEachen said the U.S. president was apparently referring to the growth in the military capability of the Soviet Union. He believed Trudeau was discussing the political atmosphere and whether there would be a return to the cold war atmosphere.

The opposition charged the prime minister with saying one thing in interviews on television and something different in official statements.

"The advantage of this is that the international community is now getting accustomed to what we have had to put up with in Canada for a long time," said Clark.

"Is it the government's position that there is nothing in the Soviet build-up for Canada to be concerned about?" asked Clark.

MacEachen said the position of the Canadian government would be that "any build-up in Soviet strength would be a very serious matter." It is for that reason that Canada has within the past several years taken a number of important decisions in order to maintain its contribution to NATO at a high level, he added.

Meanwhile, in Washington, Trudeau said NATO allies should place greater emphasis on disarmament efforts than President Carter has done so far.

In an interview taped for broadcast today on the CTV program, Canada AM, Trudeau agreed with the president's call for strengthening NATO forces in Europe, but expressed a desire for new disarmament efforts.

"I don't disagree with Carter's approach. I just think that greater importance and greater emphasis should be put on the disarmament side."

Trudeau made clear that his call for disarmament initiatives included the strategic, as well as the European balance of force.

CARTER VOWS N-SUPPORT

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter pledged anew today to use U.S. nuclear weapons if necessary to defend European allies against Soviet attack.

Carter also called for more effective conventionaal forces in the NATO countries to counter Soviet military might that he said has grown beyond any legitimate defensive need.

He told NATO leaders here that the Soviet Union and its Warsaw pact allies "are now able to attack with large armored forces more rapidly than we previously believed."

He made clear that the United States still stands behind that policy which he said means that "an attack on Europe will have the full consequences of an attack on the United States."

Nuclear Arms Stay Until 1984: Falls

OTTAWA (TNS) — Canada will not have divested itself of its nuclear weapons for five or six years, until around 1983-84, Admiral R. H. Falls, chief of the defence staff, told the commons defence committee Tuesday.

He said the Voodoo aircraft may be replaced as early as 1983 by the new fighters which the Canadian government is now in the market to buy.

On the neutron bomb the defence chief told the committee that in his view it was "less ominous", in that there was less blast than from the conventional nuclear warhead.

The defence chief was questioned in the committee by Allan McKinnon (PC-Victoria), Dan McKenzie (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) and Bob Wenman (PC—Fraser Valley West).

Later McKinnon suggested in the Commons that the defence chief, by stating the neutron bomb was "less ominous" than the alternatives, was adopting a line that was divergent from that enunciated by Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau in his speech to the United Nations.

Deputy Prime Minister Allan MacEachen disagreed. He said Canada supports the decision of the U.S. to postpone production of the special battlefield nuclear weapon. He said Canada hoped the Soviet Union would show similar restraint in its deployment of forces. He suggested the United States and Canada had put the Soviet Union "clearly on the defensive."

McKinnon asked MacEachen to say if the Canadian government is in favor of or against the use and deployment of the neutron bomb. But the deputy prime minister avoided that question by stating that the prime minister had enunciated the government policy at the UN.

The west coast MP said Trudeau's speech to the UN had left the "false impression" that Canada was moving out of nuclear weapons immediately. He urged MacEachen to correct that impression. He said it was clear that Canada would not be divesting itself of nuclear weapons for at least five years.

Big Change Predicted In U.S.S.R.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union probably will be a profoundly different nation socially, economically, politically — even militarily — within the next 10 years or so, says a secret NATO analysis under study by 15 world leaders meeting here.

The portrait, drawn by a special international commission, follows a proposal written by President Carter a year ago. The document is being scrutinized by the heads of state of the NATO countries meeting in a two-day summit that ends today.

Allied diplomats who are familiar with the document, but who would not be named, said it examines the transforming population makeup of the Soviet Union, uncertain energy supplies in the 1980s; a slowdown in economic growth; an ever-increasing arms burden; complications posed by China's developing capabilities; and the nature of the leadership likely to succeed the country's current hierarchy.

The analysis stresses that the Russians are unlikely to unleash a major war of aggression despite a military-spending program increasing at an annual rate of five per cent.

The Western officials released some of the document's content.

On the Soviet Union's changing population structure:

—The birth rate of the 150 million Soviet citizens living in the Russian Republic has declined to 15 per 1,000, below the national average of 18.2.

—In contrast, the birth rate in the Asian and Transcaucasian republics has climbed rapidly to between 30 and 40 per 1,000.

—By the year 2000, one of four Soviet citizens, therefore, will be of Moslem origin, nearly doubling the 1970 ratio. The role of Islam on Russian policy, especially in the Middle East, might become increasingly significant. The Asian population still observes some Moslem traditions and lives in the country's southern tier, near co-religionists in Turkey, Iran, Afghanistan and China.

On the uncertainties of Soviet fuel resources:

—The NATO analysts left open the question of whether Moscow in the 1980s will be a net importer or a net exporter of oil. Russian capacity to supply Cuba and Eastern Europe is expected to decrease, compelling Moscow's partners to go to the world market for oil at a time when their economies cannot afford the cost.

On the Soviet economy:

—A general slowdown is foreseen, not only because of energy and labor shortages, but also because of dimming prospects for trade with the West. The growth rate now is a respectable three to four per cent, but a decline through the 1980s to 2.5 per cent would not surprise NATO.

—Such a decline, with defence spending continuing to increase at five per cent a year, would spell stagnation for Russian consumers.

On political succession:

—The NATO analysts anticipate that political continuity will be preserved when the aging leadership in the politburo vanishes. The document named no names, but some form of ordered transition was foreseen — a transition that would allow the 50-year-olds in the Communist party to prepare themselves to take over after President Leonid Brezhnev, Premier Alexei Kosygin and their colleagues are replaced.

King's Critic Altered Views

Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The black leader described by the FBI as a cooperative contact in its undercover campaign to discredit the late Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. repudiated any such sympathies more than two years ago in an interview with Senate investigators.

The FBI's claims were publicized earlier this week as the result of a newly declassified Dec. 1, 1964, FBI memo that said an "ambitious" black leader, whose name was deleted, was apparently willing to work with the bureau "to remove King from the national picture."

In fact, according to informed sources, the memo actually referred to Roy Wilkins, then NAACP executive scretary, who had met several days earlier, on Nov. 27, 1964, with FBI assistant director Cartha DeLoach about the Bureau's attitude toward Dr. King.

In a memo written that same day, Nov. 27, DeLoach pictured Wilkins as apprehensive and said the meeting ended with Wilkins promising to "tell King that he can't win in a battle with the FBI and that the best thing for him to do is to retire from public life."

Wilkins, however, told the staff of the Senate Intelligence Committee in the fall of 1975 that DeLoach's account was "self-serving and full of inaccuracies." The

Oil Mopup Lengthy, Costly

PORTSALL, France (Reuter) — Burgundy wine producers sent 10,000 bottles of Beaujolais, Zaire's President Mobutu Sese Seko donated $100,000 and France's top singers cut a single called Let's Save the Sea.

It is all part of an internatonal movement of support for the people of western Brittany, hit by the world's worst coastal pollution disaster last March when the supertanker Amoco Cadiz broke its back on the Portsall reefs.

The French government promised compensation for people whose livelihood was hit. But this will take time.

Ordinary people throughout France and abroad are bringing immediate aid to the devastated region.

Hundreds of Belgian ecologists came to work with the 10,000 soldiers, firemen and civilian volunteers cleaning up the region's holiday beaches and scouring the normally rich coastal fishing grounds.

American businessmen in France appealed for funds to compatriots throughout Europe and Riviera newspapers organized collections.

Commercial radio stations vied with one another to bring the most aid to distressed Bretons.

One station recruited truckloads of volunteers to help with the cleaning operation while another started an information service for people with summer hotel bookings, aimed at reassuring them that their vacations would not be ruined.

While the first victims of the crude oil from the Amoco Cadiz were the fish and shellfish which thrive along this picturesque coast and the men who catch them, the tourist industry also appears as seriously threatened.

At Easter, just 10 days after the wreck of the tanker, hotel owners reported a wave of cancellations for the holiday weekend and postponements of summer bookings.

Owners of hotels and rented accommodation throughout northern Finisterre and the neighboring Cote du Nord region have reported widespread cancellations for July and August, despite official promises that the beaches will be clean by then.

The Liberian-registered tanker spilled its entire cargo of 220,000 tons of crude oil into the sea, sullying some 350 kilometres of coastline.

French authorities have since reported that other vessels, taking advantage of the disaster, have been cleaning tanks and pouring their oil waste into French coastal waters in the hope that it would go unnoticed.

The lucrative oyster beds in the inlets along this jagged section of the Finisterre coast and in the Bay of Morlaix have been destroyed, as have the lobster tanks at Roscoff, farther east.

The region's mussels have been depleted and inshore fishing for mullet, bass, plaice and, to a lesser extent, sole, has been ruined — possibly for years to come.

Fishing and tourism are closely interlinked, with many vacationers coming to Brittany because of the quality of its seafood.

A hotel owner said that since the "black tide" hit the coast, he had been getting his supplies of fish, oysters and mussels from unpolluted regions far to the south.

"Yet you still find people saying the oysters taste of oil," he said. "It's illogical, but they come to believe it."

Apart from agriculture, fishing and tourism are the two main industries of western Brittany.

The cost of compensating those whose income has suffered seems certain to be enormous, though the final bill will not be known for months.

The Amoco Cadiz was insured by its owners, the American Oil Co. (Amoco), against pollutiion claims up to a ceiling of $30 million.

Because of the difficulty of assessing individual claims and the inevitable legal wrangles, it may take years to settle every claim.

Neither the Liberian government, which registered the vessel, nor the subsidiary of Royal Dutch Shell, which chartered it, is liable by law.

But the French government is prepared to advance funds. About $1 million has already bee made available to help the neediest cases.

Marc Becam, the junior minister delegated by Premier Raymond Barre to coordinate anti-pollution measures, said the government is determined to stand by the people who suffered from the oil's devastation.

Becam said workers laid off for a long period because of the disaster would receive 90 per cent of their salaries until they could be re-employed. The number of people affected by this measure might be as many as 1,800.

Another 4 Weeks Of Debate On Tax Face Commons

OTTAWA (CP) — MPs face the prospect of another four weeks of debate on the government's Quebec sales tax proposals as the Conservatives do everything possible to stall passage.

Opposition Leader Joe Clark warned Tuesday night that the Conservatives are prepared to delay indefinitely the bill which implements proposals made in Finance Minister Jean Chretien's April 10 budget.

He said his party is ready "to use every legitimate means at our disposal to stop this stubborn government from an action which breaks the trust which is the basis of this country."

This was a reference to the feeling of all the opposition and all parties in the Quebec national assembly that the federal government is interfering with provincial jurisdicion in its sales tax dispute with Quebec.

As Clark spoke, a possibility arose that the delay may become unnecessary. Quebec said it is ready to talk at the deputy minister level with the federal government about the dispute.

The effect of the Conservative action is to delay indefinitely the government plan to give taxpayers in Quebec a rebate of up to $85 in 1977 federal income tax in lieu of an across-the-board sales tax cut in the province.

Other budget measures, including sales tax cuts in other provinces, now are in effect, although they will not become law until the bill is passed.

All opposition parties oppose the government rebate plan, saying that Ottawa should make a $226 million payment to Quebec instead.

The three parties supported a New Democratic Party amendment to delay debate on the bill for one month. It was defeated 84 to 71 by the Liberal majority Tuesday night just after Clark spoke.

Ottawa and Quebec City have been at odds for weeks over the sales tax cuts announced in the budget. Quebec opted for selective tax elimination rather than going along with the federal proposal of across-the-board cuts.

But it demanded all the money set aside for it in the budget—$226 million. The federal government would only give $40 million to help the cost of the selective cuts.

Clark took a dig at Quebec Liberal MPs who have expressed discomfort with the federal stance in the past.

He said his party would stall second-reading debate long enough to allow these MPs to speak against the government.

Only 4 MPs In House

OTTAWA (CP) — Commons attendance dropped to four MPs Tuesday as debate on the government's budget legislation dragged into its third week.

The highest attendance in the 264-seat Commons, where Ottawa's heat wave had more effect on the temperature than the debate, was 11. Under Commons rules a quorum is 20 MPs.

Even on Friday afternoons, the worst attendance day of the week, there generally are more MPs in their seats than there were Tuesday.

Standing in the Commons is Liberal 135; Conservative 87; New Democrat 15; Social Credit 8; ind. 4; vacant 15.

JOGGER'S SHOWER JUST SYMBOL

Sheenan

RICHMOND (CP) — A shower after jogging is symbolic only, it's not neeessary for cleanliness, says an American doctor and author on books on running.

Dr. George Sheenan made the statement Tuesday while helping to promote a fitness festival sponsored by this municipality south of Vancouver.

"The shower after jogging is a great act," he said in an interview. "But it's purely symbolic; part of a ritual — like cleansing yourself off and presenting yourself to the king.

"Look, I sweat exceedingly when I run. Then I rub myself down with a towel.

"Sweating is like taking a bath," he said. "You're coated in a sterile, salt solution. It's only if you leave it there for bacteria to gow that you smell."

Sheenan said the smelly sweat only flows when a person is nervous.

Sadat Hints New Policy

By JONATHAN RANDAL
Washington Post

CAIRO — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat Tuesday for the first time appeared prepared to accept the possible failure of his Mideast peace initiative and hinted a major reassessment of Egyptian foreign policy could come within months.

"Either the peace process regains momentum" in the two months ahead, he told a news conference at his guest house on the Nile River outside Cairo, "or proves to be a failure."

Sadat called the U.S. Senate's approval of President Carter's Mideast arms package, which included war planes for Egypt, a "good omen" but admitted that the United States had "not yet" agreed to become "a full partner" in the peace process.

"I am waiting for the moment when the United States," he said, "will take a full share as a full partner to give full momentum" to the negotiations.

Sadat used the news conference to reprimand the foreign press in tones of injured innocence for reflecting criticism of his current crackdown on domestic dissent. In the past six months, the foreign press has ceased echoing Sadat's peace initiative and become a sounding board for his opposition.

Sucking on a pipe, mopping his brow in the summer heat and waving a stack of translated newspaper clippings, Sadat said, "I am not happy with what I read in your papers."

"You are supposed to be the link between us and the people there, in Europe, Great Britain and America," he said in a 30-minute introductory statement devoted to justifying his recent referendum authorizing the crackdown.

Sadat suggested that Cairo-based foreign correspondents were unduly influenced by the Egyptian opposition, such as columnist Mohamed Hassanein Heikal and leftist writer Mohamed Sid Ahmed.

Even the "initiative's complete failure," he said, "will not be the end of the world."

Bottle Thrown At Charles

NEWCASTLE, England (AP) — A man threw a bottle at a car carrying Prince Charles as the prince was on his way to open a new hospital here today.

A window splintered but did not break and the prince, apparently unhurt, quickly recovered his composure and continued to wave to crowds lining the route.

The alleged bottle-tosser was arrested.

The incident happened when a heavily-built man with a thick brown beard stepped forward from the crowd and hurled the bottle at the window next to the prince.

The motorcade, flanked by police, stopped immediately and within seconds police officers had overpowered the man.

Ugly 'Tin Shed' Marring Harbor

By MARK HUME
Times Staff

The federal government seems determined to mar Victoria's plans to beautify the entrance to the harbor by erecting a large "tin shed" warehouse on the former Victoria Machinery Depot property on Dallas Road.

The warehouse would be part of the new $12 million Canadian Coast Guard base

The city is unhappy with the Coast Guard's plans for a warehouse with a capacity of 30,000 square feet, according to planning director Geoff Greenhalgh.

Plans for the building have been repeatedly rejected by the city, Greenhalgh told the Times, but the government is planning to proceed without Victoria's blessing.

Ald. Bob Wright, chairman of city council's planning committee, said he is shocked by the federal government's attitude.

"The government, through the Coast Guard, is totally unresponsive to the city's design policies and our objective of making the harbor entrance to Victoria second to none," said Wright.

"The building they propose will be totally unacceptable from an esthetic viewpoint . . . it's just not good enough."

The federal government does not have to meet local design requirements, although it usually does so as a matter of courtesy.

"In a legal sense the federal government can do anything it wants down there," said Greenhalgh.

"We're not asking them to put up a lavish building," he added. "But the warehouse they've described will be the most basic tin shed available."

He said the city can do nothing to stop construction of the warehouse, which is the second building in a four-phase project on the property. Other structures at the marine base will include a hangar, an office building and a stores complex. The hangar has been approved, but plans for the other two buildings have not yet been submitted to the city.

Wright said the city has tried to get the government to meet Victoria's design requirements but so far has run up against a brick wall.

"It seems there's a total communications gap between Ottawa and the City of Victoria at any other time except immediately prior to an election," said Wright.

"We don't want a Taj Mahal down there but if the timing of the federal election had been a little bit different that's probably what we'd be getting."

"We're not asking anymore of the federal government than we'd expect from any developer in the city," said Wright.

Private Wine, Beer Sale Eyed

Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair said Tuesday he expects the sale of beer and wine will no longer be in government hands in four to five years.

The minister said in an interview there is a trend across North America for governments to get out of the liquor business, but he would not predict what type of outlets would be used in B.C.

"I would not be surprised to see public pressure for wine stores in general and we'll have to look at the economic viability," he said. "It would probably involve the sale of beer as well."

"If we had to start from scratch, I'd say let's go to private distribution. But we're so entrenched in this government business now with so much money involved, public servants included, that the disentanglement process boggles the mind."

The minister said he doubted that privately-owned stores would mean lower prices.

Bus Fare Boost Needed: Bonner

B.C. Hydro's transit operations might require both a fare increase and a taxpayer subsidy, according to chairman Robert Bonner.

He was commenting on a report prepared by the legislature's Crown corporations committee on Hydro transit services.

Bonner today also questioned the advisability of splitting transit from the rest of Hydro's operations.

Such a move could lead to higher overhead and be counter-productive.

Bonner pointed out that transit has the backing of Hydro's computer system and financial and administrative personnel.

Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis had said he had no quarrel with the committee recommendation that transit be taken away from Hydro.

But Elwood Veitch, (SC — Burnaby-Willingdon), who chaired the committee, said it was not necessarily advocating the transit operation be completely divorced from the rest of the Crown corporation.

"All we want is to more clearly identify the working unit of transit — either within or outside Hydro."

Such a segregation would be an important step in coming to grips with the problem of accountability in providing urban transportation, Veitch said.

The report indicates a need for transit fare increases, but doesn't actually recommend one. It says public transit users in B.C. get the best deal in the country, and as a result, the Crown corporation loses more per capita on public transport than any other utility in Canada.

Bonner said the Montreal and Toronto systems charge considerably higher fares than Hydro, and serve smaller geographic areas. More people use the Toronto and Montreal systems and labor costs are lower.

Bonner said some transit fare increase appears inevitable but it is unlikley an increase alone could solve the financial problems of transit in the Greater Victoria and Vancouver areas.

Future planning of the transit system must be tied to financial support at the municipal and provincial levels, he said.

The committee report tabled in the legislature said Hydro's per passenger deficit is the largest of five large urban transit systems it studied.

The committee pinpoints Hydro's main losses as the bus systems in Victoria and Vancouver.

Hydro's other operations — the railway, gas and electric utilities — operate on a profitable basis but they end up subsidizing losses in the passenger transport operations.

The committee calls for a plan to make the transit deficits of Victoria and Vancouver more equitable "and con-

NURSERY IN CLASS FOR TEEN MOMS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver school board plans to establish a nursery in one of the city's high schools to help teen-age mothers stay in school, board member Dr. Katharine Mirhady, said Tuesday.

Dr. Mirhady, who is also chairman of the Metropolitan Board of Health, said the school board is working on the project with the provincial ministry of human resources.

Funding has not been completed Dr. Mirhady said, but she anticipated the nursery could be operating by September.

"We definitely feel that these girls should have the opportunity to finish their Grade 12," she said.

She also said the human resources ministry would provide support for the girls and their infants until their education is complete.

"We have the space and plan to start with just one nursery in a central location that can be easily reached by bus," she said.

"If this proves successful and if the need is indicated we might consider setting up more."

Canada Hanging Back?

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — A number of Western countries are reported ready to give intensive study to Soviet influence in Africa and to prepare for an organized Western reaction but Canada appears reluctant to get involved.

Richard O'Hagan, communications adviser to Prime Minister Trudeau, said today that Canada has not been invited and does not plan to attend a meeting in Paris next Monday to consider African security.

His statement conflicted with that of Pierre Hunt, spokesman for French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing, who announced after a cabinet meeting in Paris today that six countries would attend, including Canada.

O'Hagan said that Trudeau knew nothing about this announcement and had not been consulted.

During the two-day NATO summit here, Trudeau emphasized the need for new disarmament proposals while President Carter and other leaders raised fears about the Soviet and Cuban involvement in Africa. See also other NATO stories on Page 62.

Heroin Plan Fight Vowed

The NDP intends to oppose the Heroin Treatment Act in the legislature every step of the way, health critic Chris D'Arcy (Rossland-Trail) said Tuesday.

And in Manitoba, informed sources in the provincial-health field fear the B.C. plan will result in large numbers of addicts moving to Prairie cities.

In a prepared statement nearly 24 hours after Bill 18 was tabled in the legislature, D'Arcy said the heroin control program outlined in the act is a "$14 to $20 million dream scheme."

D'Arcy said if the government has an extra $15 million it should spend it keeping drugs off the street.

It's a known fact that a co-ordinated effort can dry up the supply — a better approach to drug control, he said.

D'Arcy said the NDP caucus will oppose the bill rather than suggest amendments because basically it is a bad bill that is "anti-democratic and wasteful."

"I also denounce the infringement of civil liberties that this program will entail. Individuals may be interned and incarcerated without the benefit of legal or medical counsel," D'Arcy said.

He said such a dismissal of individual rights is unacceptable in a democracy.

He agreed addiction is a serious problem, but added addicts can only be helped when they want to help themselves.

In a story today, the Winnipeg Free Press says its sources expressed the following concerns:

—They say B.C. is using compulsory treatment more as a political tool to get rid of heroin addicts than as a means of helping addicts.

THIRD LAWYER TICKED FOR ADS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lawyer Jack D. James of North Vancouver has been ordered by the Law Society of British Columbia to modify his advertising of do-it-yourself divorces and other legal services or face professional misconduct charges, Ray Herbert, chairman of the society's standards committee, said Tuesday.

Herbert said James was called before the committee last week following complaints from other lawyers about his advertising. He is the third B.C. lawyer in two months to run afoul of the society's rules against advertising.

James, 33, president of International Self Counsel Press Ltd., was given until June 19 to respond to the order. He was unavailable for comment Tuesday.

Diana Douglas, James's wife and business partner, said he hasn't decided how to respond to the ultimatum.

Herbert said complaints centred on the phrase, "supervised by lawyers", in brochures and newspaper ads for his divorce and incorporation services.

One brochure offers uncontested divorces for $100, plus about $50 in filing and sheriff fees. Standard lawyers' fees for divorces in which there are no child custody or property settlement disputes are about $500.

Air Canada Strike Threat

MONTREAL (CP) — The union representing 1,500 Air Canada pilots is asking for a strike mandate following rejection of a conciliator's report in contract negotiations with the publicly owned airline.

The Canadian Air Line Pilots Association plans to mail strike ballots to members on Thursday. Results are expected in about three weeks.

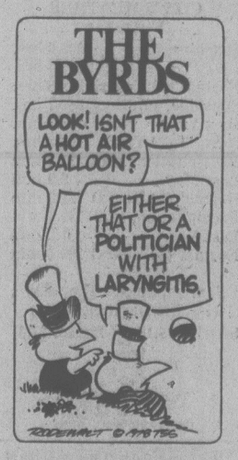

The pilots have been without a contract since Jan. 31.

The airline said Tuesday it "remains hopeful as the peak summer travel season approaches that negotiations with the Canadian Air Line Pilots Association will be resumed without any inconvenience or uncertainty for the travelling public."

Both sides are awaiting word on what further action, if any, Labor Minister John Munro has in mind to get the parties talking again.

The conciliation commissioner, Tom O'Connor, recommended arbitration to resolve the key item — a dispute over first-class travel rights for flight crews — which has stalled the talks.

Air Canada disclosed Tuesday it accepts O'Connor's recommendations.

Armed Guards Next In Corner Grocery?

By LORRAINE LOCHERTY
Times Staff

The friendly neighborhood grocery store might not be such a nice place to visit in the near future.

The time may be coming when a customer who walks in to buy a loaf of bread will be confronted by armed guards and closed circuit television cameras watching every move.

In Victoria, the trend to tight security is already taking place in the corner store and it's all because of shoplifting.

The problem is so bad the smaller, independent grocery and drug stores are hiring professional store detectives to catch shoplifters.

One agency, which believes in using deterrents, plasters warning stickers all over the stores it protects and is thinking about using uniformed guards.

Although the situation isn't as bad in Victoria as the U.S., where supermarkets routinely employ armed guards and use television cameras, Larry Scott thinks its getting that way.

Scott, of Can-Am Investigations, says his new store detective service is catching about 20 shoplifters a week for the owners of independent grocery and drug stores.

Can-Am has discovered most shoplifters are pensioners and respectable-looking people store owners say they never would suspect.

Some of the worst offenders are familiar faces and store owners are shocked to find out some of their best customers have been ripping them off, probably for years.

Can-Am started working for one store and quickly built its clientele up to 10 independent operations.

The company began 10 years ago as an external security patrol agency and branched out into store detective work several months ago.

Business has been so brisk the company increased its staff from one store detective to five and Scott expects to employ about 12 by the end of the summer.

The service started when the owner of Wellburn's Low-Cost Market came to Scott and asked for some kind of protection against the growing ranks of shoplifters.

The owner of Wellburn's, Jim Hall, said the problem more than doubled in the past year and he could no longer handle it by himself.

Hall thought most of his problems were caused by hippies — the transient, long-haired scruffy young people who came into the store on occasion.

But he had an unpleasant surprise when the Can-Am detectives started catching the real culprits.

"I just couldn't believe it; they were all older people." Hall said. "Some were in their 70s."

Hall has increased the store detectives' hours from eight to 16 hours a week. At $250 a month the service costs more than the stolen merchandise.

But he figures that at the rate the detectives are catching shoplifters, the expense will be worth it in the long run.

Sharp Words but Farmland Stays

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Nine specific areas of Saanich lying with the Agricultural Land Reserve will be declared sacrosanct against development and retained as farmland, Saanich council's lands, planning and housing committee agreed Tuesday night.

The vote endorsing in principle a recommendation from municipal planner Gil Laurenson came following a lengthy debate which again found council sharply split between a group generally favoring development and another concerned with protecting farmland for future generations.

And once more the main point of controversy was the future of the Blenkinsop Valley.

Ald. Geoff Vantreight, a daffodil farmer, was loudly applauded by Blenkinsop Valley farmers present when he claimed that not a single farmer in the valley is able to make a living off the land.

"All you can grow in the Blenkinsop Valley is hay," he declared. "It's not an ideal agricultural valley, so why not let it be developed?"

Vantreight said farming in this area could never compete with cheap imported produce from California, the southern U.S. and Mexico, where farm laborers work for low wages.

But Ald. John Mika and Ald. Robert Cameron took issue with Vantreight on the question of Canadian reliance on imported foodstuffs.

Mika said within a dozen years California might not be exporting any produce at all.

Noting that California has been alternately hit with drought and floods, Cameron said: "If the Americans get into tough straits they will look after themselves first. To put ourselves entirely at the beck and call of someone else is rather foolish."

Mika also took the opportunity to brand Vantreight as the developers' spokesman on Saanich council.

"I know that Ald. Vantreight has already said that this year is going to be the year of the developers, that he is all for them and that he is going to help them at election time," he said. "But we have to look beyond this fall.

"There are people in farming now who are much more interested in real estate than in farming. They deserve to have a voice on council and they have it in Mr. Vantreight."

Vantreight protested at what he termed Mika's ignorant remarks, and said he was on council to represent the interests of all Saanich residents.

Ald. Dave Paterson said if council really believed the Blenkinsop Valley should be saved for future generations, it should start buying up the land as it had done in the Swan Lake-Christmas Hill area. It was unfair to expect the landowners in question to hold it as farmland and open space without paying them some form of compensation.

In addition to the Blenkinsop Valley, the areas to be retained under ALR protection are North Cordova Bay, Oldfield Valley, Tod Creek Valley, Quick's Bottom and surrounding area, Hastings-West Burnside, Swan Lake, Rithets Bog and the Panama Flats.

The review of ALR lands was undertaken by the planning department to confirm the status of those areas that are considered suitable for agricultural production, and to weed out other parcels which by virtue of topography, size or poor soil quality should not be included in the farmland freeze.

Mayor Mel Couvelier said it was an essential task because whatever decisions council makes on retaining or excluding ALR properties must be defensible.

In other business Tuesday night, the committee recommended that a public hearing be held on a proposal by Laurenson that the subdivision minimum in the Blenkinsop Valley and in rural Saanich outside the urban containment boundary be doubled to 10 acres.

The committee also rejected a 140-name petition presented by contractor Nick Liberto requesting that the present five-acre minumum in the Hector-Liberto area be reduced to two acres.

KICKING THE HABIT . . . SORT OF

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Saanich Ald. Geoff Vantreight took the cigarette from his mouth and flicked an imaginary ash into the ashtray.

"Been doing this for 2½ years," he said, "ever since I gave up smoking.

"I smoked for 40 years and towards the end I was smoking 80 cigarettes a day. I still put cigarettes in my mouth but now I never light them. After a while they get a little soggy. I go through maybe 10 or 12 in a day."

This is officially Non-Smokers Day in British Columbia and Vantreight has a lot of fun being a member of the group.

Like the day he pulled out a cigarette at a Saanich council fire committee meeting. In a reflex reaction, Mayor Mel Couvelier pulled out his pipe and lit it. Moments later, Ald. Fred Severson lit a cigarette.

Committee chairman Ald. Bob Cameron ordered Severson and the mayor to put away their smoking implements because of the no-smoking rule.

They protested that Vantreight had a cigarette in his mouth.

"But I didn't light up and that makes all the difference," Vantreight chuckled. "Severson and the mayor had to put theirs away."

But there was no fun and games at the time he quit smoking.

"I was miserable. I felt like firing everybody. I felt like selling the farm," he said, referring to Vantreight Farms, the flower and vegetable plantation at 4437 Tyndall.

"I even tried to take up smoking again but every time I lit a match somebody in my faily would blow it out. You can't quit without the support of your family."

A former smoker will remember the instant he quits, Vantreight said.

In his case it was on Oct. 30, 1975, after a hard day of arguing with provincial and federal officials trying to get vegetables excluded from price controls.

"Went through 87 cigarettes that day. I remember because I started the day with a fresh carton and later I counted what was left. I had a coughing fit at 3 a.m. Thought I was going to die."

At 4 a.m. he woke up craving a cigarette. He lit one and started coughing again.

"That's the instant I gave up smoking . . . 4 a.m. Oct. 30, 1975."

At 5 a.m. he was down at the cigarette machine trying to buy a pack.

"I really had it bad. I'd been smoking for 40 years. But the machine didn't work. I lost my money. Couldn't buy cigarettes until the desk clerk came on at 7 a.m."

When he bought the pack and some matches, his lawyer friend reminded him he had just quit.

"I remembered all the coughing and I threw the matches back. But I kept the cigarettes. In the car the first thing I did was push in the lighter. It was a reflex reaction. But I didn't light the cigarette. Later that day I threw the lighter out the car window."

Withdrawal was severe.

Vantreight's son, Ian, who quit smoking in April, 1977, recalls being phoned at all hours of the night when Geoff was travelling.

"Got a call from dad at 3 a.m. one morning. He was in Newfoundland and there it was 7:30 a.m. He just wanted to say he had been off cigarettes for 12 days but was gaining weight fast. He said at the rate he was gaining he would weigh 586 pounds within a year. He woke me at 3 in the morning to tell me that!"

Geoff Vantreight concedes weight is a problem for reformed smokers.

"As it turned out I gained 45 pounds but I've lost 15 of that. Exercise is the important thing. You have to keep busy. You also have to keep busy to keep your mind off cigarettes."

It's been tough becoming a non-smoker but it's all worthwhile, he said. Especialy when he's the only one who can put a cigarette in his mouth at council meetings.

Meanwhile, tobacco sales continue to be brisk across the city despite the decline in the number of smokers.

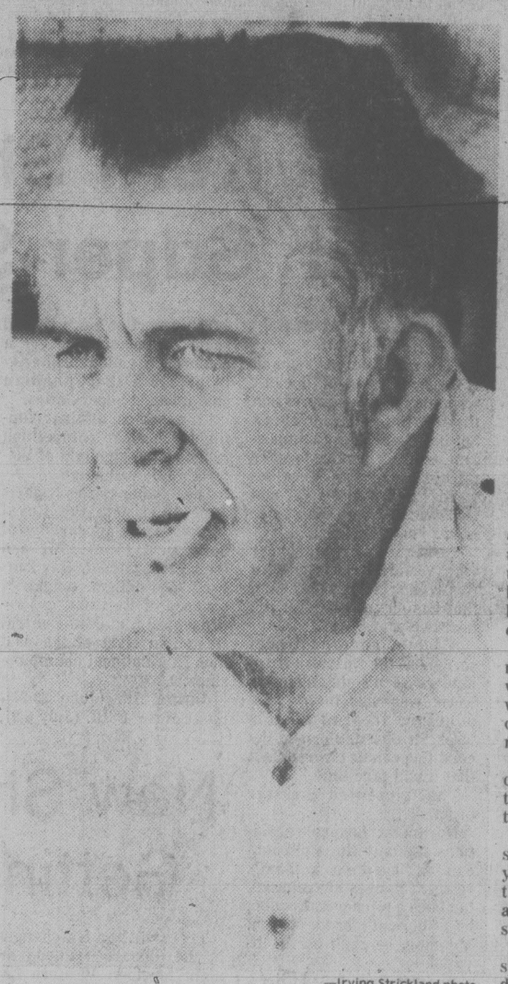

"There are fewer adult smokers now but a lot of young people are taking up the habit," says Sears manager D.T. Thompson, a non-smoker.

"The trend is against smoking but young people don't seem to be getting the message. At least there is no decline in our tobacco sales."

However, Thompson was startled to notice that at a recent gathering of about 30 people there wasn't a single smoker in the crowd. Five or six years ago more than half of them would have been smokers.

A spokesman for the Old Morris Tobaconnists Ltd. at 1116 Government said sales continue to be high despite the anti-smoking campaigns.

The only change is a trend towards pipes for men instead of cigarettes.

86 Cases Of Beer In Home Stolen

Charges are pending against three juveniles in connection with a theft of 86 cases of beer from a waterfront home in Gordon Head Tuesday night.

Saanich police recovered 29 of the cases found hidden in bush along the beach near the residence, and suspect the remaining 57 cases ended up in the hands of local youths who got wind of the break-in and decided to help themselves.

The spokesman said the owner of the home, identified only as a Greater Victoria hotel owner, surprised two youths in the act of stealing the beer at about 10:30 p.m.

He lunged at one youth who broke free and ran off. The other jumped over a 25-foot embankment, rolling into some brambles, to make his escape.

Police refused to release the victim's name or address pending completion of their investigation.

Ottawa Cutback Hits Victoria French Classes

French instruction programs in Greater Victoria schools won't be expanded next year because the district will receive about $273,000 less than expected in federal support funds.

Although the demand is there, trustees decided Tuesday night the district can't afford any new programs.

The board has cancelled plans for two new immersion French kindergarten courses in the Gordon Head area this fall.

Basic French, a program where students get about 20 minutes of French instruction a day, will not be expanded beyond the 127 classrooms now using it.

The school board had planned to use the federal support grant to finance 50 per cent of the cost of starting new programs.

The other half of the cost would have been supplied under another federal grant designated for special projects.

However, the support grant was cut from the requested $433,175 to $160,000.

Trustees decided not to use district funds to make up the difference and scaled down the total French budget by $433,368,000.

The board decided to use the federal money to improve existing programs, which were described by curriculum superintendent John Wiens as being in serious trouble.

Wiens told the board basic French programs were floundering because teachers are not equipped to handle the program and need constant training and assistance from qualified teacher aids.

He said teachers of immersion French programs, where students get a half-French half-English instruction, have no standard curriculum to follow and must set up their own course guidelines.

The immersion program, now in its fifth year at Cloverdale and Willows school, has no follow-up at the junior high school level, Wiens said.

He said the district is conscience-bound to continue the immersion program through high school.

"When we've started something we ought to see it through," Wiens told trustees.

Trustees Mark Fisher and Carol Pickup said the board needs to establish a clear philosophy, including a funding formula, for French instruction programs.

Pickup also called for a definite commitment by the board to French immersion programs.

'WINDOW ON THE HARBOR'

The old Oakland Industries Ltd. site on Wharf Street in the Inner Harbor has been bought and will become a "window on the harbor", former city mayor Peter Pollen announced today.

The property, to be turned into a public park, has been bought for $400,000 by the Greater Victoria Environment Enhancement Foundation (VEEF), which consists of Pollen and Victoria businessman Gordon Reeson.

Pollen said he had come to a verbal agreement on the purchase price with the owner of the property, Hans Hartwig, on Tuesday.

Hartwig said he has applied to the city for a demolition permit to take down the old fish cannery building on the property. He said he was confident that some of his crew would volunteer to undertake the demolition.

Pollen said the park would be turned over to the Capital Regional District for use of the public.

Capital Regional District board chairman Jim Campbell said the park will have shrubs, lawn, places to sit and relax and will be a "useful resting place".

Hartwig had originally intended to build apartments on the site but his proposal was turned down by the city.

Hartwig, who owns the adjacent Pacific Piledriving property, said if his proposal to build a low-profile office-commercial building on the site is accepted he will provide public access fronting the Inner Harbor.

Campbell today also announced the Capital Regional Board has agreed to buy the Simon Leiser building on Yates Street for $737,000. It has rented the building from the VEEF for the past five years.

Pollen said the purchase will pay off the Bank of Montreal loan which he and Reeson raised to extensively renovate the three-storey heritage building, which was built in 1908.

The Capital Regional Board bought the adjacent building at 534 Yates Street for $140,000 in November, 1977, and the board plans to consolidate the two structures into a single office building.

He said staff now housed in rented property will be moved into the consolidated building.

MaryMoon to Hurdle Fences at Home

max low

My friend Trisha MaryMoon says that's it for Trident fence-jumping for a while. She's going to stay home and look for a few anti-war fences to hurdle in Canada instead.

Now I've got to be careful with my words here (as she's a little touchy about roles and has already told me not to open any more doors for her) but Trisha, you may recall, is the Rape Relief Centre person whose so-called low-cut blouse so incensed Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier recently.

Anyway, Trisha is also a member of the Pacific Life Community and has just returned following two more hops last week over the wire surrounding the Trident nuclear submarine base in Bangor, Wash.

They earned her — along with 263 others — an appearance at the Federal Courthouse in Seattle at 9:30 a.m. on July 10. Most, including Trisha, were charged with illegal re-entry of a United States naval installation, a violation of Title 18 U.S. Code, Section 1382.

But that didn't come until after the second hop. So let's start at the beginning.

As the U.S. authorities had already been told in advance of the mass protest planned to coincide with the special United Nations session on disarmament, they were ready. Many of the 100 or so Canadians who went down, in fact, had a difficult job getting over the border.

"Several of them had to try four different border crossings before they finally made it through," says Trisha.

On the holiday Monday a crowd of more than 1,500 people belonging to the Pacific Life Community, Greenpeace, Live Without Trident, Mobilization for Survival and several church groups gathered outside the gates. When 293 of them scaled the wire, there was a neat row of buses waiting inside to take them away.

But first it was off to the base gymnasium to be processed (fingerprinted and photographed) and lunch (chicken sandwiches, milk and apples) for the 293, who were all arrested.

After a bus trip to Tacoma, though, only five, including Julianne May of Victoria, were taken to the Tacoma city jail and charged. The rest were released in the parking lot.

Next day they were all back again at Bangor (except for the five already charged) and 266 went over the fence, taking with them a huge U.N. flag.

"This time, they gave us time to put up a tent and make a human peace symbol with our bodies," says Trisha. "Then they started arresting us."

Military guards did the arresting and then the protesters were taken by buses, some to Tacoma and some to Seattle, and handed over to U.S. marshals.

"The marshals are cool and cynical to keep up their 007 image but there was no real rough stuff," Trisha explains.

On the base, many of the protesters refused to co-operate. They sat down or limped and had to be dragged to the buses. This time, every person who went over the fence (except for two juveniles) was charged, including Trisha and Berta Schmidt of Victoria, Ben Hines and Wendy Mitchell of Courtenay and Ian Jamieson of Powell River.

That makes it four times over the Trident fence for Trisha MaryMoon but, as I said, she won't be doing it again for a while.

"I will support anything that happens down there, though, and I'm sure all the Canadians who went down feel this way," she says.

It's just that if Trisha's going to end up in jail she'd rather do it in Canada.

"I want to start working more in Canada against nuclear armament, the whole arms race and war in general," she explains.

"I'm going to put my energy into opposing Canadian systems that support U.S. arms involvement."

As part of this work, she and other Pacific Life Community members will conduct non-violence training, concentrating on civil disobedience, on Vancouver Island. This summer Trisha plans to visit the clinic of Dr. Elizabeth Kubler-Ross, famed for her work with dying patients, in Escondido, Calif.

"I'm going to talk with them about transferring the diagnosis and treatment of a dying individual to a dying society," she explains with sincerity.

But this decision to work nearer home doesn't mean that Trisha feels the Trident demonstrations have been a waste of time. Far from it.

"We don't expect that any one demonstration is going to stop Trident," she explains. "What we do expect is that any stand we take and risks that go with it will help move the masses to take a stand themselves.

"It's important for people on Vancouver Island to realize that Canadians are taking a stand — and a fairly risky stand as well — and that there are a number of people who are willing to take that risk."
